ELY KILLED; LEAPS FREE OF AEROPLANE

Loses Control in Attempting Dip at Macon, Ga., When Too Near the Ground.

FIRST TO FLY TO A SHIP

Special to The New York Times.

MACON, Ga., Oct. 19.—Eugene Burton Ely, the airman, the first man to alight in an aeroplane on board a man of war, met death at the State Fair Grounds this afternoon while attempting a sensational dip. Ely had completed a circuit of the fair grounds, and then started on his dip. He was seen gliding down at terrific speed, probably forty miles an hour. Then just as the 8,000 spectators expected him to start upward again he was seen to attempt to rise from his seat, and almost immediately the machine struck the ground. The airman had flung himself clear of the aeroplane, but the force of his fall was too great. He died in a few minutes, regaining consciousness only long enough to whisper: "I lost control. I know I am going to die." His machine was demolished.

In falling the aeroplane was near causing the death or injury of Ely's machinists, Frank Calling of New York and Edgar Turner of Madison, Ga., who were inside the mile oval waiting for the airman to alight. By dropping to the ground both of these men escaped, the machine barely gliding over them.

It appears that Ely had misjudged his distance from the ground and started to make the dip at too slight an elevation. He could not have been more than a hundred feet from the ground when he started downward, and the descent was nearly perpendicular. At the moment when he lost control the spectators were actually applauding what they thought was a daring and successful manoeuvre, expecting to see the machine soar aloft again.

As the aeroplane crashed to earth thousands of persons on the fair grounds rushed toward the scene. The wrecked machine lay partly tilted upon its right side, with the left plane protruding above the mass of broken and twisted wood and iron. The engine, smoking hot, was below all. Ely was not underneath the wreckage. He had been hurled forward fifty feet or more and had been picked up by his mechanicians and carried still further back and laid upon his back. An ambulance was summoned and doctors were called. A Catholic priest, a missionary, happened to be on the grounds and administered the last sacrament just as Ely breathed his last. His neck was broken by the fall. No other bones were broken. He bled slightly from the mouth. There were no cuts about his body.

The body was prepared for shipment to-night and will be sent to his old home at Davenport at 4 o'clock in the morning. An official of the State Fair will act as escort.

Ely appeared to have a premonition that something would happen to-day. He told one of his mechanicians, Turner, to wire his wife if anything occurred.

He gave her address as 164 West Seventy-fourth Street, New York. Turner complied with the request. His first message stated that Ely had fallen and asked her to come at once. A second message, ten minutes later, said that he was dead, and asked her to meet the body at Davenport, Iowa.

Ely had been making successful flights at the fair all week. His last performance there was to take place to-morrow, and then he had promised to race his aeroplane against Joe Wheeler and his automobile here for $1,000. One of his flights here was made in a rainstorm. To-day he had even offered to make a flight by night, painting his craft with phosphorus, but the offer was declined.

DAVENPORT, Iowa, Oct. 19.—N. D. Ely, father of Eugene Ely, the aviator killed at Macon, Ga., to-day, left for Macon late this afternoon to take charge of the body of his son. The elder Mr. Ely is a lawyer.

The aviator made exhibition flights in this city about two weeks ago. While here he was asked by one of his friends how long he expected to remain in the flying business.

"Oh, I'll do like the rest of them—keep it up until I am killed," was the reply.

Ely was a chauffeur until he learned to fly in California several years ago. He was born at Williamsburg, near here, and was about 27 years old.

Skillful Airman Who Flew From and Alighted On Warships.

Eugene B. Ely was one of the best known of the Curtiss aviators and was considered one of the most careful airmen in this country. His death makes the one hundred and first fatality since the use of aeroplanes began. He was noted for the care with which he inspected his aeroplanes before attempting a flight. He was married, and his home was at 164 West Seventy-fourth Street in this city. Mrs. Ely often accompanied him on his trips, but this time she stayed at home. She was informed by friends of her husband's death in Macon last night, and it was said that she was prostrated by the news.

Ely, though he had been flying for two years, was at his death still one of the youngest of American airmen. He first came into public notice in October, 1910, when he was the Curtiss aviator selected to attempt a flight from Chicago to New York for a prize of $25,000 offered by THE NEW YORK TIMES and The Chicago Evening Post. On Oct. 9 of that year he ascended at Hawthorne Park, Chicago, on what he hoped was to be the successful start of that flight.

Ten minutes after he went into the air, however, Ely had to descend at Beverly Hills, a suburban settlement on the Rock Island a few miles out of Chicago. Three times Ely started again, but each time after he had made but a few miles he was compelled to land, owing to engine trouble. The third and last attempt carried him to a point near East Chicago, Ind., which was about 22 miles distant from Chicago. Twice at this time Ely narrowly escaped serious injury. On Oct. 11, two days after he started from Hawthorne Park, Ely gave up the attempt to fly to New York.

After the flight was abandoned the cause of Ely's hard luck was discovered by one of his mechanics. The "pin hole" or air vent in the gasoline tank had become clogged, the result being that the gasoline would not flow along the pipe to the mixing chamber of the carbureter. A pin prick would have saved Ely all his trouble had he known what the matter

TO SPEND $15,000 AND DIE.

Paul Newman, Too Long Economical, Couldn't Waste His Money.

Paul Newman, 35 years old, of 538 East Ninety-fourth Street, Manhattan, told Magistrate Fitch in the police court at Flushing, Queens, yesterday that after the sudden death of his wife and child he had determined to spend all his money, $15,000, and then die. He failed, and was arraigned on a charge of attempting suicide by shooting himself three times beside the graves of his wife and child in the Lutheran Cemetery at Middle Village, L. I., on Oct. 2. Before making the attempt upon his life he ordered and paid $250 for a tombstone for himself.

Just two months ago yesterday, Newman's wife and only child died within a few hours of each other, leaving him without a relative in the world. He is a machinist.

"I decided that life was not worth living," said Newman in court. "But I could think of no one to whom to leave my money, so I decided to spend it and then end my life. The $10,000 in my wife's name was part of her estate, and I could not get it without going through numerous formalities in the Surrogate's office, so I decided to spend my own $5,000 first."

Newman went to Europe and threw himself into a life of pleasure and gayety, always with the intention of quickly getting rid of his money and then ending his life. But to a man like Newman, trained to live economically and save his money, it was not easy to spend $5,000, and he returned to America, tired of Europe, with about half his money still unspent. He had heard, he said, that automobiles were expensive, so he decided to take a long ride in one. He arranged a motor trip to Niagara Falls, selecting that place because he and his wife went there on their wedding trip. The ride did not use up all his available cash, either, so when he returned he decided to give up the attempt to spend his fortune and die.

On Oct. 2 he went to the Lutheran Cemetery, stopping outside long enough to order and pay cash for a $250 tombstone at the Homeyer Marble Works. Then, kneeling beside the graves of his wife and child, he shot himself over the heart, in the jaw, and in the head. For days his death was expected in the German Hospital, but he finally recovered. Two of the bullets were extracted, but the third is still lodged in his throat.

"I am not sorry I tried to kill myself; without my wife and child I do not wish to live," said Newman in reply to a question by Magistrate Fitch. The latter held him in $1,000 bail to await the action of the Grand Jury. Newman objected to being handcuffed to another prisoner and taken by trolley car to the county jail at Long Island City, asking that he be permitted to engage a taxicab for the trip. His request was denied.

Newman had with him about $200, all that is left of the $5,000 he took to Europe less than two months ago. He expects to apply to the Surrogate of New York County for enough money from his wife's estate to furnish cash bail.

SOMETHING SENDS FIRE CALLS

And Maybe It's a Ghost—Cemeteries Are Near By, Anyway.

Several times in the last few weeks the Bloomfield Fire Department has been called to answer midnight alarms, only to find no trace of fire, and the firebox from which the alarm was sent securely locked. This puzzled the firemen, because while any one can open the boxes to send in an alarm, with the key attached, no one except the Chief or one of his assistants in the department can close a box after the alarm.

On Wednesday night the mystery was finally solved. At midnight an alarm was sent in from Box 48 at Belleville Avenue and Oak Street, and again the firemen found no fire. All was plain sailing, however, in the solution of the mystery after that. One of the firemen, who may be even a better whostologist than he is a fireman, discovered that the fire box in question was only a short distance from the Bloomfield Cemetery; another added that as the bird flies it was less than a quarter of a mile from the Sacred Heart Cemetery; a third discovered that it was equally near the Glen Ridge Cemetery. And then finally to add the last needed touch of conclusive evidence, just as a group of firemen were discussing the strange affair in front of the box, the bell tolled—so they told—one, two, three, which means "out."

Frank Wissner, one of the firemen, says he saw a ghostly apparition in white sound the back taps and disappear. The disappearance, in fact, seems to be agreed upon even by those who didn't see the appearance.

Fire Chief Bernard F. Higgins says he does not believe in spooks, even if he can't, just at present, account for the false alarms.

SCHENECTADY CAR MEN OUT.

Special to The New York Times.

SCHENECTADY, N. Y., Oct. 19.—Because the Schenectady Railway Company to-day refused to reinstate thirteen men, discharged because they belonged to a new union here, all city lines and interurban lines to Albany, Troy, and Saratoga have been tied up since 9:30 o'clock this morning. A strike was declared and 375 men are out of employment.

Up until midnight there had been no violence, but trouble is expected because of the efforts of the railway to operate cars with non-union men.

George Keeney, Fourth Vice President of the Amalgamated Street and Electric Railway Association, has been here for three days, and has put practically all the employes of the company in the new union, which seeks recognition. Secret meetings are being held to allow the men to apply for membership, as they fear the threats of the railway officials that no union man may work for the company.

Supt. James F. Hamilton of the company stated late to-night that no attempt would be made to take cars out of the barns until morning, when he hoped the regular schedule on all lines would be resumed. However, he said he had enough non-union men to keep at least one car on each line in operation. The entire police force is on duty.

ACCUSES FELLOW TRAVELER.

American Has Belgian Arrested in London for Alleged Fraud.

LONDON, Oct. 19.—Woverington Rowland of Frankford, near Philadelphia, was the plaintiff in the Bow Street Police Court to-day against August Camp, a Belgian mine owner. He charged that Camp had obtained $1,750 from him by a trick.

The two came over together in the Adriatic, and soon afterward visited a race course. Rowland says that his companion represented him in the betting ring and at the end of the day reported that he had lost the amount named in the complaint. Rowland settled, but later, on the advice of his bankers, communicated with Scotland Yard, and Camp was arrested.

Camp was held for trial.

SNODGRASS HOOTED OUT OF PHILADELPHIA

TWO GIANTS PUNISHED

Manager McGraw Censured and Merkle Fined for Conduct in Tuesday's Game—Fourth Game To-day.

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 19.—Fred Snodgrass, the centre fielder of the New York Giants, who has been accused of intentionally spiking Frank Baker, the famous third baseman of the Athletics and the star in the world's series, in the game played at the Polo Grounds last Tuesday, in which Baker was cut and bruised severely, left Philadelphia this morning for New York to escape the taunts and hoots of Philadelphia fans, who made it extremely unpleasant, if not perilous, for Snodgrass to remain in this city pending the playing of the fourth game of the series here, which has been postponed twice on account of rain.

Manager McGraw, realizing the effect that this action of the Philadelphians would have on his player, advised Snodgrass to go home until to-morrow morning and escape the criticism and denunciation of his actions in New York. Manager McGraw, of course, believes that Snodgrass unintentionally spiked Baker in sliding into third base in the game on Tuesday, and Snodgrass declares that he is innocent of any wrongful action.

The absence of Snodgrass from the Majestic Hotel, the Giants' headquarters, set a wild rumor afloat this afternoon that an irate fan had attempted to shoot Snodgrass. The story was utterly without foundation, but it was not until several of the New York players had been called out of a local theatre this afternoon and made to deny the rumor that the crowd of fans around the Majestic Hotel, where the team is stopping, would disperse.

Philadelphia fans deeply resent Snodgrass's rough-riding tactics on the bases, and every time he has ventured out on the streets here and has been recognized he has been hooted and hissed.

Snodgrass said he wasn't worried about the jeers and hoots of the Philadelphia fans. He said he has a clear conscience in the matter of spiking Baker, for it was all accidental. Philadelphia players and fans say otherwise.

"My goat is not for sale," said Snodgrass. "They say the crowd to-morrow will have it in for me, but there's no danger of my going up in the air."

Feeling against the Giants runs so high here that Philadelphia fans said to-day that the Giants have all been equipped with new spikes, and would continue to cut their way around the bases with renewed speed, but many of the players said they were wearing the same shoes and spikes that they had been using all season, and many of the cleats by this time, they say, are pretty well dulled.

A story current this afternoon was that Frank Baker's injuries caused by Snodgrass's spikes were serious and that blood poisoning had set in. It was said that Baker had been sent to a hospital. This also proved to be a wild rumor, for Baker rested quietly to-day at his home, glad to give the wounds and bruises a chance to heal. His cuts are not serious, and he will be in the game to-morrow, the same batting peril, to worry the Giant pitchers.

It is expected that the crowd at Shibe Park to-morrow will be very hostile to Snodgrass, and it is possible that Manager McGraw may keep him out of the game.

The headquarters of the Giants at the Majestic Hotel was besieged all day by reporters trying to run down stories about the New York players. It was published here that Arthur Wilson, one of McGraw's catchers, had been arrested for speculating in tickets. It was said that he had tickets in his possession and had been caught crawling out of a window in the visiting players' dressing room at Shibe Park. Investigation showed that a speculator named Charles Wilson from New York had been arrested crawling out of the window and was suspected of being a thief. He got into the park, but the gate keepers refused to allow him to go out and he bribed one of the Athletic bat boys with a $5 bill to be allowed to crawl out of the window to get in the street to sell tickets. He was fined $7 and costs for disorderly conduct.

Strong Feeling Against the Giants.

Partisan feeling here is very strong and the police will be on the watch for any demonstration of any kind against the team when they take the field to-morrow. The Athletics are big favorites here now, and local fans argue that the Athletic sluggers will find no trouble in hitting McGraw's best pitchers, now that they have humbled both Mathewson and Marquard. Matty was the man they most feared, for he has had the Indian sign on them since the series of 1905. With the Mathewson hoodoo smashed, the Athletics partisans look for the American Leaguers to go through and bat their way to a decisive victory.

The first three games of the series have been productive of surprisingly fine pitching, in which the Athletics have thus far excelled. The White Elephants have not yet shown the deadly bombardment that they gave the Cub pitchers last year. Although their hitting has not been especially heavy, it has been timely, and their few hits have not been wasted like many of the Giant smashes.

The only bit of real excitement this afternoon was a wordy argument outside the Majestic Hotel between a wild-eyed Athletic fan and Arthur Fletcher, the Giants' shortstop. The man said something which Fletcher resented, and for a while it looked as if the fur was going to fly. Other players gathered around Fletcher, and the wild fan was persuaded to move along. He promised to come back to-night and get revenge, for he said Fletcher had struck him with a newspaper.

Many of the Giants were anxious to go back to New York to-day and stay over night, but Manager McGraw refused to allow any of the men to go out of town except Snodgrass.

"No, Sir; not a man of you puts a foot outside of the city," said Manager McGraw when the players asked for a day's leave. "I am not going to run any risk of railroad accidents or any other mishaps that might cripple the team.

"I am not beaten by a long shot," continued McGraw. "Of course I should feel better if I had collected that last game. Frank Baker has made a lot of trouble for us with his home runs, but otherwise we just about proved that we held our own and a trifle more. The rain has helped a lot. It gave Matty a rest. If we win this game to-morrow and Matty wins in New York the next day, as he ought, then we will have the Athletics three to two. The Athletics came from behind and overcame a one-game handicap, and I don't see why we cannot do the same. The series has been close so far, but my team has not been hitting as well as I expected, or as well as they are able to. They will start any time to hit the ball, and when they do there is no pitcher who can stop them."

Fourth Game To-day.

Rain and plenty of it made Shibe Park a mud puddle to-day, and the fourth game of the world series between the Giants and the Athletics was postponed until to-morrow. Weather Forecaster Bliss, who has

HOLD THE HUSBAND OF CYANIDE VICTIM

He Now Says He Didn't Tell His Wife About Putting Poison in Her Medicine Bottle.

BUT DID CHANGE THE LABEL

Not Under Arrest, but Is Detained at the Prosecutor's Request After a Two Hours' Examination.

Allison McFarland, advertising manager of the Crocker-Wheeler Electrical Company of Ampere, N. J., whose wife was found dead of cyanide of potassium poisoning in her home at 346 Park Avenue, Newark, N. J., Wednesday morning, was questioned for more than two hours last night by the police and detectives of Prosecutor Wilbur Mott's staff, and at the end of the interview was locked up for the night in the witness room of the Fifth Precinct Police Station. It was made clear, however, that Mr. McFarland was not under arrest, but simply was being detained at the request of Prosecutor Mott.

Mrs. McFarland was killed with poison taken from a bottle used ordinarily for a headache medicine she frequently used. McFarland, who said on Wednesday that he had removed the original contents of the bottle and replaced it with cyanide of potassium to be used for polishing some jewelry, and had cautioned his wife about this substitution, admitted yesterday that he had not warned her of the new contents of the bottle, but had contented himself with changing the label for one indicating their poisonous nature. He did not explain why he had said nothing to his wife nor why he had selected a former medicine bottle as a vehicle to hold his poison.

What McFarland may have said in the two hours and more that he was under a fire of questions is known in detail only to himself and his questioners, as the latter refused to allow him to speak and declined themselves to tell all that had come out in this examination. It was by order of Prosecutor Mott that this secrecy was maintained. The results of the examination were laid immediately before him, an official court stenographer having been present throughout the hearing to take notes of McFarland's statements.

The examination was not begun until almost evening, as it was not until then that McFarland returned from Philadelphia, whither he had gone on Wednesday night, taking his six-year-old son, Robert. His daughter, Ruth, two and a half years old, he left in the care of a neighbor, Mrs. B. H. Gifford of 348 Park Avenue. He told neighbors that he was going to Philadelphia to see his parents and to arrange for his wife's funeral. He would be back, he said, about noon yesterday.

Noon came and passed, however, without sign of McFarland. Prosecutor Mott had given orders that he was to be retained and questioned and detectives were waiting at his home when he arrived there, shortly after 5 o'clock. They told him that he was wanted at the Fifth Precinct Police Station and McFarland made no objection to accompanying them, first, however, giving his son in charge of Mrs. Gifford.

Awaiting him at the station were Capt. Long, Detective Mangin, Chief Wiemer of Prosecutor Mott's staff, and Detective Godfrey, also a county detective. There was also the stenographer. McFarland seemed perfectly cool and collected, and so far as could be learned, stuck absolutely to his story of Wednesday, with the exception of admitting that he had not warned his wife of the substitution of the contents of the medicine bottle.

On Tuesday McFarland had taken his son to the Electrical Show in New York. Being delayed, he had spent the night there, returning home early on Wednesday morning. He found his wife dead in bed and his daughter Ruth playing about the floor. McFarland explained that his wife repeatedly suffered from severe headaches, and suggested, after an autopsy had shown that she had died of poisoning, that she must have taken the poison in mistake for her usual headache medicine.

But little is known of McFarland or his wife except that they came to the Park Avenue house about six months ago, just about the time that he went to work for the electrical company. Previous to that, it is understood, that they had lived in a suburb of Milwaukee and that for a year and a half his wife and children had been with her parents in Rockport, Me.

AT 50 QUITS BOY HUSBAND.

He's 18 and Won't "Settle Down" and Help Her in Furniture Business.

Declaring that she had made a great mistake in marrying her husband because he is only 18 and she 50 Mrs. David Christopher of 176 Ashburton Avenue, Yonkers, has separated from him, asserting that she will sue for divorce unless he hurries up and gets the marriage annulled. Mrs. Christopher was Marcella Davis. She owns three furniture stores in Yonkers, and is reputed to be a woman of great wealth. Several months ago she took young Christopher into her employ as an errand boy, and a strong attachment developed between them. They were married by a Yonkers Alderman on Sept. 16. The boy's parents sought to have the marriage annulled.

At her home Mrs. Christopher said yesterday that she could not get her husband to settle down as a married man should.

"I always loved him," she said, "but I thought that he would make the kind of a husband who would assist me in conducting my business. He was a disappointment in that respect. He would not forget he was a boy. He would go out in the morning and would not return until the evening. Therefore he would be of no assistance to me."

The youthful husband was seen at his parents' home, 34 Orchard Place, and said:

"Yes, it is true Marcella and I don't get along. We just could not get along, that's the reason. I did not understand I was to work as hard as she wanted me to. I left of my own account, and my parents are going to get the marriage annulled forthwith. I may go back to school."

CUBANS THREATEN TO LYNCH SPANIARDS

PRESIDENT GOMEZ ANGRY

Says He Will Not Submit to Dictation—An Attempt to Hang Senor Rivero, Spanish Editor, in Havana.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

HAVANA, Oct. 19.—The members of the Veterans' Association, after a mass meeting to-day to protest against the holding of Government positions by former Spanish sympathizers, marched to the palace 1,000 strong. A committee, including Gens. Nunez, Loynas, Diaz, and Nodarse, of which the Chairman was Col. Aranda, President of the association, went in to present the protest to President Gomez.

The President was absent. The veterans waited for an hour and a half, meanwhile expressing great indignation. Many advocated the immediate lynching of Nicolas Rivero, the editor of the Spanish newspaper, The Diario de la Marina, and Señor Pasalodas, formerly the President's secretary.

President Gomez arrived at 7 P. M. in an automobile with his wife, son, and daughters. The crowd cheered him. He immediately received the committee, which presented the protest. In replying to it the President said he had always sought to govern justly, patriotically, and efficiently, and he preferred to appoint veterans, but it was necessary to choose the fittest men for positions requiring special aptitude, and among these were some former Spanish guerrillas.

Col. Aranda replied that the veterans were determined not to endure the appointment to office of former enemies of Cuba while patriots were excluded, adding:

"It pains me to say so, but unless the protest is heeded, before the veterans meet again next Saturday days of mourning will visit Cuba."

The President became angry and replied:

"I cannot submit to arrogant dictation. If days of mourning await Cuba let them come. I shall be found ready."

Gen. Nunez interfered, calming both parties, and the committee withdrew. President Gomez appeared on a balcony to address the crowd. It cheered him, but many cries of "Down with the guerrillas!" were also heard. The President made a speech in which he expressed generalities and made vague promises. The crowd then dispersed. It was generally declared that Gen. Gomez had evaded the issue and that if he did not heed the protest things would happen on Saturday.

The Veterans' Association includes leaders of all parties and has great power, being able, it is believed, to enforce its desires either by vote or revolution. It seems certain, however, that the President will not yield.

Yesterday a number of veterans obtained a rope and attempted to lynch Nicolas Rivero, who escaped. The association officially repudiates this attempt.

Col. Aranda declared to-night for publication that if all who were enemies of "Cuba Libre" and who were now holding public offices were not dismissed within two months the veterans would go through Cuba lynching every ex-guerrilla in office and any Judge who dared to prosecute the lynchers.

The national police and army officers are mostly veterans and would join a movement by the veterans against the President.

PASTOR INVITES SALOON MEN

Bids Them Come to Church and Discuss the Evils of Drinking.

Saloonkeepers in the uptown section of Brooklyn were surprised yesterday to receive by mail letters from the Rev. Dr. Dudley O. Osterheld inviting them to attend the services at the Buffalo Avenue Methodist Episcopal Church, that borough, next Sunday evening and discuss with him the "drink evil." Dr. Osterheld assured the liquor dealers that his invitation was not designed as a trap, and that he would not be personal or say anythink that might make them feel uncomfortable. He told them that he would honestly and without prejudice speak of the evil results of the drink habit.

"I believe," he wrote, "that if you men would come into closer touch with us you would very soon see the fairness of our claim. I believe many of you would get out of the business to-day if you thought you could. You think you can't. You do not like the business yourselves.

"You speak bitterly against preachers, particularly if they try to interfere with the illegal Sunday traffic. I hope you will find time to come to our church next Sunday and hear our side of the matter. I am sure if you listen to the facts with an open mind you will think less of your business than ever before. This is no scheme to get you to church and then pound you to shame. You will not be in any way embarrassed."

The invitation was sent to 100 saloonkeepers.

MORGAN GETS HIS TAXES CUT.

Induces a Reduction from $800,000 to $550,000 in His Personal Assessment.

J. P. Morgan called at the Department of Taxes yesterday afternoon and obtained a reduction of the assessment on his personal property from $800,000 to $550,000. A representative from the banker's office called at the Tax Department twice last week in an effort to adjust the matter without Mr. Morgan's presence. No adjustment could be made, however, and yesterday Mr. Morgan called on Tax Commissioner Kaufman in person.

In a few minutes Mr. Morgan showed that although assessed for $800,000 worth of personal property, he had liabilities offsetting about $250,000 of this. He also said that he held bonds worth $550,000 which he had neglected to register under the new secured debt law. If it had not been for this oversight, Mr. Morgan explained, there would be no personal property assessment against him this year.

Last year Mr. Morgan was assessed on personal property to the amount of $400,000. This year he will have to pay between $8,000 and $9,000 on his assessment.

SCHOOLGIRL KILLED BY TRAIN

Her Father Was Killed Six Years Before, Close by, on the Same Tracks.

Special to The New York Times.

OSSINING, N. Y., Oct. 19.—Miss Lillian Berry, daughter of Mrs. Katherine Berry of Waller Avenue, was killed here to-day by being crushed between a New York Central train and the fence at the railroad station. Miss Berry was 16 years old, and was graduated from the high school here in June. She had been going daily to Manhattan to take a commercial college course. She and half a dozen girls, who are employed in Manhattan, started off together to take the 7:18 o'clock train. They reached the railroad tracks ahead of the train, and Miss Berry left her companions and started to walk down the tracks inside the railroad fence toward the station platform. Before she could reach the platform the train overtook her and she had no means of escape. She was terribly crushed, and died two hours later in the hospital. The platform was crowded with commuters who witnessed the accident.

Miss Berry's father met a similar fate six years ago, being run down and killed by a train about half a mile below the place where his daughter met her death to-day.

POLICE MAKE UP A HERO FUND

Mrs. Lynch, Widow of Slain Patrolman, Is to Get $6,540.10.

Through Police Commissioner Waldo Mrs. Michael Lynch and her two small children will receive $6,540.10 to-day. She came near getting it yesterday, but when the Rev. Francis J. Sullivan of St. Ann's Church in Twelfth Street, Chaplain of the Police Headquarters, went to Headquarters the Commissioner was not in. The Chaplain will call again to-day with the money for Mrs. Lynch and her children.

On July 1 Patrolman Michael Lynch of Precinct 22 and two other members of the force heard shots in a house near the station occupied by negroes. When Patrolman Lynch reached the door a shot came from within that went through his heart. The negroes escaped to the roof, but later were captured by the police.

There was marked sympathy for the widow of the patrolman and his family, and Chaplain Sullivan started a fund for them. A large proportion of the police force from Commissioner Waldo down contributed, the gifts being only 50 cents and $1.

LOST HUSBAND IN TWO WEEKS

Mrs. Lewis of New York Offers Reward of $200 for His Arrest.

Special to The New York Times.

SEATTLE, Oct. 19.—Mrs. George B. Lewis of New York City to-day deposited $200 reward with the police of Portland, which is to be paid for the arrest of her husband. Mrs. Lewis then left for New York, after giving a most remarkable description of her husband.

Mrs. Lewis said she met Lewis in San Francisco a little over two weeks ago. Within forty-eight hours they were married. Then they came to Oregon on their honeymoon. Her husband disappeared from the Oregon Hotel where they were staying. Simultaneously Mrs. Lewis discovered that $3,500 worth of diamonds had vanished also. Mr. Lewis is described as having diamonds set in two of his teeth, as well as having his fountain pen, key ring, and other trinkets set with diamonds.

"And to think that I, a native-born New Yorker, who thought I was so worldly wise, could be so deceived," said Mrs. Lewis.

APPEALS FOR HER DOGFRIEND

Mrs. Reynolds's Collie, Ten Years Old, and Her Constant Companion, Missing.

"Fanny, the faithful collie dogs of Mrs. E. D. Reynolds of 290 Franklin Avenue, Mount Vernon, has been stolen and she asks that any one who may have bought her will return her. She has had Fanny for ten years. She is much alone and somewhat deaf, and the collie was to her a real solace and comfort. She was always with her in her walks and by her side at home, and as Fanny was never known to stray it seems certain that she has been stolen.

So Mrs. Reynolds asks that any one who may have found Fannie or may have bought her will return her. She will cheerfully pay her full value and will pay a liberal reward for any reliable information about her.

The dog is a golden tan in color, with a little dark on the back and tail. Her collar and breast are white, and all her feet and just a tip of her tail are the same hue.

In appealing to the public for aid, Mrs. Reynolds says she is sure that her friend would never survive long her homesickness at removal from the home she has known so long.

BALLOONISTS FALL INTO SEA.

Rescued in English Channel After Clinging to Car Over Two Hours.

It eventually dropped into the water, and the three passengers were rescued by a trawler after clinging to the car for more than two hours.

LONDON, Oct. 19.—An unoccupied balloon, apparently of French ownership, descended near Brighton to-day.

HANKOW CUT OFF FOR 36 HOURS

City Has Been Isolated Since Wednesday at 6 P. M.—Even Wireless Has Failed.

TROOPS' MUTINY RUMORED

Soldiers Said to Have Refused to Detrain — Other Alarming Reports in Peking.

THE MANCHUS MASSACRED

YUAN IN SUPREME CONTROL

Is to Have Authority Even Over the War Minister — Will Probably Start for Hankow To-day.

PEKING, Oct. 19.—The Foreign Legations in Peking have received no dispatches from Hankow since 6 o'clock last evening. The last message received told of continued desultory firing, and said rebel reinforcements were crossing the river.

Dispatches from Shanghai asking Peking for news say that the telegraph wires from Hankow to Shanghai are also cut. Several gunboats carry wireless systems, which should be working between Hankow and Shanghai.

The Province of Sze-Chuen continues to be isolated. Nothing has been heard from there for several days.

It is believed that the foreign concessions in Hankow are safe, and that the ten or twelve foreign cruisers and gunboats in the harbor are ample protection.

It would, however, be impossible to prevent stray shells from threatening the foreigners, while conflagrations and looting by the rabble are also feared. It would be difficult to cordon the concessions, because they are not surrounded by a wall. Only narrow streets cut them off from the densely packed Chinese city.

It is hoped that all the women and children have already been safely removed from Hankow, as it is feared that the defeat of the revolutionaries might be followed by excesses on the part of the mob, careful inquiries indicating that the people have more fear of the revolutionaries than sympathy for them.

A curt official announcement this morning that telegraphic communication with Hankow had been interrupted since sunset last night caused consternation throughout the capital. The wildest rumors of reverses to the imperial arms spread like wildfire, although no definite facts to support them were available. Much significance is attached to the fact that the Government has refrained from issuing any official announcement of a victory in yesterday's engagement.

The Board of Communications early last evening received two dispatches. One mentioned Siao-Kan, in Hu-Pe Province, as having been captured by the rebels; the other was interrupted while being transmitted.

Mutiny at Hankow Reported.

A report has reached here that the imperialist troops have refused to detrain at Hankow. Other reports state that the Chinese gunboats took little part in yesterday's fighting. Their inactivity is explained by the fact that a direct fire would have endangered their own troops, while a flank fire would have involved a bombardment over the foreign concessions.

Signs of discontent at Hankow were subsiding, according to the latest intelligence received, after yesterday's fight. The rebels, who retreated because of shortage of ammunition and the arrival of Government reinforcements, retired in a southerly direction. Some of them reentered the native city of Hankow, while others made their way toward Wu-Chang. The loyal troops were not sufficiently strong to press home any advantage they had gained.

Among foreigners, who may be regarded as impartial observers, it is generally believed that the situation at Hankow has not been appreciably improved by the events of yesterday. Government officials, however, continue to profess the utmost optimism. They declare that the severance of telegraphic communication for a period of only twelve or eighteen hours over a line 650 miles long is no ground for apprehension. They insist that the 21,000 troops and 70 guns which have left Peking for Hankow should be sufficient to swamp any revolutionary attack.

Official circles minimize the importance of yesterday's fighting at Hankow, describing it as a preliminary skirmish which forced the rebels to retreat. Natives of Hankow assert that the rebels are deserting.

The German Legation to-day denied the report that German troops had been engaged in fighting in the streets of Hankow.

Praise Military Organization.

The American attachés, Lieut. Col. Beach and Capt. Reeves, returned to Peking last night because they were not permitted to accompany the troops to Hankow. They say that the orderliness and precision with which the troop trains are being sent southward are admirable. The food supply seems to be abundant and the troops were in good spirits.

The rapidity with which 20,000 men have been dispatched to the south has surprised the military attachés. The Chinese Army, they say, seems to have learned the lessons of modern tactics well, but the fighting spirit is evidently still lacking in the race.

The fact that the rebels did not advance along the railway prior to the arrival of the imperial troops may not have been owing to lack of initiative, but to the possibility that the revolutionists would prove disloyal to the new republic which the leaders are bent upon creating. It is though that both armies are in danger of wholesale disaffection. No concrete idea, either imperial or republican, holds the minds of the troops, while general discontent with bad government affects both.

Lieut. Col. Beach, in speaking to-day of conditions in Hu-Pe, says that there is a good crossing on the Yang-tse five miles north of Wu-Chang, and it should not be difficult for the imperial troops to cross the river under the protection of the gunboats. He was informed at Hankow that the rebels had probably 12,000 soldiers.

Capt. Reeves gave it as his opinion that the imperials had made a great mistake in taking field instead of mountain guns, as lack of roads makes mule-carried cannon preferable.

There are conflicting reports regarding the First Division, which is entirely Manchu. It has been stated that this division started for Hankow, but reliable reports say that the Manchu regiments have all been retained in the immediate vicinity of the Forbidden City.

Emperor Still in Peking.

Reports that the infant Emperor has been taken to Tien-Tsin and secretly placed in one of the foreign concessions there are groundless.

The American Legation has asked the Chinese Government to insure the safe transportation of Americans from the Peking-Hankow Railway zone should disorders develop. Much alarm has been displayed all along the railway line owing to the wildest rumors, while no news has been made public to reassure the people.

An imperial edict to-day places all the naval and military forces in the region of the Yang-tse-Kiang under the control of Yuan Shi-Kai, who is directed to inflict rigorous punishment upon the rebel ringleaders and to appeal to "the misguided and coerced rebels" to renew their allegiance to the State.

Yuan will, it is expected, start to-morrow for Hankow to assume the Viceroyalty of the district formerly known as Hu-Kuang Province, but now divided into the Provinces of Hu-Pe and Hu-Nan. An edict issued to-day gives Yuan, as Viceroy of the disaffected provinces, authority over the War Minister, Yin-Tchang, who is now serving as a General in the field.

A strict censorship was established to-day on all transprovincial messages regarding military movements and also on all code messages except Consular and legation dispatches. The censorship is being criticised. The legations fear that the lack of news from China will give rise to most serious rumors and speculations in Europe and America. The Government has also considered the censoring of telegrams going abroad, but has not yet decided to institute such a restriction.

The attitude of the Chinese here toward foreigners cannot be criticised, and not the slightest danger is anticipated.

SHANGHAI, Oct. 19.—Six packed steamers arrived here from Hankow to-day bringing refugees. The steamer Belgravia was occupied exclusively by foreign passengers, to whom free accommodations were given at the direction of the Consuls in Hankow. The ship was so crowded that many of the passengers slept in long rows on the matting floors of the hold.

The refugees declare that the whole Yank-tse Valley from Hankow to Shanghai is in the hands of the rebels, with the possible exception of one or two of the larger cities, to which the provincial officials have retired from their available troops.

Massacre of Manchus.

The accounts of the revolutionary attack on Wu Chang given by the refugees emphasize particularly the massacre of the Manchus in that city. In the slaughter neither age nor sex was regarded, and it is doubtful, the refugees say, wheher a single representative of the Manchu race was left alive there. Similar slaughter of the Manchus followed in Hankow and Han-Yang when those cities fell.

The arrivals from Hankow report that 800 Manchus were massacred. To make sure of the identity of their victims the rebels took advantage of the slight difference in the Chinese and Manchu pronunciations. When a suspect was taken he was ordered to count, and the crucial test was his pronunciation of the numeral 6, which in Chinese is liushiliu.

Copies of The Central China Post which arrived in the Belgravia describe the early progress of the revolutionary movement. An editorial article comments at length on the manner in which the revolution was conducted. "The movement commands the admiration of all parties," says the editor, but he adds: "The massacre of the Manchus in our three cities is a ghastly blot on the reputation of the revolutionaries."

The run on the Imperial Bank here still continues, but the officials appear to have ample resources.

All telegrams from the interior are censored and consequently there are conflicting reports as to the result of the battle at Hankow yesterday. It must be remembered that telegrams to Peking pass through the hands of the imperialists, while messages for Shanghai are sent by way of Kiu-Kiang, which is in the hands of rebel sympathizers.

Many Rumors of Fighting.

LONDON, Friday, Oct. 20.—The lack of direct news from Hankow has given rise to anxiety as to the course of events. There are many surmises and rumors, the latter emanating chiefly from Shanghai. Some dispatches tell of another pitched battle, in which the rebels were successful, while in other dispatches the battle is reduced to a continuation of the skirmishes of the previous day.

One telegram says that the loyal troops have retired northward, but that is believed to be a strategic movement to effect a junction with Government troops arriving by the railroad. The dispatch continues:

"The situation does not denote the probability of any important battle for several days. All is quiet in the Hankow concessions. Bluejackets have been landed from the foreign warships, and the women and children are being sent out of the city as rapidly as possible."

Another dispatch says that the battle lasted ten hours, with victory resting with the rebels. Still another says that after fighting all day long the rebels reoccupied the railway station.

A dispatch from Peking says that Gen. Yin-Tchang crossed the Yang-tse last night with eight battalions of infantry and six batteries of artillery, and turned the rebel position. The investment, says the correspondent, is now complete, and hopes are entertained that a joint naval and military bombardment will be avoided. The rebels' collapse at any minute is possible.

The Daily Mail's Peking correspondent says that neither attachés nor correspondents have been allowed to proceed to the scene of the fighting. According to report, he continues, the imperialists have been repulsed ten miles north of Hankow.

Fear that the Chinese Admiral will bombard the rebel camp at Wu-Chang has disturbed missionary circles in London. Dr. Somerville, a member of the London mission at Wu-Chang, who is now here, points out that as Han-Yang and the native City of Hankow, which are opposite the rebel camps, are also in the hands of the revolutionists, the imperial gunboats will be precluded from taking up a position in the river between two fires, and so will be forced to throw their shells from the north. In this case the American Boone University and the American, Swedish, Wesleyan, and London mission hospitals and schools will all be in the direct line of the firing.

> Communication with Hankow still interrupted. Messages are forwarded by best means.
>
> The Chinese Administration gives notice that messages for places beyond Shanghai are only accepted at sender's risk, and subject to censorship. They must be in plain English. Reference to military affairs forbidden.

THINKS IT THE END OF CHINA.

Admiral Evans's View—Chinese on Pacific Coast Aiding Rebels.

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 19.—That the revolution in China, whether successful or not, is liable to involve the powers of the world in a conflict is the opinion of Rear Admiral Robley D. Evans, retired, who is now in Los Angeles. Admiral Evans left here for Washington to-night.

"It is probable," said the Admiral, "that this revolution will prove to be the beginning of the end of the Chinese Empire, just as the taking of Tripoli by Italy is in all probability the beginning of the end of the Ottoman Empire.

"It is difficult at this stage to forecast just what trend affairs will take. I think, however, that England will soon resent the interference with her trade in China, and tell the Chinese authorities that if they don't stop making trouble in her market place she will do it herself.

"The United States does not want to fight China, or any one else for that matter, but if disrespect is shown to Uncle Sam's boys the Celestials may be called upon to change their tactics, and change them quick. Then there are Germany, Japan, and Russia with interests in the Orient.

"The Japanese, unlike the Chinese, understand the meaning of patriotism. The Chinese in Hankow have absolutely no feeling of relationship for their brothers in Peking. There is little or no national spirit in China. I believe the revolution will fail for this very reason."

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 19.—Contributions to the funds of the Chinese revolutionists continue to pour into the coffers of the local agents of the rebels.

The headquarters of the Chung Hwa Republic and the Tai-Tung Yat Bo newspaper report that $500,000 has been forwarded to Penang, in the Straits Settlements, where the Executive Committee of the Young China Party is now located.

A Chinese laborer, Lee King-Hon, yesterday laid a sack containing $1,000 in gold, his life savings, on the counter of the revolutionary office. He received in return $2,000 in the paper currency of the republic. This currency will be redeemed in gold if the revolt is successful. Tong King-Chong, editor of a Chinese paper, reported the receipt yesterday of a check for $600 from Toronto.

Short hair has been made the distinguishing mark of the Chinese revolutionists, according to a message from Hankow received to-day. It says the revolutionary Government has given the male inhabitants of Hankow and Wu-Chang until Oct. 22 to cut off their queues. "This means that those refusing to loose their queues will lose their heads," says Ng Poon-Chew, a local editor and one of the leaders of the Young China movement here.

FOORD ON ASIATIC PERIL.

He Says Relations Between Orient and Occident Must Be Readjusted.

John Foord, Secretary of the American Asiatic Association, at the annual meeting of that body yesterday devoted his report to a review of the relations between China and this country. In it he said that a better understanding must be obtained between the Orient and the Occident, or Asia would become a menace to mankind. He said in the report:

"It has never been doubtful to men who have given the subject careful study that the relations of Asia to the rest of the world constitute the most difficult problem of the twentieth century. The somewhat bewildering forms which a new sentiment of nationality has taken in an awakened China do not tend to make the problem any simpler. But it should be obvious that the attitude of arrogant superiority assumed by one-third of the human family toward the other two-thirds cannot be indefinitely maintained.

"There must be a readjustment of the relations existing between the Orient and the Occident—a better understanding, a reciprocal surrender of suspicion and prejudice—unless the acquisition of modern aptitudes by the teeming population of Asia is to become a menace to the rest of mankind. As an interpreter between the two, as a reconciler of apparently conflicting interests, there is a great field for the influence of an association like this."

was when he first came to earth at Beverly Hills.

After the abandonment of the Chicago-to-New York flight Ely made exhibition flights in various parts of the country, but he did not again come into prominence until November of last year, when he made a flight from the deck of the scout cruiser Birmingham to a point on land near the Hampton Roads Yacht Clubhouse, on Willoughby Spit, near Norfolk, Va. Ely made that flight, the first of the kind ever attempted, in a driving rain and at a time when a heavy fog prevailed. On that occasion Ely also had a narrow escape. When he landed at Willoughby Spit he discovered that one of the propeller blades of his machine was bent. The damage had been done when the machine struck the water after its thirty-seven-foot drop from the deck of the Birmingham.

The Birmingham was not under way when Ely started on that epoch-making flight, a fact which caused Capt. Washington I. Chambers U. S. N., who was the head of the naval board under the auspices of which the flight was made, to remark:

"When Ely flew with such ease from a stationary ship," said Capt. Chambers, "it showed beyond doubt that his task would have been much simpler had the Birmingham been moving."

In January of this year Ely made a flight from Selfridge Field, twelve miles South of San Francisco, to the deck of the armored cruiser Pennsylvania of the Pacific fleet. The cruiser was thirteen miles from Selfridge Field. It was estimated that when Ely alighted on the deck of the big cruiser he was going thirty-five miles an hour. After a visit of an hour to the officers of the Pennsylvania Ely rose in his machine from the ship and flew back to Selfridge Field.

"It was easy enough," said Ely after he returned to the land, "and I believe the trick could be turned nine times out of ten."

Ely became a popular idol in San Francisco after his land-to-ship flight. He made many other notable flights in that city, in one of which he was the bearer of a bunch of flowers to Mme. Tetrazzini, the opera singer.

He did some more flying at San Diego, and when the troops were sent to the Mexican border he was sent to San Antonio, Texas, to supervise the training of the army officers who had been designated to operate with the Curtiss machines bought by the Government. One of those army officers was the late Lieut. George E. M. Kelly, who was killed on the morning of May 10 last at San Antonio in a machine similar to the one in which Ely met his death at Macon yesterday. Ely was an officer in the National Guard of California, and it was said that he was to have been made a Major in recognition of his work in military aeronautics.

Ely's last appearance in New York was at the recent meet at Nassau Boulevard, where he made a number of fine flights. Recently while making an exhibition flight at Canton Ohio, he lost control of his machine and crashed to the ground, hitting a Wright-Burgess machine belonging to Harry N. Atwood, the winner of THE NEW YORK TIMES Trophy for the Boston to Washington flight, who was exhibiting in Canton at the same time.

NEW ENDURANCE RECORD.

Gill Stays in the Air More Than 4 1-4 Hours at St. Louis.

ST. LOUIS, Mo., Oct. 19.—Howard W. Gill, in a biplane, broke the American endurance record at Kinloch Field here this afternoon, by remaining in the air 4 hours 16 minutes and 35 seconds. The record, made by the late St. Croix Johnstone, was 4 hours and 1 minute.

Gill ascended at 12:49:55 o'clock and descended at 5:06:30. His flight was principally over the field, but at times he flew over a triangular course of more than thirty miles.

RODGERS AT WACO, TEXAS.

Transcontinental Flier Makes Fast Time and Races with an Eagle.

WACO, Texas, Oct. 19.—C. P. Rodgers, who is trying to fly from the Atlantic to the Pacific, got here from Dallas to-day, flying 100 miles in ninety-five minutes, and landing at 4 o'clock this afternoon. His only stop was for gasoline at Hillsboro, thirty-four miles north of here. He will resume his journey to-morrow morning, with Austin, 108 miles distant, as the next stopping point.

Rodgers had intended starting earlier from Dallas, so he could get to Austin, but sightseers, in crowding about the biplane, damaged the right plane, and he was compelled to postpone his start to make repairs.

Rising 1,000 feet high, Rodgers left Dallas soon after 2 o'clock, announcing that he would try to reach Austin, 229 miles away, but changed his mind after starting.

The first report received was of his passing over Waxahachie at 2:50 P. M., having made thirty-two miles from Dallas in about forty minutes. Half an hour later he was passing over Hillsboro, sixty-six miles on his way, which he had done in eighty minutes.

On his arrival Rodgers told of a race with an eagle for twenty miles at express speed. The bird, he said, was nearly a thousand feet below him, and after its long flight it rose and made directly for the machine. When within a few feet of him, he said, it suddenly swooped down and passed out of sight.

DIRIGIBLES' LONG TRIPS.

Two Latest Zeppelin Airships Complete Journeys in Germany.

BERLIN, Oct. 19.—Two Zeppelin airships, the most recently constructed, made long trips to-day.

The Schwaben I. ascended at Düsseldorf at 4:45 A. M., on a voyage to Berlin by way of Bremen and Hamburg. The Military dirigible, Zeppelin IX., left Baden-Baden last evening for a twenty hours' trip through the Rhine Valley to Coblenz and thence southward to the frontier region. A military commission was aboard.

BALANCES AERO WITH BODY.

Special to The New York Times.

DUBUQUE, Iowa, Oct. 19.—Hugh Robinson, who is trying to fly from Minneapolis to New Orleans, reached this place at 1:56 this afternoon, having started at 8:17 A. M. from Winona, Wis., where he had been laid up since Tuesday noon because of an accident and subsequent bad weather. On the way to-day the airman had another accident in midair and only his coolness, skill, and resourcefulness saved his life.

Half way between Winona and La Crosse, his first stop, a bolt in the front controller of his machine loosened and fell from the rigging, so that the front control was useless. The craft was 3,000 feet in the air at the time and making a mile or more a minute. Robinson realized the gravity of the situation, but without checking his engines leaned far forward in his seat and found that he could direct the course of the airship by throwing his weight forward and bending all his energies to the manipulation of the rear control.

For a time it looked as though he would have to stay in the air until the gasoline was exhausted and then take his chances in a sheer-drop of 3,000 feet, but at 8:43 he slid into shore at La Crosse after a corkscrew descent and a short spurt on the surface of the river.

He repaired the machine at La Crosse, and at 10 o'clock left that place for Prairie du Chien, 60 miles distant. He made that distance in exactly one hour, and a little after 1 o'clock started again for Dubuque.

He reached here at 2 P. M. and will spend the night in Dubuque. He is now 203 miles from Minneapolis. He intends to get away from Dubuque at 8 to-morrow morning.

M'NAMARA LAWYERS SEEK TO SHOW BIAS

JURY BOX IS NOW FULL

Three Other Men Are Under a Challenge for Bias, Subject to Judge Bordwell's Ruling.

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 19.—Seven court days after the beginning of the McNamara murder trial the State had its first opportunity for the examination of prospective jurors to-day. Attorney Clarence S. Darrow, chief of counsel for the defense, turned over the full jury box, reserving the privilege of examining one man further if he liked.

Three other men are under challenge for bias, awaiting a ruling from Judge Bordwell. The State within a few minutes successfully challenged John W. Roberts, a real estate dealer, who had fixed scruples against capital punishment, and began the examination of T. W. Adams, a retired real estate dealer. No talesman was called to-day to replace Roberts.

The list of talesmen to-night stood:

GREEN, F. D., orange grower.
ADAMS, T. W., retired real estate dealer.
MANNING, SEABORN, rancher.
McINTOSH, A. R., retired banker.
BAIN, ROBERT, carpenter
DECKER, ERNEST F., landscape gardner.
ROBINSON, EDWARD C., carpenter and small contractor.
QUACKENBUSH, H. Y., retired carpenter.

Challenged for bias:

McKEE, GEORGE, retired builder.
JENSEN, OTTO A., farmer.
SHOWER, E. J., paperhanger.

Quackenbush is subject to further examination by Mr. Darrow, to learn more of his qualifications to try James B. McNamara, who is charged with the murder of Charles Haggerty, one of the twenty-one victims of The Times disaster.

Deputy G. Ray Horton, who examined the talesmen on behalf of the State, disposed of Roberts, who had been made the subject of favorable comment from opposing counsel, with seeming regret, questioning him at length to learn whether his views on the death penalty were such as to prevent his serving on a jury.

Roberts finally declared flatly that he would not vote a conviction which carried with it a death penalty, and he was excused.

"You're a Socialist, I believe?" was the first question put to Adams. He said he had been one for ten years; that he favored a change in governmental conditions; that many laws now enforced in his opinion would be better not enforced, and that he was opposed to all forms of violence.

"You understand that in this case the death penalty is involved?"

"Yes."

"And you are naturally opposed to it, aren't you?"

"I don't know that I would be in a case of that kind," he said.

"But your feelings are averse to the death penalty?"

"No; I don't think my political belief has anything to do with the case more than any other man's."

"It is not a question of your political, but of your personal, feelings," said Judge Bordwell, and Adams said he had a feeling against the death penalty, but could do his full duty as juror.

"Can you do your full duty as well as if Harriman and Darrow—counsel for the defense, who are Socialists—were not mixed up in it?"

"Yes."

"You've made an investigation of what someties is known in this country as the so-called problem of labor and capital?"

"No," said Adams. "I'm not a very good Socialist. I don't keep up to date."

He said he formed one opinion regarding the explosion about a week after it occurred, but that reading a Socialist publication had altered it, and he now believed the Times Building was blown up by gas.

Attorney Horton showed him an extensive statement, bearing the signature of B. F. Bond, one of Adams's neighbors, who said the witness had told him, among other things, that he could not believe the Times Building was blown up by gas. Adams said he did not remember the occasion on which the statement was said to have been made, but recollected having said something to Bond.

"Does this statement express your views at that time?" asked Attorney Horton.

"Yes," said Adams.

His examination will be resumed to-morrow.

Ordeal for Robinson.

Edward C. Robinson, a talesman who says he is opposed to labor unions and believes that the Los Angeles Times Building was blown up by dynamite, underwent extensive examination to-day at the hands of Attorney Lecompte Davis, who was seeking a chance for challenge for cause.

"Now, are your impressions as to labor unions fixed?"

"Yes."

"Feeling as you do on organized labor, could you if chosen as a juror in this case—would you be inclined from what you know of labor unions and the fight between The Times and labor unions and strikes, to attribute the explosion to labor unions?"

The State objected that the defense was seeking to get promises in advance of a juror's opinion on testimony yet to be introduced.

The court advised counsel for the defense to reframe the question.

"Knowing that the defendant belonged to a labor union and was arrested by Burns and brought here, and knowing of McManigal's statement, would you be inclined to attribute it more to him because he is a member of a labor union?"

Again the State objected, and the court again advised a different wording.

"Would you, if sworn as a juror and it should be proved that The Times was destroyed by dynamite placed by human agencies, would you be inclined to believe any member of organized labor did it?"

"Not necessarily so."

"Well, it would be the first impression of your mind?"

The State objected and the court sustained the objection.

"Would you, if it should be proved The Times was destroyed by dynamite, would you deem it a material question that the defendant was a member of organized labor and would you take it in consideration in judging whether or not the defendant was guilty?"

"Irrelevant and immaterial," interjected District Attorney Fredericks, and the court again sustained it.

"If it were disclosed to you during the trial that The Times was destroyed by dynamite and human agency, would you give any weight at all to the fact that the defendant was a member of organized labor?"

Objection here, however, was overruled.

"No," was Robinson's answer.

Talesmen's Opinions.

Examination of Talesman F. D. Green, a fruit grower, followed. He said he had read the report of the city committee of investigation, which alleged dynamite as the cause of The Times explosion.

"Would the fact that the defendant was a member of a labor union have any effect on your judgment as to his guilt or innocence?"

"Yes."

"Ever read an article by Mr. Burns on the case?"

"Yes."

"Would the fact that Mr. Burns attempted to show this man guilty influence you in any way in judging the defendant?"

"No."

"Would the fact that Francis J. Heney in a speech at St. Louis said that he believed McNamara guilty because Burns said so justify in your mind a similar belief?"

"No."

Green was temporarily passed.

E. J. Shower, a painter and paperhanger, was the next talesman examined. He said he was a Republican, but took no active part in politics.

"Have you any feeling or bias against labor unions?"

"Yes, I have."

"You feel that labor unions are not for the welfare of society?"

"Yes, I believe I do."

"This is founded on personal observation from the manner in which unions are conducted in California and other parts of the United States?"

"Yes."

"Do you have any belief as to what the feeling of organized labor is toward The Times?"

"I understand there has been a fight going on."

"Do you believe that labor unions were embittered against The Times?"

"My idea is that they are."

"Your feeling was that they would look with pleasure on the destruction of The Times?"

Objection was made to the question. The court ruled the question might be answered.

"I should think they would," was the answer.

At the afternoon session the defense challenged Shower for cause, on the ground that he was prejudiced against labor unions, and had declared he did not think he could give the defendant a fair and impartial trial.

Shower said he believed the officers of labor unions as a rule had not much respect for the law; that members of organized labor destroyed The Times building, and that he had the impression that James B. McNamara was the guilty man.

Judge Walter Bordwell is expected to rule any day now on two peremptory challenges made yesterday by the defense on the ground that a talesman who believes The Los Angeles Times building was blown up by dynamite cannot be a fair juror.

This position is taken because of the defense's position that the explosion in The Times building was caused by gas, and that counsel defending James B. McNamara on trial for the murder of Charles G. Haggerty, who was killed in the disaster, should not be compelled to show otherwise in order to get a fair trial. The State contends that so long as any juror has no opinion as to McNamara's guilt or innocence, he may be a fair juror.

Judge Bordwell, it was explained, need not rule on the point until the jury box is filled with talesmen, not otherwise ineligible for cause, from the standpoint of the defense.

The course of challenges, under California procedure, promises much work ahead before a jury is impaneled, regardless of the way the court may rule. The defense, which tentatively has passed seven talesmen as to cause, but may return to some of them, will continue until the quota of twelve is obtained. Then the State, under District Attorney John D. Fredericks, will go over these twelve, to see if any are to be challenged for cause.

Whenever one man is successfully challenged another will take his place, and the defense will first examine him, followed by the State. When finally twelve men, all having escaped successful challenge for cause, are in the jury box, each side will have the privilege of peremptory challenge. Of these the State has ten and the defense twenty. The State will challenge first, then the defense, and so on alternatively, until the State's ten peremptory challenges are used up.

This will leave the defense with ten challenges, to be used on other talesmen as they replace those peremptorily removed.

already made two glaring errors in nominating weather for the blue ribbon baseball classic, made another brave and encouraging guess for to-morrow's atmospheric conditions and said: "The weather to-morrow will be fine." It rained hard here yesterday and to-day, and even if the sun is shining brightly in the morning the diamond is sure to be water soaked and heavy.

Thousands of fans from out of town were sorely disappointed at the second postponement to-day, although the ball players of both clubs rather welcomed the chance to get a little rest before the fourth clash of the thrilling series. Although the pitching selection for New York to-day would possibly have been Ames or Marquard, the additional day's rest makes Mathewson a possibility for to-morrow's game against the Indian Bender. Tuesday's eleven-inning game at the Polo Grounds was a severe strain on "Big Six," for he was forced to use more curves against the Athletic batsmen than in any game he has pitched this season.

Manager McGraw stated to-night that no selection would be made until he saw how the different boxmen warmed up to-morrow, but it would not be surprising if Matty or Marquard tried his skill against Connie Mack's troupe of .300 hitters. "Rube" is confident of winning if McGraw will give him another chance.

Confidence in the Athletics' ability to bat their way to the world's championship runs high here, and with victories over McGraw's best two pitchers, local fans do not believe that the Giants can ever stop them.

A small group of rabid fans braved the storm of last night and stayed in the doorways near Shibe Park all night in order to get a good place in the line of bleacherites this morning. There are no tickets to be had now except from the speculators, who want double prices and find no trouble in disposing of them.

Speculating in tickets is carried on openly on Broad Street, and the scalpers were willing to give big prices to get extra tickets. Judging from the scarcity of seats, another record crowd will see the postponed game to-morrow, which will bring the teams to New York on Saturday for the fifth game of the series. To-morrow's contest will be the last in which the players will share the receipts. The management of the clubs will take 90 per cent. of the receipts of the games after the fourth game and the National Commission will take 10 per cent. The players of both clubs are naturally elated over the large receipts, and after to-morrow's game it is likely that the players will divide in the neighborhood of $130,000, which will give the losing players a larger bonus than the winning players have ever received in former World's Series.

The Giants put in a quiet day, many of them going to the theatre in the afternoon and evening.

Rube Oldring, the Athletics' centre fielder, received word to-day of the death of his sister in Mount Vernon, N. Y. Oldring went to his home in that place to-day, but will come back here to-morrow and play in the game. If Oldring should decide to stay out of the game, Strunk will take his place in the centre garden.

McGRAW AND MERKLE PUNISHED

Censure and Fine for Abuse of Umpire in Tuesday's Game.

John J. McGraw, manager of the New York Giants, was censured yesterday by the National Baseball Commission for his conduct in the game between the Giants and the Philadelphia Athletics at the Polo Grounds Tuesday afternoon. McGraw took decided exception to several of Umpire Connolly's decisions, and in the tenth inning, after Merkle was called out at second base on his attempted steal, the New York manager became unusually noisy and demonstrative. In walking from his position on the first base coaching line to the New York bench McGraw passed very close to the box which the members of the National Commission occupied. Whether McGraw realized it or not, his language could be heard, and his actions were plainly of the kind which influence a crowd to abuse an umpire.

Manager McGraw was not the only New Yorker to come in for official censure for umpire baiting. Fred Merkle, usually one of the mildest of the McGrawites, was fined $100 for his talk to Umpire Connolly on the same play. This amount will be missing from Merkle's check when the player receives his share of the world's series money.

Both players were notified that a repetition of their conduct would result in their disbarment from all remaining games of the series. In McGraw's case the commission added that a repetition would result in a heavy fine. The following letters were sent to the two Giants:

NEW YORK, Oct. 18, 1911.

Mr. John J. McGraw, Manager, New York National League Baseball Team, New York City:

Dear Sir—In the discharge of its duty to maintain order and discipline in the series now in progress for the championship of the world, as required by the rules and regulations, jointly enacted by the National and American Leagues, on Feb. 16, 1905, for the control of this event, the National Commission has taken official cognizance of your unwarranted conduct and language while passing from the coacher's line to your team's bench during the last few innings of the game played on the Polo Grounds on Tuesday, Oct. 17, 1911.

Notice is hereby served on you that a repetition of this misconduct on your part will at once be called to the attention of the umpire-in-chief in the game in which it occurs, with instructions to remove you from the field, and the commission will disbar you from all subsequent games. In addition to this penalty a severe fine will be inflicted upon you.

The commission will not permit a manager or player to attempt to influence by word or deed public opinion against a capable and conscientious official of the game, and unless decisions are accepted by you in a spirit of sportsmanship, you will be dealt with as indicated in this letter. Respectfully,

AUGUST HERRMANN,
B. B. JOHNSON,
T. J. LYNCH,
National Commission.

The letter to Merkle read as follows:

Mr. Fred C. Merkle, New York National League Baseball Club, New York City:

Dear Sir—You are hereby notified that a fine of $100 has been imposed against you by the National Commission for using improper and indecent language in the game played on the Polo Grounds, in New York City, on Tuesday, Oct. 17, 1911, and you are warned that a repetition of this offense will result in your disbarment from the remaining games of the present world's series. Respectfully,

AUGUST HERRMANN,
B. B. JOHNSON,
T. J. LYNCH,
National Commission.

CONNIE MACK DOESN'T CARE.

Giants May Pitch Any One, He Says, but Athletics Will Win Series.

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, Penn., Oct. 19.—Connie Mack, manager of the Athletics, is anxious to have the world's baseball series completed as quickly as possible and will play to-morrow's game under anything like favorable conditions, but he is inclined to smile at the report that the delay has favored John McGraw and his Giants more than it has the Athletics.

"The defeat of Christy Mathewson in New York on the Polo Grounds by Jack Coombs was all that I could ask," he said. "We have now beaten both Marquard and Mathewson, and I don't care who pitches for the Giants in the other games of the series, only I expect to see my team hit either Marquard or Mathewson hard if they go on the hill to pitch. I have Bender, Plank, and Coombs ready. Any of them can go out to-morrow and make good.

"I am sorry it rained to-day, because the fourth game is the last one the players figure in, and I would like to see the Athletics get a lot of money for their hard season's playing. I will admit that when the Giants won the first game with Mathewson in the box I thought the series might go the seven games. It still may go that far, but I don't think so. This rest will allow Frank Baker to heal up the cuts he received from the two spikings Fred Snodgrass gave him. Jack Barry got a bad bump in New York, and a few days off the field will help him. My players have worked every day, and they will be fit to-morrow if the weather permits us to play."

Capt. Harry Davis, when questioned about the report that he was going to manage Cleveland next season, said:

"This is a fine time for them to spring a thing like that on me. Here I am fighting for the Athletics, and some one tells some one that I am traded, sold, slaughtered, released, or bought, and immediately everybody sits down and figures how I am going to go. Connie Mack has not told me that I could get away, even if I had the chance, so I will not say any more."

THE TICKET SCANDAL.

Ban Johnson Would Investigate, but It Is Not Likely to be Done.

That there is a wide difference of opinion between President Thomas J. Lynch of the National League and President B. B. Johnson of the American League as to whether the methods of the New York Baseball Club is disposing of tickets for world's series games should be investigated, became apparent yesterday. As these two men are members of the National Commission, which alone has the power to investigate, their views on the matter are decidedly interesting. Mr. Lynch says that there is no proof of any collusion between the club and speculators, and consequently no cause for an investigation. Mr. Johnson feels that the speculators must have got an inside hold on the tickets and that there is reason for an investigation.

The block of 100 empty seats in the upper gallery directly behind third base during Tuesday's game has caused considerable talk since the game, as it did while the contest was going on. That the New York Club had disposed of these seats was considered certain. The impression was general that they had been taken from one of the speculators who was placed under arrest. There seemed to be no doubt that the entire block of seats had been under the control of one person, and it further increased the suspicions of many that tickets had been sold in whole blocks to speculators.

In speaking of the proposed investigation yesterday Mr. Lynch said:

"So far we have had no proof that the New York Club did not conduct the selling properly, and until we do it would be foolish for us to go ahead with any investigation. You tell us that the speculators have blocks of seats for the games. But when it comes right down to it you have no proof. If any one will hand us, say, fifteen seats all together which were bought from a single speculator then we might have something to worry about. As it is we can do nothing in the way of an investigation.

"It is impossible to devise a scheme for a sale of such proportions and keep speculators from getting the tickets. The speculators are bound to get these tickets, and no one has yet figured out a plan to prevent them. John T. Brush offered $50,000 for such a plan."

Mr. Johnson spoke along decidedly different lines. When asked his ideas regarding an investigation he said:

"If I have my way there will be an investigation into the manner in which the sale of tickets was conducted. I believe that the speculators were 'on the inside' and that the sale was not conducted properly. I have not made an investigation alone, and I don't believe I have any more information on the subject than the other Commissioners. I do not say there will be an investigation, but I say that I think there should be one. I may have something more to say on the subject to-morrow."

OLDRING'S SISTER DEAD.

Athletics' Centre Fielder May Not Come Home for the Funeral.

Special to The New York Times.

MOUNT VERNON, N. Y., Oct. 19.—Miss Lillian Oldring, daughter of Thomas and Sarah Oldring of 125 Monroe Street and sister of "Rube" Oldring, the famous centre fielder of the Philadelphia Athletics, died of tuberculosis at her home to-day. The news of his sister's death was wired to Oldring in Philadelphia when, with the members of his team, he was preparing for the fourth game of the world's series.

A report from Philadelphia states that Oldring will remain with his team until after the series is over in spite of his grief. Oldring saw his sister last on the Sunday following the first game of the world's series in New York City. He came to Mount Vernon and spent the day with her. They were much attached to one another. Funeral services will be held Saturday evening.

HEARST ANNOUNCES HE'S A DEMOCRAT

Back in the Party Fold, He Says, and Calls for Aid to Drive Murphy Out.

HIS LEAGUERS DON'T CHEER

Silent When He Tells Carnegie Hall Audience of His Return to Regularity—Speaks Also on East Side.

William R. Hearst is back in the Democratic fold. He made the announcement himself last night in an address at the opening rally of the Fusion campaign, held at Carnegie Hall. Coupled with the announcement was a summons to the independent Democrats to oust Murphy.

"I am speaking to my friends to-night as a good citizen, I hope, and also as a good Democrat," said Mr. Hearst in bringing his speech to a finish. "Mr. Murphy and his kind drove me out of the Democratic Party five years ago, but the commendable course of the National Democracy has brought me back into the fold.

"I am registering as a Democrat, I am speaking as a Democrat, and as a Democrat I am going to fight the un-Democratic principles and policies of Murphy and Tammany Hall. I believe that the greatest benefit that the loyal Democrats of New York State can confer upon the National Democracy is to free it of the hindrance and handicap of Murphy and Tammany Hall.

"In appointing his State Chairman yesterday Mr. Murphy read all honest and independent Democrats out of the party. I call upon all honest and independent Democrats to unite and read Mr. Murphy out of our party. Let us have a Democratic Party which is free from Mr. Murphy's control, which is in harmony with the Democracy of the Nation, and which can be supported by all loyal Democrats and honest men."

Mr. Hearst made his speech before an audience composed almost exclusively of Republicans and Independence Leaguers. It was plain that the announcement that from now on the Independence League would be a cast-off organization was not received with feelings of joy and satisfaction. There was scarcely any applause when Mr. Hearst had finished speaking, and he beat a hasty retrat from the platform while the band was playing and the crowd was flocking to the doors.

Mr. Hearst was the last speaker at the Carnegie Hall meeting. Prior to addressing the audience there he had spoken before two meetings on the east side. At both of these meetings he made the identical speech that he delivered later at Carnegie Hall. But for some reason he withheld any reference to his return to the Democratic fold until he faced the larger but not more enthusiastic audience at the big Fusion rally.

Mr. Hearst's Speech.

In the earlier part of his speech Mr. Hearst paid his respect to Tammany Hall and its leader, Mr. Murphy, and warmly praised the Independence League candidates on the Fusion ticket. He said in part:

> My friends, this is an important elecetion, but a simple one. The issue is clear, your duty is plain and the result will be far-reaching.
>
> Mr. Murphy has been in general charge of the government of the city and of the State of New York for the past year.
>
> In this election you will have the fullest oportunity to express your apvorpal or disapproval of Mr. Murphy's administration.
>
>
> If you want to indorse his dictation in local affairs, his domination in State affairs and his personal direction of legislative affairs, vote for the Murphy ticket.
>
> If you want to enlarge Murphy's sphere and to encourage his interference in judicial affairs, vote the Murphy judicial ticket.
>
>
> If you don't think taxation is heavy enough, vote for Murphy. He will appreciate your confidence and do his best to make it heavier.
>
> If you don't think rents are high enough, vote for Murphy. He will make it his pleasure and his profit to raise them higher.
>
> If you don't think the government is bad enough, vote for Murphy. Trust in him to make it worse. You will not be disappointed. All Murphy needs is a little encouragement, and every vote you give him is indorsement for his past acts and encouragement for future efforts in the same direction.
>
> But, my friends, if you object to Murphy's evil methods and to his impudent activity in your public affairs, vote against the Murphy ticket.
>
> If you think Murphy for Mayor and Murphy for Governor and Murphy for the Legislature is enough Murphy, if you don't want Murphy for the judiciary, too, then vote against the Murphy ticket.
>
> There is no doubt about the superiority of the candidates upon the Fusion ticket over the candidates upon the Tammany ticket, but the issue involved in this election is greater and broader than that. The vital question before you is the continuance of Murphy and Murphyism in control of public affairs.
>
> Murphy and Tammany have made a bold and defiant attempt to rob you of your political rights and liberties, and so to bind and gag you that you would be unable effectively to protest. If you do not rebuke such intolerable insolence you can hardly be said to deserve the liberties you have.
>
> To my mind an attempt to curtail the political rights and liberties of the citizens is the greatest treason that a republic can know.
>
> Tammany has been indicted for this treason by the vigilant defenders of the public; it has been convicted by the highest court of the State, and it should be punished by the citizens with all the severity that so vile a political crime deserves.

Fusionists Denounce Gaynor.

It was the opening rally of the Fusion campaign, called for the purpose of ratifying the Fusion ticket, which has the support of the Republican County organization, the Democratic League, and the Independence League. Very little was said, however, about the candidates. Controller William A. Prendergast, President John Purroy Mitchel of the Aldermen, and Borough Presidents George McAneny of Manhattan and Cyrus C. Miller of the Bronx, who were the principal speakers, gave most of their attention to what they had been doing or trying to do as members of the Board of Estimate and in denouncing Mayor Gaynor. Mention of the Mayor's name by some of the speakers provoked hisses in the audience on one or two occasions.

For a rainy night and an "off year" it was a large audience. The orchestra space in Carnegie Hall and both tiers of boxes were filled, with a small overflow in the two upper galleries. It was a fairly responsive and enthusiastic audience, too. Mr. Hearst and Controller Prendergass received the lion's share of the applause.

Ex-Lieut. Gov. M. Linn Bruce, one of the foremost "regular" in the Republican ranks, presided. But aside from him there was scarcely a Republican of any prominence in the audience. It was noticeable that whenever the names of Clarence J. Shearn and John J. Hopper, the candidates on the Fusion ticket furnished by the Hearst Independence League, were mentioned, the applause was much stronger than when reference was made to any of the Republican candidates. Mr. Hopper attended the meeting as one of the speakers.

Mr. Shearn sat in one of the boxes. Henry De Forest Baldwin, an independent Democrat, named for Justice of the Supreme Court on the Fusion ticket, sat in another box with Col. Robert Grier Monroe, head of the local branch of the Democratic League.

The Rev. Dr. Parkhurst was seen before the speechmaking began in one of the first tier boxes looking down upon the audience, which at that time was by no means large. He left shortly afterward and before the meeting was called to order.

"The Fusion movement," said Mr. Bruce in his opening speech, "is an alliance of all the anti-Tammany forces. It is a protest against the domination of Tammany Hall in this city and in this State. Some have said that this is an off year, but the conflict between Tammany Hall and the forces which are making for good Government in this city and in this State is irrepressible. There can be no off year in that fight. This fight began two years ago and was carried forward to success then. The present fight is the key to the contest to come two years from now. The anti-Tammany forces are in the majority in each borough in the city. If Tammany Hall is enabled to control the Government of this city or of any borough, it is due absolutely to the indifference of the people and to nothing else."

Mitchel Answers the Mayor.

Mr. Bruce introduced President Mitchel of the Aldermen as the first speaker. He was warmly applauded. He brought hisses from the audience when in the beginning of his speech he mentioned Mayor Gaynor's name. This was in connection with the statement alleged to have been made by Mayor Gaynor yesterday in approving the teachers' equal salary bill. The Mayor is reported to have said that the $3,000,000 thus added to the budget could be saved if the Interborough Subway offer had been accepted.

"I know," said Mr. Mitchel, "that there undoubtedly is due a measure of respect to the man who holds the high office of Mayor. I know also that there is a measure of respect due from a man of my years to a man of the Mayor's years. But there are times when courtesy and good taste and respect must be thrown aside in the interest of the people, and when a lie deliberately uttered for the purpose of deceiving the people must be nailed.

"This afternoon the Mayor is quoted as saying that we could save $4,500,000—more than necessary to cover the increase in the budget for the equalization of teachers' salaries—by having an operating company put up $100,000,000 for subway construction instead of building with city money. The Mayor's statement that by accepting the Interborough's offer of a year ago that some of the money could have been saved from the tax budget and applied to teachers' salaries is unqualifiedly, deliberately, and intentionally false."

Mr. Mitchel said that the Fusion members of the Board of Estimate had received not the slightest assistance from Mayor Gaynor in their efforts to redeem their election pledges by giving the city a proper Subway development and a business administration. He featured the Gaynor Charter as one of the very worst things the Mayor had undertaken to promote contrary to the interests of the people of this city.

"If the defeat of that Charter is to be more than a temporary victory then you must send to Albany men who cannot be bought or intimidated into voting for the cut-throat charter of Tammany Hall and Mayor Gaynor," said Mr. Mitchel amid great applause.

Borough President McAneny devoted most of his speech to an accounting of his administration during the two years he has been President of the Borough of Manhattan. He said it was particularly fortunate that the present anti-Tammany movement had been begun by an organization of Democrats—the Democratic League.

Prendergast Hailed as Next Mayor.

Controller Prendergast was introduced by Chairman Bruce as a city official who was loved largely for the enemies he had made. "Those enemies drafted a charter principally to get rid of him, but he is here to-night, and the Charter is not."

The Controller was wildly cheered as he arose to speak. One man in the audience asked who would be the next Mayor. The audience roared the name of Controller Prendergast in reply.

Mr. Prendergast reviewed the work of the Tammany Legislature, paying special attention to the Levy Election bill.

"I can see no tangible difference between stuffing a ballot box by brute force and interfering with the rights of the voters by legislation," said the Controller. "I can see no tangible difference between the unfortunate McKane of Gravesend and Boss Murphy of Tammany Hall. We need a Republican Assembly this year as a bulwark against such depredations as have been written into the legislative record this year."

Amid much applause and laughter the Controller referred to Park Commissioner Stover as a man who did not have the administrative ability to run a peanut stand, and he suggested that a business man in the Mayor's office would be much better for the city than a ready letter writer.

HEARST ON THE EAST SIDE.

Audience of 500 Hears Him and Cheers Assemblyman Harry Kopp.

In Henington Hall on Second Avenue, about five hundred residents of the east side heard Mr. Hearst pay his compliments to the leader of Tammany Hall. They also heard him tell what a good thing for the citizens of New York it was that Clarence J. Shearn was forced, against his will and the will of his employer and of his family, into accepting a fusion nomination for the Supreme Court, as in his speech in Carnegie Hall.

After Mr. Hearst, William A. DeFord, John Temple Graves, and John J. Hopper had expressed their views about direct nominations to the crowd, Assemblyman Harry Kopp, the district's favorite son, arose to tell them about fighting Murphy in Albany. He denounced the boxing bill which Murphy, and "Murphy's dodo, Mr. Dix" forced upon the public.

"Why, this bill," he said, "pushes our boasted civilization clear back to the Roman gladiators." One woman in the gallery who pulled her shawl closer about her as the word "gladiator" was shouted, asked the woman sitting next to her, "what is it, a gladiator," but before she could receive an answer she caught the fever of cheering and joined with the crowd. Dr. William I. Sirovich presided.

ORGANIZED TO FIGHT MURPHY

Citizens' Committee to Oppose Assemblymen Who Voted for Charter.

The Citizens' Committee of One Hundred, organized to oppose the re-election of Assemblymen who voted for the Gaynor-Murphy Charter and to work for the election of men who will oppose the legislative programme of Charles F. Murphy, will meet at the Manhattan Hotel to-night. These have already agreed to serve:

A small central committee will be appointed to-night to take general control of the campaign. This committee will appropriate funds for the work to be done in different sections of the city under the direction of local committees. A Brooklyn campaign committee of about seven members will also be appointed. It is likely that a single campaign committee will be appointed for Manhattan and the Bronx. An appeal for funds will be issued, with a definite pledge that the money will not be used for any campaign except that on the Assembly.

PURSUING ELECTION BOARD.

District Attorney Thinks Mr. Gilbert's Complaint Worthy of Investigation.

Abraham S. Gilbert, counsel for the Republican County Committee, will appear before Magistrate Appleton in the Judge's Chambers at the Criminal Court Building this morning to testify in the proceedings he brought against J. Gabriel Britt, President of the Board of Elections. Mr. Gilbert charged Mr. Britt with refusing to allow him and other Republican officials to examine the Tammany certificate of nominations which were filed with the Board of Elections last Friday evening.

District Attorney Whitman, who recently established a special bureau to hear election complaints, decided that Mr. Gilbert's charges should be thoroughly investigated, and yesterday he assigned Assistants De Ford and Stryker to represent him at the hearing.

DERNA BOMBARDED BY ITALY'S SHIPS

Turks Haul Down Flag After Forts Are Destroyed—Homs Also Shelled.

PORTE EXPECTS MEDIATION

Vizier Says Powers' Replies Are More Favorable Than Was Reported—Italians Have Lost Many Men.

TRIPOLI, Oct. 19.—The town of Derna was bombarded yesterday by the Italian squadron.

The forts were destroyed before the Turkish flag was hauled down.

A heavy sea was running, which prevented the landing of forces, but it is expected that the troops were able to land at both Bengazi and Derna to-day.

An Italian squadron yesterday also bombarded Homs, about sixty miles east of Tripoli. After a few shots the Turks surrendered.

CHIASSO, Oct. 19.—Private reports which have been received here say that Gen. Caneva, the military commander of the Italian forces in Tripoli, has already begun his advance against the Turks encamped in the hills. A column of Italian infantry, preceded by cavalry, scouts, and supported by artillery, is, it is said, marching in that direction.

It is difficult, however, to ascertain the truth of these reports, as the strictest secrecy is being maintained with regard to the military movements.

CONSTANTINOPLE, Oct. 19.—The Turkish squadron of nine units, the departure of which from the Golden Horn on Sunday was surrounded with mystery, is anchored to-day in the Dardanelles.

The Chamber of Deputies to-day by a vote of 125 to 60 adopted a motion to the effect that it had confidence in the Government to safeguard effectively the sovereign rights of the Sultan in Tripoli and the integrity of the empire. The chamber also expressed confidence in the Cabinet.

The Grand Vizier outlined the policy of the Cabinet with regard to Tripoli and said that it was the Government's intention to continue to offer passive resistance to Italy, while persisting in its diplomatic efforts to obtainn an equitable settlement. He added that the replies received from the powers with reference to mediation were more favorable than was generally understood.

The Grand Vizier said that the Government had been accused of knocking vainly at the doors of Europe. On the contrary, the Government had found all the doors open, and the results obtained were favorable, as would be discovered later. The Cabinet had also been reproached for not making reprisals against the Italians in Turkey. The Cabinet's attitude was the best for the interests of the country. The critics should remember the heavy indemnity France had to pay to Germany for the reprisals in France. The Government's object was two-fold—to resist and at the same time have recourse to diplomatic means. Should the pacific endeavors fail an Islam be endangered he would defend the fatherland to the last drop of blood.

The Vizier opposed the idea of ceding Tripoli for a monetary compensation.

ROME, Oct. 19.—Deputy di Felice Giuffrida, the Socialist supporter of the Turkish-Italian war, telegraphs from Tripoli news that is disquieting. He states that Turkish soldiers have been able to cross the Tunisian frontier, whence they communicated with Constantinople, giving a report of the situation in the interior.

In Tunis they asked assistance and even received money. When the French authorities discovered the presence of the Turks they ordered a close watch on the frontier to prevent a breach of neutrality. The French defeated attempts to convey provisions to the Turks in Tripoli.

There is an interesting discussion in military circles as to how the Turks will be likely to treat Italian military aviators if the latter fall into their hands. It is recalled that the passengers of five French balloons captured by the Prussians in 1870 were considered spies by Bismarck. In the present case the aviators wear military uniforms and do not conceal their identity in reconnoitering the enemy's positions. Accordingly the Italians think that if captured the aviators should be treated as prisoners of war.

Father Apollonio, head of the missionary home at Bengazi, gives some terrible details of the slave trade in North Africa. He says small children are packed two and even three in a bag for transportation, while the larger children are led in chains, the desert being stained with their blood. Those who collapse are abandoned to die of starvation or to be the prey of lions. On one occasion the leader of a caravan, enraged because an exhausted female slave was unable to proceed further, cut off one of her arms, using the member subsequently as a weapon with which to beat others of the unhappy party.

BERLIN, Oct. 19.—Edward Mygind, an experienced and reliable correspondent of The Zeitung am Mittag, cabling to his paper from Jerba, an island belonging to Tunis and a point where he escapes the Italian censorship, says that the Italian losses in nightly skirmishes in Tripoli are considerable, and that the Italian assertions that the Turks and their Arab allies are discouraged and intend to surrender are pure humbug.

Cholera, he states, has claimed many victims among the Italian troops and the residents of Tripoli.

Herr Mygind adds that 20,000 Italian troops have been landed on the Tripolitan coast. Their organization is excellent, though the soldiers complain that their clothes and equipment are too heavy.

The Constantinople correspondent of the Lokal Anzeiger telegraphs that he learns authoritatively that the Turkish fleet has not left the Dardenelles, and has no intention of departing thence. The fleet was built up at great sacrifice for use against the Russians and Greeks, and will not be risked against the Italians, though the reported presence of Italian torpedo boat destroyers in the Aegean Sea is a tempting bait.

The German Government has interfered in the case of a German reserve, Lieut. von Lochow, whom the Italian Consul ordered to leave Tripoli because he was suspected of being a spy. Germany demands that Italy prove her case before expelling a citizen of Germany.

VIENNA, Oct. 19.—Italy is reported to be hastening the completion of three dreadnoughts, and has ordered 4,000 tons of armorplate from an American concern because the Italian works are unable to furnish it speedily enough.

It is expected that the ships will be ready for service at the end of 1912.

RISE IN ITALIAN EXCHANGE

A Result of the War—Merchants Are Also Beginning to Suffer.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

CHIASSO, Oct. 19.—Although the war could not be more successful for Italy, which only complains of the lack of an enemy, Italian money, which was at par with some countries and above par with others at the outbreak of the war, has now fallen below par and must pay an exchange, which, with certain countries, like Switzerland, has risen to a high figure.

The commercial uneasiness has been augmented by the interruption of all traffic with Turkey, but in this field Turkey will suffer the more, as Italy was the only country which gave to Turkish merchants credit on the old system, in vogue since the days when Venice was a great power in the Levant. Indeed, most of the Italians' customers in Turkey are Jews, Armenians, and Levantine Greeks, some of whom belong to families which have dealt with Italian producers for centuries.

ACCLAIM "WIRELESS LOUIE."

Faithful Zeltnerites Give His Maiden Speech a Noisy Approval.

"Wireless" Louis Zeltner, wearing the self-conscious air of the man who made the east side famous—in return for which, he says, the east side is going to make him Alderman—fired the opening gun of his campaign in Mammelushen last night before a cheering and sympathetic 2,000 of his friends, who packed Jefferson Hall, in Columbia Street. W. R. Hearst and John J. Hopper, fusion candidate for Sheriff, and Benjamin Hartstein, candidate for the Assembly, also spoke.

But Louie, Alderman in prospect, was the hub of the meeting. Long before he entered, the walls of the place were covered with his election photographs, posted in the ratio of about three to one of all the other candidates' pictures combined. Some of them showed Louie mild and genial, as if he were selling a news tip to a city editor; others, more severe, gave Louie the look of an astute statesman. These, though harder to recognize, Louie said he liked best. There were about 1,000 of his pictures in the hall.

Louie himself remained in seclusion at a nearby champagne fountain in Rivington Street, with a few reporters, until the meeting had got well started.

"I don't want to get there early and crowd the place too much in the beginning," he explained.

Meanwhile John C. Taylor, Chairman of the meeting, began to harangue the crowd, laying at Tammany's doors all the evils, from James J. Smith, Louie's opponent for the Aldermanship, to the $20,000,000 fire in the Capitol at Albany. Thereafter Herbert R. Limburg began to prepare for the coming of the east side's chief.

"You know him whom I mean," he cried. "Wireless Zeltner you call him, [Applause,] who reports your doings and the east side's. All your sorrows he has reported to the world. And when he is your Alderman there will be no scandals. When things are wrong Wireless Zeltner will send a wireless out and the wrongs will be righted."

This brought applause in English and Yiddish lasting fully half a minute. Thereafter, Mr. Limburg put in an unobtrusive word of praise also for Hearst, Hopper, and Hartstein, as the three H's of politics. In the midst of this eulogy there was an uproarious burst of applause and a deafening blast of band music in the street outside.

"It's only the band," cried Mr. Limburg naively.

"Three cheers for Zeltner!" yelled what Louie in his tips to the newspapers would—conservatively, you understand?—have called ten thousand voices. "Leben Zeltner! Zeltner!"

And through the cheering mob in marched Zeltner himself, big as life, bounded as to his body by his belt and as to his ambition unbounded altogether. Behind him marched Zeltner's own parade—the Duke of Essex Street, Rosy the Lawyer, Willy Cheesecake, and half a score of his other inventions, all cheering.

Louie wore a brand new English "slip-on," which he slipped off after he had bowed his way through the crowd to the platform. Then, in some confusion, he slipped into a very small chair at the very edge of the platform and slipped off. But loving hands upheld him. He remained thus until his time to speak came, sitting with hands clasped at his belt buckle.

Meanwhile Mr. Hopper rose and spoke. He traced the history of machine government, beginning a little the hither side of creation and ending at Tammany. Reporters watched as their barometer Wireless Louie's nose for news—tilted disinterestedly upward—and took no notes. Mr. Hopper lended by attacking A. J. Levy, the present Tammany Assemblyman for the district, for his Election bill, which he termed "an outrage upon the citizenship of the State."

Mr. Hopper's ending was loudly applauded and Zeltner arose. The band went into hysterics, tooting again annd again and yet again:

"For he's a jolly good fellow! For he's a jolly good fellow!"

And the crowd gave Louie three cheers and a Zeltner. They added another three and a Zeltner when Louie—almost as astute a statesman as the posters pictured him—opened up in Yiddish.

"I will talk Mammelushen, (mother tongle,") he said. "I have been nominated by the Republican and Fusion Parties for your Alderman. Most of you here in the hall know me. A big speaker I'm not. You know me. I'm your man. Fifteen years in the police courts; longer still in hospitals and institutions everywhere on the east side. Known in all of them and in the whole east side, and knowing the east side from A to Z."

"Alderman to Zeltner!" yelled a jokesmith in the crowd. Louie, who had paused as if divining his presence, continued:

"I was born to be your Alderman. You were born to be my district. Give me a chance as friends, as brothers. You are the jury to decide it. Give me a vote. I rely on you, my people. Thanks."

Mr. Hearst, who entered just as Louie subsided, ran into a storm of applause, and, thinking it was all intended for him, he bowed profoundly to right and to left. Louie enjoyed the joke, and sat back laughing in imminent danger of breaking his already taut belt.

The band was the first to recognize the new aspirant for applause and burst into frantic strains of "Hail to the Chief!" Then the crowd, too, saw Mr. Hearst, and gave him a right hearty welcome with six cheers and two Zeltners. He bowed and after several vain attempts to still the tumult spoke.

When Mr. Hearst concluded, Zeltner was the first to rush up to him and add Mr. Hearst's handshake to Col. Roosevelt's, District Attorney Whitman's, President Taft's, and many others that the "wireless" aspirant to the Aldermanship has in the past gathered in his collection. This achievement, too, the electorate cheered.

INDEPENDENTS NAME TERRY.

Turned Down by Democratic Machine for Opposing Murphy.

The Democratic bosses in Brooklyn who refused Assemblyman Edmund R. Terry a renomination this Fall were not visibly pleased yesterday when they learned that Mr. Terry is to run on an independent ticket for the Assembly.

About 550 voters in the First District have filed a petition nominating Mr. Terry. They call themselves the "Terry Electors." The district is generally Republican, and with Mr. Terry in the field as an independent, Dr. James J. McCabe, the regular Democratic candidate, is looked upon as having a hard row to hoe.

Mr. Terry was one of the Democratic Assemblymen who opposed the election of William F. Sheehan to the United States Senate. He asserts that he was turned down for a renomination by order of Charles F. Murphy.

In the Interests of Broader Tolerance.

Oscar S. Straus, the Rev. Charles H. Parkhurst, the Rev. Josiah Strong, and the Rev. C. F. Ralston will address a meting of rabbis, priests, and clergymen of all denominations in the Assembly Hall of the Metropolitan Life Building on Oct. 30, in the afternoon, in the interests of the persecuted religionists in Russia and of a broader tolerance. The meeting will be held under the auspices of the Clerical Conference of the New York Federation of Churches.

VANIMAN ALMOST READY.

Bigger and Better Airship for Transocean Flight Than the Old America.

Special to The New York Times.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., Oct. 19.—Melvin Vaniman hung his car to his big gas bag to-day, and the big airship Akron, in which he will essay the air route to Europe, was fairly launched. The ship, which is a wholy American production, with the exception of one motor, is one of the biggest that has ever been built. She is far more powerful from every point of view than the America, in which Walter Wellman tried to cross the Atlantic last year.

The bag, which was made at Akron, Ohio, consists of four thicknesses of rubber and three layers of cotton, and has a tensile strength of three and one-half tons to the meter. It was first filled about three weeks ago, and so tight is it that not another foot of gas has been let into the bag since that time. There has been no noticeable depreciation of the gas in the bag, a fact extremely pleasing to Vaniman. Last year it was found necessary to let an additional supply of gas into the America's bag weekly.

This new gas bag has a lifting capacity of 26,000 pounds. It will not be required to lift within about 4,000 pounds of this amount, so that there will be plenty of margin for safety. It is 258 feet long, or about 30 feet longer than the bag of the America. It is 47 feet in diameter. The cubic capacity is 385,000 feet. The car is 185 feet long, and that, too, is about 30 feet longer than the car of the America.

It is equipped with four engines, with a maximum of 317 horse power. Two of the motors are of 110 horse power each, and there is another of 18 horse power. They will drive six propellers, three on each side of the ship, and there is a small service motor which will supply the power for the blower, for cranking the large motors, and for operating the wireless outfit. The old America had a maximum of 160 horse power and only four propellers.

Vaniman has been delayed longer than he expected because of the failure of certain supplies to arrive, but he and his force are now working both night and day in order to get things in shape for a start the latter end of this month.

He is just now bending all his energies to get the big airship in shape for a number of test flights. He expects to make the first of these tests in about ten days. He says that he will give the big dirigible a thorough testing before leaving Atlantic City to see that everything is working perfectly.

He has equipped the ship with a more powerful Marconi wireless plant than the America had. The best that the old airship could do was to dispatch sound waves 100 miles, but this plant will have a maximum standing power of 500 miles. It will be under the supervision of "Jack" Irwin, who operated the plant on the Wellman expedition.

Asked how long be expected it would take him to make the trip across to Europe, Mr. Vaniman said about three days. He says his ship will make thirty-six miles an hour in still air, and if he should meet with a favorable west wind will do far better than that speed. He is confident of success.

Men's Suits and Topcoats 17.50 to 28.00—at Saks'
¶ Quality of fabric is not confined to any one shop. All good shops use good fabrics. But a combination of reliable fabrics, perfect workmanship, dependable fit, individual style and economy of price—that is another matter. It is a Saks matter.
¶ And in none of our productions is this fact more forcibly exemplified than in those at 17.50 to 28.00 which—over and above the bias of personal claims—are so isolated in their superiority that comparisons are obvious.
¶ Tailored throughout by master workers, in all of the season's favored fabrics and colorings, with a welcome preponderance of genial browns and the whole gamut of grays.
¶ And just one reminder before we leave you—take a careful look at suit model No. 347. It is easily the ranking officer in Autumn suit styles.
The Shoe Question
¶ In the matter of shoes we have put the right foot forward. Our first choice is the Saks-Banister. Costs you 6.50 and 7.00 and will give you a long period of satisfactory wear. And having put the right foot forward, the left foot cannot go far wrong. So the Saks Special is our next choice. Retails for 3.50 to 5.50 and gives you the impression that you are getting a little more for your money than you are entitled to.

SURRENDER OF ORE AIDS STEEL TRUST

GIVING UP 39,280 ACRES

Cut in Ore Rates Expected to Extend, but Mines and Not Steel Makers Get the Benefit.

Ore lands covered by the lease of the Steel Corporation's subsidiary, the Great Western Mining Company, which are to be released in 1915 by the cancellation of the lease, include 39,280 acres. Of this the Great Northern Railroad holds in fee simple about 19,700 acres. It owns a half interest in some 15,300 acres and less than half in 360 acres. Besides these it has under lease, at prices which allow it a profit under the contract with the Steel Corporation's subsidiary, 3,800 acres. It has leased to other operators than the Steel Corporation about 1,420 acres, which it also owns in fee. There are in addition held in lease by the Great Western Mining Company from the Great Northern other lands which return no profit to the certificate holders, because they are held by the Great Northern at the same royalty which it receives.

Details of the corporation's plans for divesting itself of these Great Northern ore lands, which was one of the subjects of complaint against it contained in the report of the Commissioner of Corporations, or for reducing rates on its railroads, either from the mines to lake ports or from the lakes into the steel district, were not given out yesterday. Judge Elbert H. Gary was in conference with a number of the corporation's officials in the morning, and left his offices, at 71 Broadway, early in the afternoon and did not return.

In the stock market there was an apparent disposition to look upon the termination of the corporation's relations with the Great Northern ore properties as good for the corporation, as was evidenced in an advance of steel common from 58⅛, Wednesday's close, to 60. The market closed with a net gain of 1¾ points. On the other hand, Great Northern ore certificates, which had closed at 47 on Wednesday, a loss of 3 points, made a further declined to 40, which was a ten-point loss from the time the rumor of the cancellation of the lease was circulated.

There was a recovery, however, which left the certificates at 42¾ at the close, a net loss for the day of 4¼ points. The day's transactions in this usually inactive security amounted to 18,800 shares, which is more than three times as many as appeared in the market all of last week.

One of the trustees of the Great Northern iron ore properties said yesterday that the United States Steel Corporation had so far given the trustees no intimation that it would take advantage of the privilege which it has of cancelling the lease in 1915. James J. Hill is not a trustee of the ore properties, but he has been in charge of all of the important negotiations involving them, and Wall Street has been waiting for some word from him in view of the Steel Corporation's decision to terminate the Great Western Mining Company lease. He was expected in New York yesterday, but a sudden change in his plans took him back to St. Paul.

It was pointed out yesterday that the Steel Corporation's proposed reduction of 20 cents a ton on ore from the mines going over its two railroads, the Duluth & Iron Range and the Duluth, Messabe & Northern, must inevitably be followed by a reduction in the Great Northern Railroad rate, and this, it is figured, would accrue to the benefit of the ore certificates, since the freight is paid by the lessors. The price fixed on each ton of ore to the United States Steel Corporation under the terms of the lease is based upon its delivery at the head of the lakes.

The lessor companies pay the Great Northern Railway its charge for transportation, and the balance constitutes the net royalty of the ore certificates, diminished, of course, by the charges against underlying leases where the mines are not owned in fee. When the Great Western Mining Company, which is the Steel Corporation's operating company at the mines, does not take its minimum amount of ore each year it is not obliged to pay the lessor companies anything but the royalty, and for convenience it has been assumed that 80 cents represents the freight charge. On the basis of the current year's price for ore, the Steel Corporation pays a net royalty of 98.6 cents for each ton. The balance of 80 cents is paid when the ore is actually moved. A reduction of 20 cents a ton in the rate would accordingly accrue to the lessors and through them to the certificate holders at the expense of the Great Northern Railway.

An important outcome of the Steel Corporation's cancellation of the ore lease and its reduction in freight rates in the lake district will be the benefit which will accrue to the independent steelmakers through cheaper raw materials. There has been a movement under way among the independents to get cheaper rates on other raw materials besides ore, and during the present price war in the steel trade one of the important considerations in getting business has been the allowances made by sellers on freight charges out of the Pittsburgh district. James A. Campbell of Youngstown, Ohio, head of the organization of independents formed to get lower rates on ore, coal, and coke, was quoted yesterday in dispatches from Youngstown as saying that his association is not antagonistic to the United States Steel Corporation.

"What we want," he said, "is relief from the excessive rates between points on the great lakes and manufacturing centres in the Pittsburgh district and its neighborhood, as well as on the Northern roads which carry ore from the mines to water. Among the roads affected are the Lake Shore, the Baltimore & Ohio, the Pennsylvania, the Pittsburgh & Lake Erie, the Great Western, and the Chicago & Northwestern, as well as the Bessemer & Lake Erie. The last named is the only one controlled by the United States Steel Corporation.

"The attitude of the independent manufacturers is not antagonistic to the Steel Corporation," he said, "nor to the railroads involved. The corporation is regarded as a reasonable competitor. With the present low scale of prices manufacturers are forced to reduce costs in every way, and they say that reductions should begin with freight rates rather than with labor."

ASK EXPRESS COMPANY FACTS

Commerce Commission Begins Investigation of Rates.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 19.—In its investigation of express rates, practices, accounts, and revenues the Inter-State Commerce Commission to-day ordered all express companies operating in the United States to furnish to the commission on or before Dec. 1 information in detail of all of their operations.

These details include the authorization of the companies, names of officers and stockholders, amounts of issues of stocks and bonds, description of property, copies of contracts with railroads or other common carriers, revenues from every source, contracts with the Government or with other parties, including foreign nations, number of packages of newspapers and magazines handled and total charges assessed, number of miles of railroad on which business is conducted, agreements among the various express companies, list of securities held, changes in express rates during the last twenty years, any considerations paid to railway officials to induce the execution of contracts, and total amounts paid to railroads for the year ended June 30, 1911, with complete details of the payments.

In its effort to readjust the express business the commission will use this information in preparation for a general hearing, when the express companies will be afforded opportunity to seek to justify their present operations and rates.

AID FOR INJURED WORKMEN.

Government Commission Considers Plans for Report to Congress.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 19.—Under instructions to present its final report to Congress by Jan. 1 next, the Employers' Liability and Workmen's Compensation Commission, appointed last March to devise a plan for insuring compensation to injured employes, will meet in this city next Monday to formulate a tentative recommendation.

Chairman Sutherland favors the English plan of direct assessment on the employer for injury resulting to an employe because of his employment, wherever the responsibility may rest, but others support the German plan of a general tax on employers and a common fund from which all injured employes are paid through the Government. This system the Utah Senator regards as unsuited to the American form of government because of the danger of abuse through political manipulation and personal favoritism.

FOR PURER EASTER CANDY.

Pennsylvania Confectioners Will Be Required to Obey the Law.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 19.—As the result of a conference to-day between Dr. Wiley, chief of the Bureau of Chemistry of the Department of Agriculture, and dairy and food officials of Pennsylvania it is probable that the confectionery manufacturers of the Keystone State will be required to change the coating of their Easter goods and also some of their candies. They are under an engagement to meet representatives of the trade in Harrisburg to-morrow.

The principal contention has been over the material used in the coating of candies and confections. Much of this substance has been condemned by the Pennsylvania authorities as varnish. It is charged also that the coloring in many of the seductive Easter goods is due to iron rather than to chocolate. As two-thirds of this country's production of these goods are made in Pennsylvania, there is general interest in the result of the crusade.

NEW GROUP HOSTILE TO TOBACCO PLAN

Independents Who Represent $250,000,000 Capital Decide on United Action.

ATTORNEYS GENERAL HERE

Representatives of North and South Carolina Confer on Proposed Trust Dissolution.

A conference of independent tobacco men from various parts of the country was held yesterday in the rooms of the New York Cigar Leaf Tobacco Board of Trade, 141 Maiden Lane, to consider the reorganization plan of the American Tobacco Company. It was officially stated that the associations from which delegates were in attendance represented a capital investment of at least $250,000,000 and the employment of 1,000,000 adult persons.

The organizations were the National Cigar Leaf Tobacco Association, the Cigar Manufacturers' Association of America, associations of leaf tobacco growers from various sections, the International Cigarmakers' Union, the Independent Tobacco Manufacturers' Associations, the Independent Retail Tobacconists' Association, the Independent Tobacco Salesmen's Association, the Chicago and Philadelphia Cigar Leaf Tobacco Boards of Trade, and the Tampa Cigar Manufacturers' Association.

It was the first time that either tobacco planters or union labor have been represented in any of the conferences.

Aaron B. Hess, President of the National Cigar Leaf Tobacco Association, presided, and Charles Fox acted as Secretary. Among those present were Jacob Wertheim, President of the United Cigar Manufacturers' Company; Charles Eisenlohr of Philadelphia, M. W. Berriman of Tampa, Oscar Rosenberger of Detroit, Richard Traiser of Boston, E. A. Klein, William Taussig of Chicago, Leonard Cohn, Joseph F. Cullman, Abraham Bijur, I. Bernheim, Henry Herr of Lancaster, Penn.; John W. Merriam, Morris Rossin, and Hugh Campbell. The representatives of the cigarmakers were G. W. Perkins, Thomas F. Tracey, William Strauss, and Daniel Harris.

Resolutions were unanimously adopted that it was the consensus of the meeting that under the plan of the American Tobacco Company the tobacco combination would remain as much a menace to the independents as at present. An Advisory Committee was appointed, consisting of one member from each organization, to act in conjunction with the committee of the National Cigar Leaf Tobacco Association in opposing the adoption of the plan. Resolutions were also adopted that the counsel for the various organizations act in unison.

"The policy of the conference," said Mr. Hess afterward, "was one of conserving and not of destruction. We don't want to hurt brands or the sale of goods, but to secure such a plan of reorganization as will preserve to present and future generations fair and honest competition. The spirit of unity that prevailed was most gratifying."

Counsel for the various organizations include Louis D. Brandeis, Felix H. Levy, John W. Yerkes, Henry H. Hunter, Adolph Kraus, and Eugene Clifford, the last two of Chicago. Mr. Clifford is counsel for the International Cigar Makers' Union, and Mr. Kraus is to organize the western independent tobacco interests against the proposed plan.

Attorney General W. T. Bickett of North Carolina and Attorney General J. F. Lyon of South Carolina reached this city yesterday morning and spent a busy day conferring with Charles R. Carruth, counsel for R. P. Richardson, Jr., & Co., Incorporated; Felix H. Levy, counsel for several of the independents' organizations, and James C. McReynolds, special assistant to the Attorney General, who has announced his hostility to the plan submitted by the American Tobacco Company. Attorney General S. W. Williams of Virginia is to be here to-day, and the three State officials will complete their study of the plan and decide on their attitude. It is expected that they will ask the Circuit Court for permission to be heard in opposition to the plan.

"We represent hundreds of thousands of growers of tobacco," said Mr. Bickett last night. "I am here by authority of the State Government, and also have been asked to act in behalf of the Tobacco Growers' Association of North Carolina. The three States grow about one-third of the tobacco produced in this country, although Kentucky is the largest single producer. If we find that the plan will have the effect of putting the tobacco business in the hands of separate groups, to whose interest it will be to compete, we shall simply congratulate the court and go home. If we find that it leaves the control in the hands of persons whose interest will be not to complete, we shall endeavor to have our protest heard. We are satisfied with the decree of the Supreme Court, and all we want is to see that it is carried out."

The Independent Retail Tobacconists' Association, through its counsel, Henry H. Hunter, obtained permission yesterday from the Circuit Court to file objections to the proposed plan and to appear at the hearings, in accordince with the precedent set on Wednesday in the case of other independent organizations.

The Imperial Tobacco Company of Great Britain and Ireland, which, like the United Cigar Stores Company and the Richardson Company, did not join in the petition of the American Tobacco Company and all the other defendants, filed its separate petition yesterday through Hornblower, Miller & Potter. Contracts were made between the Imperial Tobacco Company and the American Tobacco Company by which it was agreed that the Imperial should refrain from doing business in this country other than the purchase of leaf tobacco, and that the American should refrain from doing business in Great Britain. The Imperial Tobacco Company asks that the court confine its decree in reference to this company to the cancellation of these agreements.

Smith Gray & Co.
Foremost Clothiers Since 1845

In every essential by which good clothes may be judged, the Smith Gray & Co. stores mean more to you than do any other stores anywhere.
More in tailoring excellence—
More in fabric value and exclusiveness—
More in correct style and distinctive individuality—
More in service and value.

The tailoring in every Smith Gray & Co. garment is just alike—the finest possible ready-for-service tailoring. In all other ready-for-service clothes the tailoring corresponds to the price, the quality varying with the price.

Every Smith Gray & Co. fabric is of the highest standard—tested for strength, cotton and color, cold water shrunk and steam table dried, and in consequence every garment represents the utmost in fabric value, and nearly every style is an exclusive Smith Gray & Co. fabric.

The Smith Gray & Co. stores are the only stores in New York where styles emanate from three distinctive sources, and in them alone can you find, in complete and correct assortment, styles adapted from the Continental and English ideas—styles designed exclusively for New Yorkers, and styles designed for men whose ideas differ from the foreign and metropolitan—distinctive styles to fit the individuality of every man—the range being broader and more comprehensive than is to be found outside the Smith Gray & Co. stores. That every essential which makes for better clothes is found in greater degree in Smith Gray & Co. clothes than in any other ready-for-service garments gives you positive assurance of correctness, service and value far beyond any other clothes produced ready-for-service.

Smith Gray & Co. clothes for Fall and Winter present a most complete assortment of every possible requirement—every range being modestly priced from 18.00 to 50.00.

Here also you will find special values made possible by the attainment of hundred per cent. efficiency in our tailoring plant; produced by a unified organization more than three score years in the building.

NATIONAL BISCUIT CO.—"Uneeda Biscuit" NATIONAL BISCUIT CO.—"Uneeda Biscuit"

Soda crackers are extremely sensitive to moisture.

Before the advent of Uneeda Biscuit the only persons who ever tasted fresh, crisp soda crackers were the people in the bakeries.

Imagine their trip from bakery to your table; exposed to air and moisture—kept in grocers' boxes and finally in a paper bag on the shelf in your pantry. Could they be the same as they were the day they were baked?

Now that we have Uneeda Biscuit—we have perfectly baked soda crackers—perfectly kept.

No moisture can reach them—no contaminating influences can affect their flavor—their goodness is imprisoned only to be liberated by you for you when you open the package.

CALLS CUMMINS A JUST PLAIN THIEF

HOW $140,000 WAS TAKEN

In Opening the Trial Mr. Whitman Explains Note Transaction on Which the Indictment Is Based.

District Attorney Whitman, in opening the case for the prosecution yesterday at the trial of William J. Cummins for grand larceny, denounced his alleged acts in such vigorous language that Max D. Steuer, the defendant's counsel, sprang to his feet and asked that the court direct the jury to disregard his strictures and consider only his statement of the case. Justice Davis declined to give such directions.

Mr. Whitman said that while the proof of the act charged would be complicated and possibly wearisome, the act itself was a simple one and easy to understand.

"There was nothing clever, nothing shrewd in it," he said. "There was nothing to appeal to the imagination by its audacity or the magnitude of the operation. It was just plain stealing. The money was there, the opportunity was there, and the thief was there. And the result was the usual one in such circumstances. It doesn't differ in quality from the act of a pickpocket.

"There was no conspiracy to ruin Cummins. No conspiracy was needed to ruin him. He was like any thief, who will always ruin himself."

Mr. Whitman told how at the time of the alleged larceny Cummins controlled the Carnegie Trust Company, in which he was Chairman of the Executive Committee, and his friend, Joseph B. Reichmann, was President. Robert L. Smith, the Vice President, took his orders from Cummins, he said. All the enterprises in which Cummins was interested needed money, and he personally needed money. He had to have millions. Prior to April, 1910, Cummins had borrowed from the Carnegie Trust Company over $2,000,000 in his own name and in those of his friends and his concerns.

"In April, 1910," said Mr. Whitman, "the Banking Department began an examination of the Carnegie Trust Company. Cummins knew his loans would be discovered and severe criticisms made. He turned to the Nineteenth Ward Bank and the Van Norden Trust Company, which he dominated, and obtained money from each.

"The Van Norden Trust Company owned a substantial block of stock of the Nineteenth Ward Bank and of the Twelfth Ward Bank. This stock, together with the stock of those two institutions which Warner Van Norden owned personally, gave control of those two banks. Van Norden, however, had borrowed money from banks around town and had deposited with those banks as collateral for such loans certificates of stock of the Nineteenth and Twelfth Ward Banks.

In the Spring of 1910, the banks which had loaned money to the Van Nordens threatened to call the loans and sell the collateral. The President of the Nineteenth Ward Bank and the Vice President of the Van Norden Trust Company was Bradley Martin, Jr. Martin agreed to contribute $100,000 himself to take Nineteenth Ward Bank stock at 250, and Twelfth Ward Bank stock at 100. It was arranged that the balance should be advanced by the Van Norden Trust Company and the Nineteenth Ward Bank.

"However the 19th Ward Bank couldn't loan money on the security of its own stock and the Van Norden Trust Company didn't feel it could take any more of the bank stocks into its coffers. Martin insisted that if the two institutions advanced the money in the form of loans, on notes of individuals and corporations, with the object of using the proceeds to pay off the Van Norden loans or to buy the stocks held by the banks as security therefor, the money so advanced should be held in trust by some third party. It was decided that the Carnegie Trust Company should act as trustee. In form, three notes were to be purchased by the Van Norden Trust Company: First, a note of Charles Arthur Moore, Jr., for $60,000; second, a note of Joseph B. Reichmann, President of the Carnegie Trust Company, for $60,000, and third, a note of Martin J. Condon for $75,000. The proceeds of these three notes, $195,000, was to be paid over to the Carnegie Trust Company, and held by it for the purpose of taking up these stocks.

"The Directors of the Nineteenth Ward Bank authorized loans to Condon and Cummins of $70,000 each. It was also agreed that loans of $70,000 each might be made to Charles Arthur Moore, Jr., and the Merchants and Manufacturers' Securities Company.

"On April 21 the Van Norden Trust Company sent down its checks for the $195,000. On April 23 the notes of Charles Arthur Moore, Jr., for $70,000, and the Merchants and Manufacturers' Securities Company, for $70,000, were sent to the Nineteenth Ward Bank. In accordance with directions given by Bradley Martin, Jr., four checks were drawn, aggregating $140,000, all to the order of the Carnegie Trust Company.

"It was the understanding between Cummins and Martin that all of this $335,000 should be deposited in the trust department of the Carnegie Trust Company. It was intended that the money so placed on deposit there should be drawn from time to time out of the trust department and used to take up these stocks, and the stocks, when taken up, substituted for the money and held in trust.

"The trust department of the Carnegie Trust Company never heard of this $120,000, nor of the $75,000 additional, which went to make up the $195,000, nor of the $140,000 received from the Nineteenth Ward Bank, until after the Carnegie Trust Company was closed. No entry was ever made on the books of the trust department of the Carnegie Trust Company showing the receipt of any part of these sums. What did happen was this:

"On April 21, when the two checks of $60,000 each were received at the Carnegie Trust Company, Smith, the Vice President, at the direction of Cummins, indorsed over both of those checks to Charles Arthur Moore, Jr., and they were on that day deposited to the credit of his account. Moore immediately drew his check for $100,000, payable to the order of the Mercantile National Bank, and Cummins took it up to the Mercantile National Bank, paid an old Van Norden note, and thus obtained from the Mercantile National Bank the collateral of 300 shares of stock of the Nineteenth Ward Bank, and 250 shares of Twelfth Ward stock, making a total of $100,000 at the agreed rates, the sum which Bradley Martin, Jr., had agreed to advance personally. He sent these stocks at once to Bradley Martin, Jr., who gave his check of $100,000 therefor, and that check on the 21st day of April was deposited in the personal account of William J. Cummins, this defendant, in the Carnegie Trust Company. On the following day the $75,000 check in exchange for Martin J. Condon's note was received. This check also was to the order of the Carnegie Trust Company. As was the case with the two $60,000 checks, this $75,000 check was never entered in the accounts of the Carnegie Trust Company in the trust department or elsewhere. It was indorsed over by the Carnegie Trust Company, by Smith at Cummins's direction, to Cummins's personal order, and was on April 22 deposited by Cummins in his individual account in the Carnegie Trust Company.

"On the following day, April 23, the four checks of the Nineteenth Ward Bank, to which I have already referred, aggregating $140,000, were received at the office of the Carnegie Trust Company. Not one cent of any of these checks ever went into the Carnegie Trust Company's trust department, or in any account belonging to the trust company. Each of these four checks was indorsed payable to William J. Cummins, and this indorsement in the name of the Carnegie Trust Company was signed by Smith and Ball, acting under the direction of William J. Cummins. All four of these checks—this entire $140,000—was then indorsed by Cummins for deposit to the credit of his individual account in the Carnegie Trust Company and credited to that account on the books of the Cernegie Trust Company on the 23d day of April.

"The remaining $20,000, after Moore had drawn his $100,000 check against the $120,000 credit created April 21, was, on the 4th day of May, transferred by Moore to Cummins's personal account, so that every single cent of this $335,000 went into the individual account of William J. Cummins. It is this misappropriation, in so far as it applies to the $140,000 received from the Ninteenth Ward Bank, that William J. Cummins is now charged with on this trial. It is the stealing of this $140,000 which the people claim constituted the crime of grand larceny in the first degree committed by Cummins on the 23d day of April, 1910."

Bradley Martin, Jr., was the first witness. He identified the four checks concerned in the indictment and said they had been drawn under his direction. Mr. Steuer saved time by admitting that the indorsement of each check was in Cummins's writing. Court adjourned when Mr. Martin had been on the stand a few minutes, and his testimony will be continued to-day.

The jury box, which contained eleven men Wednesday night, was filled at the morning session, after three of those tentatively accepted had been excused. The jury consists of Estey F. Dayton, manager, 371 Edgecombe Avenue; Frank J. Adams, manager, 523 West 134th Street; Henry L. Liebmann, brewer, 170 West Eighty-fourth Street; Caleb P. Hunt, advertising, 31 West Tenth Street; William Sherwood, roofing, 1,021 Third Avenue; Floyd S. Neely, salesman, 13 Livingston Place; Stewart C. COMPANY GETS FARES NOW.

Third Ave. Manager Says Pay-As-You-Enter Cars Stop a Loss.

Chairman Willcox took a hand yesterday afternoon at the hearing before the Public Service Commission on the question of re-establishing free transfers at 151 points in Manhattan and the Bronx. He wanted to know from Edward A. Maher, General Manager of the Third Avenue system, whether the introduction of the pay-as-you-enter cars had not had far more to do with the improved condition of the company in the last two years than the cutting off of the transfers.

Mr. Maher admitted that under the old system the companies lost a great deal of money through fares which were not collected, when the cars were crowded, and through the conductors not turning in their receipts in full.

"The companies have ceased to suffer such losses, have they not," asked the Chairman, "since the new cars were introduced?"

"Such losses have not altogether ceased," replied Mr. Maher.

"Do you mean passengers succeed in riding free on the new cars?"

"I mean that the companies do not get a fare for every passenger that is carried."

Mr. Maher would not venture on an estimate of how great a percentage the loss might be, and when Mr. Willcox said that he had heard estimates of experts as high as 10 to 20 per cent., he replied:

"Perhaps that is like some other estimates of experts."

He admitted, however, that the companies were getting a larger percentage of the fares now than under the old system, and that the Union Railway in the Bronx is doing better since it restored the transfers with the Westchester companies, including the Yonkers, Mount Vernon, and Westchester electric lines.

AMBASSADOR BACON'S COUNTRY HOME BURNS

JEWELS BURIED IN THE RUINS

Fear That Some Valuable Pearls in a Safe May Have Been Damaged by Heat.

Special to The New York Times.

WESTBURY, L. I., Oct. 19.—The fine Summer home of Robert Bacon, American Ambassador to France, which stood on the crest of one of the Wheatley Hills, was destroyed by fire early this morning. The Bacon home was one of the most imposing on Long Island, and was considered one of the best types of Colonial architecture in the country. It was designed by John Russell Pope, the New York architect, and cost about $150,000. The loss is estimated at about $200,000.

No member of the Bacon family was in the house when the fire was discovered, about 6:30 o'clock this morning. The Ambassador is in Paris, and Mrs. Bacon sailed from New York on the Cunarder Lusitania yesterday morning to join him. Robert Bacon, Jr., and Miss Martha Bacon, children of the Ambassador, were in New York in the morning, and on their return here all that was left of the once stately mansion was a smoldering heap of débris and five blackened chimney stacks.

It is said that jewelry worth about $12,000 was in a safe in Miss Bacon's room at the time of the fire. Some of the jewelry consisted of pearl ornaments, which it is believed were ruined by the heat to which they were subjected. It is hoped that the diamonds will be found undamaged when the safe is hauled out of the débris and opened.

It was one of the family servants who discovered the fire. It was in one of the rooms on the second floor near the apartments of Miss Bacon. The fire had gained some headway before it was seen, and the servants telephoned to Westbury and Mineola for aid. The small Fire Departments of these two villages responded promptly, but the run from either place is about three miles, and when the firemen arrived the house was aflame from cellar to roof. The firemen did the best they could with the apparatus they had, and managed to keep the flames from spreading to the stables and other buildings on the estate.

The Bacon home was completed about two years ago. It was a two-story house, with broad verandas and towering chimneys, and was situated on a hill in a wooded section of Long Island. Neighboring estates are those of Harry Payne Whitney, Henry Carnegie Phipps, John S. Phipps, Thomas Hitchcock, Jr., E. D. Morgan, Clarence H. Mackay, Mrs. William K. Vanderbilt, Jr., and Samuel Willets.

Just how the fire started no one seems able to say. It is thought that it was probably due to a defect in the electric insulation. The fireplaces had not been used for more than two days in the part of the house where the blaze started.

Neighbors, with their servants, hurried to the Bacon home when they saw the smoke and fire, hoping to be able to do something to save the house, or, failing in that, its contents. The contents are said to have been worth $50,000 and included a lot of old and highly prized furniture, china, and silver plate, in addition to many fine works of art. Some of the furniture, including a piano, was saved, but most of it was lost. It is said that all of Mr. Bacon's books and papers were lost.

To-night the ruins in which the jewelry is buried, is guarded by several men sent here by Mr. Bacon's New York representatives. The few things that were saved were sent to the homes of neighbors.

A cablegram was sent to Ambassador Bacon, informing him of the loss of his home. It is not known whether Mrs. Bacon was informed by wireless to the Lusitania.

Among the paintings prized by Ambassador and Mrs. Bacon which were lost were Marshall's portrait of Abraham Lincoln and an oil painting of Col. Theodore Roosevelt. Col. Roosevelt and the Ambassador are intimate friends, Mr. Bacon having been Secretary of State in the last months of Col. Roosevelt's second Administration.

SUNDAY SCHOOL CONVENTION

Executive Committee Decides on Zurich for Next Meeting.

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 19.—At a meeting here to-day of the Executive Committee of the World's Sunday School Association, which was attended by Sabbath school leaders from Europe, Africa, and America, it was voted to hold the World's Seventh Sunday School Convention in Zurich, Switzerland, July 8 to 16, 1913. William N. Hartshorn of Boston, Vice President of the World's Association and President of the International Sunday School Convention, made a long report of his recent visit to European cities in the interests of worldwide Sunday school work. Bishop Burt, whose home is in Zurich, said that if it was the desire of the World's Association to influence the Continent of Europe Zurich was a strategic city.

Bishop Hartzell, LL. D., of Madeira said that because of the inspiration of the World's Association in 1907 organized mission work had been inaugurated in North Africa, and for the first time in centuries the organized Church is engaged in work on the shores of the Mediterranean along the thousands of miles of coast from Egypt to Gibraltar. There are now twenty-seven missionaries at work.

Those attending the conference represented 285,000 Sunday schools and 28,000,000 scholars.

Ready Tomorrow.

J. M. Barrie's New Book

Peter & Wendy

Illustrated by F. D. Bedford

$1.50 net; postpaid $1.65

It is the narrative of the play "Peter Pan," its peculiar fascination heightened by new fantasies and containing much that no play could contain of Barrie's humor and feeling in comment and description. The story carries farther than did the play, too, and ends more satisfactorily; but the main thing is that here in permanent form, within the reach of every one always, is the adorable Peter to crow at his own prowess, and the mischievous Tinker Bell, and the terrible Captain Hook with his crocodile Nemesis, and the marvellous nurse Nana.

Just Published

The Poems of Henry Van Dyke

Complete in one volume. With portrait. 8vo, $2.00 net; postpaid $2.20.

Henry Van Dyke has won his place among the best-read and loved of American poets. Of his earlier books of verse more than 60,000 copies have been sold. The clearness and melody of the nature-songs, the interest of the narratives, the deep feeling of the romantic and patriotic lyrics have found friends for this hopeful and human poetry, even in an age of prose. A significant event in American literature is the collection of his work in verse, with many new pieces, and their publication in this volume.

Noveltles of Practical Utility in This Showing of Highest Quality O'Neill Furniture

Strictly Hand-Made Throughout

O'Neill Main Store—Fourth Floor.

We accurately illustrate here a few of the many beautiful novelties and reproductions of strictly HAND-MADE FURNITURE, the highest class furniture known. No expense is spared in the manufacturing of this furniture that it may be so made to meet the requirements of those desiring only the best as well as the most artistic furniture that is possible to produce. The inlay in this particular class of furniture is artistic in every way. Some pieces are inlaid in white mahogany, others beautiful satinwood, with hand-painted effects in oil.

In addition to the novelty pieces which we call attention to in this illustration, we show many beautiful reproductions in DINING ROOM, BEDROOM and LIBRARY SUITS. Many of these beautiful pieces are genuine reproductions of the Adam and Sheraton period, years 1754 to 1812. The Adam is a classic style, light and elegant of fashion, characteristic of delicate flutine, turned legs and dainty garlands. Sheraton resembles both Chippendale and Heppelwhite styles. The legs are round and fluted, reeded or otherwise embellished and tapering square. This period is considered one of extreme daintiness and absence of projecting ornaments is an essential feature of the Sheraton style.

MEN'S MOTORING COATS

Highest in Quality—Smartest in Style.

Motor coats made expressly for R. H. MACY & CO. are of four different varieties—each one the best of its particular kind for filling its particular niche of usefulness and beauty.

Our Burberry and other English coats are actually made in London and not copied from London models and merely called English coats, as is so often the case with competitors who blatantly advertise "English" coats.

The Burberrys are developed in the famous "warmth without weight" materials in tweed effects, having yokes and sleeves lined with silk. Some of them also have an additional removable leather lining for cold weather motoring. Burberry weatherproof coats are made of the finest quality of gaberdine.

The double-breasted full ulster model is the popular one used for our other imported English coats. Collars are large, built for cold weather comfort, and can be fastened high above the neck.

The coats have warm, fleecy linings and are developed in particularly heavy materials in mixed effects of grays and browns. One especially fine coat is in a dull green and brown shadow plaid.

Some of the blanket-like linings are removable, being provided with buttons and buttonholes so that they may be fastened firmly in the coat.

Coats made by our own tailors are of the same materials employed in developing the Burberry coats in the London shop. Only the latest models are used—the raglan effects and the loose backs, some with inverted pleats.

RAINCOATS; imported London model; full and roomy; raglan shoulders; military collar in button-to-the-neck effect; in tans, $14.75.

BURBERRY GABERDINE WEATHERPROOF COATS; full length button-to-the-neck model; windcuffs; in grays and tans, $16.74.

SAMPLE ENGLISH BURBERRY WEATHERPROOF COATS of Gaberdine; tan; with warm, fleecy lining; value $47.74; specially priced, $24.74.

TWEED EFFECTS IN CLOTH BURBERRY COATS; square raglan shoulders; lined throughout with large plaid lining; or with yoke and sleeves silk lined; medium weight, $21.74 to $37.74.

IMPORTED ENGLISH COATS, in gray-brown effects; full D. B. ulster model; warm, fleecy lining, $33.74.

FUR MOTOR COATS—Manchurian Dogskin, $12.49 to $39.74. Russian Calfskin, $22.74 to $42.84. Raccoon, $39.74 to $149.00.

MEN'S HATS THAT FIT ALL ROUND

Every man's head has some peculiarity of conformation.

Therein lies the value of our comprehensive assortment. We have a hat for every head.

Some of the hats one sees about the city are reminiscent of the curate's egg, which was good in parts—they fit in parts.

Some of them fit in front, very well indeed when the back is tilted a little. Some fit at the back, leaving the front only a trifle out of alignment.

There are Derbies as stiff as the prices asked for them. Others as soft as those who buy them.

The ideal shape, style, weight and poise is difficult to find, but it is worth looking for, especially as to have the hat right need cost nothing extra.

The "Regular Macy Saving" ought to be as well known to men as to women.

We sell reliable Derbies as low as $1.88; $2.74 and $3.49 are our other prices—the higher the price the greater your saving.

Caps, too; 49c up to $2.74. You ought to have one.

ALDRICH MONEY PLAN REVISION COMPLETE

Reserve Association Banking and Currency System Perfected, Report May Be Published To-day.

MATERIAL CHANGES FEW

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 19.—Senator Aldrich has been in Washington the past few days putting the last touches on his final recommendations upon the changes he will ask the National Monetary Commission to propose in the currency system of the country. His recommendations embodied in a revised report to the Monetary Commission to-day will probably be made public to-morrow. In general they will conform to his original letter of recommendation, which met with the general approval of the commission.

The efforts in a certain quarter to get rid of the name of Aldrich from the plan on which the former Rhode Island Senator has done so much work seems to have made little headway, and Mr. Aldrich will continue the campaign of education in which he has already taken a prominent part. His plan, it is thought, will have the formal indorsement of the Secretary of the Treasury in the annual report to Congress, which Secretary MacVeagh is now writing at his home in Dublin, N. H. Assistant Secretary of the Treasury A. Piatt Andrew, formerly expert assistant of the commission, has been assisting Mr. Aldrich in the work of revision.

In continuing their plan of education throughout the country Mr. Aldrich, with Assistant Secretary Andrew, will speak on Oct. 25 and 26 at Indianapolis before the Indiana Bankers' Association. Nov. 10 Mr. Aldrich will speak in Chicago before the Western Economic Association, No. 14 before the Trans-Mississippi Commercial Congress at Kansas City, and Nov. 17 before the American Bankers' Association at New Orleans.

About the same time a sub-committee of the Monetary Commission, headed by Vice Chairman Edward B. Vreeland of New York, wil go to the Pacific Coast, and return to Washington about Nov. 15. This sub-committee will give hearings on the currency reform question in a number of cities, including St. Paul, Minneapolis, Seattle, San Francisco, Denver, St. Louis, and Kansas City.

In spite of the efforts of Mr. Aldrich of the Monetary Commission and of the Administration it is doubted if there will be financial legislation at the approaching session. For many reasons it will be difficult to get Congress to act with a Presidential campaign so close, but there will be much discussion of the subject in both houses this Winter.

While Mr. Aldrich in his revised plan preserves the general outlines of his former proposals he makes many changes to meet objections that have been raised lately. From the political point of view the most important modification of his original scheme is a provision to prevent the localization of the control of the system. This is presumably intended to prevent Wall Street from dominating the machinery of the National Reserve Association. Under the new provisions New York will not be entitled to more than one-tenth of the places on the governing body, though her banks represent one-fifth of the country's banking business.

In order to win Southern Democratic support a change is made in the provision transforming State banks and trust companies into National corporations and admitting them as such. In the new plan a way is provided for admitting them under their State Charters so that they may receive the new currency and also have a voice in the administration of the National Reserve Association. Provision is made, of course, for the inspection of State concerns availing themselves of the opportunity.

One objection raised against the new currency proposed by Mr. Aldrich was that it would send the old 2 per cent. bonds now used as a basis for National bank note circulation, far below par. To meet that contention Mr. Aldrich believes he has devised a way for taking care of the twos. The first plan was simply to have them exchange for threes, but that would have meant a loss of millions of dollars each year to the Government. Mr. Aldrich finally hit upon the scheme of authorizing such an exchange, but levying at the same time a tax of 1½ per cent. upon the bonds when held by banks. This it is thought, would induce the banks to sell to private holders, who would receive the full 3 per cent. rate.

Most of the questions treated in the original plan are rehandled with great detail as the result of discussions and conferences which have been going on since the plan was first suggested.

Briefly, the Aldrich plan still provides for the organization of the National Reserve Association, with capital of approximately $300,000,000, in which the United States Government and the banks owning shares in the association shall be the only depositors. The plan of dividing the United States at first into fifteen financial districts remains unchanged. In each district the banks shall form local associations of their own, which in turn will be represented in the branches and finally in the central organization through a system of election of Directors, which, it is said, will make it impossible for any section or set of bankers to control the whole.

To provide for the $730,000,000 of 2 per cent. Government bonds now owned by the National banks and used as the basis of note circulation, which are to be absorbed by the reserve association, the following plan is proposed:

Upon the application of the reserve association the Secretary of the Treasury shall exchange the 2 per cent. bonds, which the association will buy from the banks at par and accrued interest, for a new issue of 3 per cent. securities, payable fifty years after the date of issue.

The reserve association will pay to the Government a special franchise tax of 1½ per cent. per year on the amount of such bonds. As the Government's actual interest charge on the 2 per cents is now actually 1½ per cent., since the banks pay back a half of 1 per cent. as a tax when the bonds are used as the basis of note circulation, this will reimburse the Government for the extra interest it will be called upon to pay as a result of exchanging the twos for threes.

One effect of the exchange will be to enable the Government to provide permanently for a large portion of the interest-bearing public debt at a net interest charge of 1½ per cent. This arrangement proposes a solution of what many financiers declared the greatest obstacle to the plan. It disposes permanently of the bond-secured currency without loss to the Government and without imposing upon the reserve association the ownership of the $730,000,000 2 per cent. bonds.

The association will agree to hold the 3 per cents for fifty years, but the Secretary of the Treasury after five years will have the option of permitting the association to sell the securities at a rate not greater than $50,000,000 a year. The Government may reserve the right to redeem any of the bonds before maturity, to buy any of them at par for the trustees of the postal savings system, or otherwise.

Provisions for the election of Directors have been changed in the revised plan, with the idea of minimizing the possibility of control by any section or group. There still will be forty-five Directors, as in the original plan, six members ex officio, viz.: The Governor of the association, his two Deputies, the Secretary of the Treasury, the Secretary of Commerce and Labor, and the Controller of the Currency.

Each of the fifteen financial districts of the country will elect one Director; twelve others will be elected by the shareholders, and these twenty-seven will elect to the board twelve additional members, who shall not be officers of banks but may be Directors in them, and who shall fairly represent the industrial, agricultural, commercial, and other interests of the country.

The completed plan provides that of the twenty-four Directors in the latter groups not more than three may be elected from any one district. As an instance, the effect of this provision would be to limit the State of New York, which has about one-fifth the banking capital of the country and which is the seat of the great financial interests, to four Directors among the thirty-nine who are elected.

In the organization of the Executive Committee of nine members, upon which it has been said much of the active management of the association would fall, only one of the five elected members (the other four being the Governor of the association, his two Deputies, and the Controller of the Currency, ex officio) may be chosen from any one district. The whole Board of Directors may reserve to itself any authority it desires, and is not bound to vest the Executive Committee with full control.

The original plan provided that the Governor of the association should be appointed by the President of the United States from a list of names submitted by the Board of Directors and that the President should also have power to remove the Governor. The revised plan reserves the right of removal to a two-thirds vote of the board.

One important change is the admission to membership of State banks and trust companies which conform to a required standard. A State bank or trust company to be eligible must conform to the same standard as National banks regarding the relation of its capital to the population of the community it serves: regarding the reserves to be held against deposits: and must conform to a certain standard regarding examinations and reports.

Requirements for reserves to be held against deposits are made the same for National banks, State banks, and trust companies, but the present reserve requirements of National banks are modified to the extent of requiring no reserves against time deposits, except for the thirty days preceding their maturity. This provision, which resembles those in the trust company laws of some States, is expected to make it more profitable for National banks to hold time deposits in competition with trust companies. Banks of all classes will have the full use of time deposits without reserve restrictions until thirty days from maturing time, when standard reserves will be required.

A provision that the association shall discount for any member notes and bills of exchange arising out of commercial transactions is further developed in the line of preventing the granting of loans upon securities. The notes and bills eligible for discount by the association are restricted to such notes and bills of exchange as are "issued or drawn for agricultural, industrial, or commercial purposes and not for carrying stocks, bonds, or other investment securities. This interpretation will exclude brokers' notes for carrying stocks. Banks under this provision, it is said, will be encouraged to carry their auxiliary reserves in commercial paper, instantly convertible into cash, instead of in call loans on the stock market.

National banks will have the right to establish savings departments and to lend not more than 40 per cent. of such deposits upon productive real estate, in loans not exceeding 50 per cent. of the value of the property. The National Bank act now prohibits such loans, but there is constant demand for them, especially in the West. Savings deposits in any of the banks in the association shall be subject to thirty days' notice before withdrawal and shall be covered by a reserve of 40 per cent. of that required for demand deposits in the same locality.

For the reserves of the association it is proposed that 50 per cent. of its demand liabilities, including deposits and note issue, shall be covered by gold or other lawful money, with a provision that whenever the reserve falls below 50 per cent. the association is bound to pay to the Government a special tax, which increases in rate in proportion to the deficiency. The operation of this in such instances is expected to stimulate an increase in the rate of discount and to bring in gold until the reserves again become normal.

Another new provision specifies that any local association may assume and exercise the powers and functions of a clearing house. In this respect some existing clearing houses are expected to become local associations. All local associations will be required to appoint examiners, which is a development of the movement for local clearing house examiners now being promoted throughout the country.

One criticism of the first plan was that there was no way to remove a bank from an association. It has been provided that a local association may suspend a bank which fails to maintain its reserves or comply with other requirements of the law.

It is also provided that the note issue of the association shall at all times be covered by at least one-third in gold or other lawful money. Any notes, however, issued in excess of $900,000,000 must either be covered by lawful money in full or pay a special tax at the rate of 1½ per cent. a year. Any notes issued in excess of $1,200,000,000 not covered by lawful money will pay a tax of 5 per cent.

Mr. Aldrich, in transmitting the plan to the commission, said that the system of reserves and taxes provided is expected "to insure the maintenance of adequate reserves by the association and otherwise to provide such effective regulation of discounts and note issues as would enable the organization to respond promptly at all times to normal or unusual demands for credit or currency without danger of undue expansion or inflation."

The features outlined are the only substantial changes in the plan as it was submitted tentatively to the commission last January by Mr. Aldrich, although detailed qualifications were introduced at many other points.

PLAN GREATLY CHANGED.

Mr. Cannon Says Some Features of Original Aldrich Draft Are Eliminated

The Aldrich currency system, soon to be announced, was not devised by ex-Senator Aldrich at all, but by some other of the brightest minds in this country, according to James G. Cannon, President of the Fourth National Bank, who spoke last night at the Catholic Club on the panic of 1907.

President Cannon paused to say this in the midst of an earnest appeal for the proposed monetary plan which, he said, would be public in a few days. He intimated that it had been greatly modified from the draft made known by ex-Senator Aldrich about a year ago, and expressed a belief that it would be found satisfactory to a majority of the bankers and people of the United States, and would make panics in the future improbable if not actually impossible.

"Get a copy of the plan as soon as it is out," advised President Cannon, speaking to an assemblage of prominent business men, lawyers, doctors, and judges, "and read it carefully.

"I have talked with bankers all over this country in the last few months, and I find practically all of them pleased with it. I believe it more nearly meets the needs of the country than anything that has ever been devised. There are many new things in it. It can yet be improved, no doubt, but many of the objectionable features in the old plan have been removed in recent revisions."

Mr. Cannon did not say what its new features were, but in earlier parts of his address he declared that the issuance of Clearing House certificates had saved the country in 1907, and he believed it filled almost to perfection one of the two great needs in time of panic.

"Clearing House loan certificates," said he in this connection, "create an elasticity in the assets of banks. In times of stress what banks require are assets that are readily converted into cash, and which will pay depositors as well as afford a basis for the creation of new loans.

"At such times banks need expansion in the right direction, and not contraction. In an address which I delivered at Columbia University in Decembeer, 1907, in the midst of the panic, I stated I believed that in the adaptation of the Clearing House loan certificate we had a solution of the currency problem in this country, and the more study I have given to the subject the more I am convinced of the soundness of my contention."

In the light of these remarks many present seemed to think that the Clearing House loan certificate was one of the features of the new monetary plan.

"We do not need more fixed currency in this country," continued Mr. Cannon, "but we need flexibility in what we have to meet emergencies such as arose in 1907. Any currency issued in such an emergency should be promptly retired as soon as its usefulness has ceased.

"In times of panic or extremely tight money the banks need something that will enable them to convert their fixed assets into liquid assets without calling upon borrowers for payment of their loans, and with these new liquid assets furnish further credit to their customers. In such times the demands of occasional as well as all other borrowers upon banks are very large. It is really the purpose of the Clearing House loan certificates to allow the banks to take to the Clearing House their fixed assets, and convert them into a medium of exchange between themselves, thus allowing the extension of further credit, which credit is utilized by their depositors through the Clearing House.

"Add to this function one more and we shall have all that is needed to meet any emergency that may arise, namely, a currency to take the place of that which is hoarded. The hoarding of money always accompanies panics. This feature was especially noticeable during the late panic, because the use of such a large volume of Clearing House loan certificates in settlement of balances served to drive currency out of circulation among the banks.

"Panic always produces fright, not only among the public at large, but also among the banks themselves, and if at such a time we could have a safe currency which would fill in the gap temporarily and thus allay that fear, we should solve the problem as far as the banks are concerned."

President Cannon's address was frequently halted by applause from the large audience, and at its conclusion the club voted him its thanks.

In presenting Mr. Cannon, President Michael J. Mulqueen stated that few panics were regarded as a blessing to the country, but that not a few people had come to think of the panic of 1907 as a blessing in disguise. Extravagance in this country was running riot prior to that time, he said, and the panic served to wake up the country to this fact and to send it back to sound business methods.

With President Cannon's address the club began a series of talks on important current topics, which are to be given monthly throughout the Winter.

TAFT IN MONTANA TALKS ON WOOL

"I Am a Moderate Protectionist," President Says to Audience at Billings.

WARM WELCOME AT BUTTE

Dates in Supplemental Tour Arranged —To Visit Nashville and Chattanooga.

BUTTE, Mont., Oct. 19.—President Taft came into Montana to-day from the South more than an hour behind schedule. In place of temperature of 95 degrees that he encountered at Los Angeles, Mr. Taft found snow and frozen streams here to-day. His stay in Butte was not long.

Mr. Taft was the guest of the Butte News Writers' Union, the first organization to extend an invitation to him when it was announced he contemplated a Western trip. The weather was fine and the streets were lined with crowds that gave the President an enthusiastic greeting.

At the breakfast at the Silver Bow Club 300 representative men throughout the State greeted the President. Afterward the President made an address in which he spoke of the agricultural possibilities of the State, and congratulated it on the high percentage of its people already on the farm. Following his address, he was presented with an oil painting by Charles Russell, the cowboy artist, representing a cowboy roping a grizzly bear.

BILLINGS, Mont., Oct. 19.—The itinerary of President Taft's "supplemental tour" was completed to-day and the date of his return to Washington was fixed for Nov. 12. The original trip will end at Pittsburgh Oct. 31.

Mr. Taft will spend Nov. 1 at Morgantown, W. Va., and from there will go to Hot Springs, Va., for five days. He will spend only one day at Cincinnati, Nov. 7, when he will vote at the local elections.

From Cincinnati the President will go to Louisville to spend Nov. 8. He will be at Frankfort, Ky., Nov. 9, and Hodgenville, Ky., to attend the Lincoln Farm celebration Nov. 10. On Nov. 11 Mr. Taft will pay hurried visits to Nashville, Tenn.; Sewanee, Tenn., to visit the University of the South, where Major "Archie" Butt once went to school, and to Chattanooga. From the latter city Mr. Taft will go directly to Washington.

Gov. Norris, a Democrat, and Senator Dixon, a Republican, were among the prominent guests aboard the Presidential train to-day. Senator Meyers, a Democrat, sent a telegram of greeting.

Senator Dixon announced that he was in favor of early ratification of the arbitration treaties with Great Britain and France. In practically every State he has visited thus far the President has received pledges of support from the Senators who have heard his addresses in advocacy of the compacts.

There were ten-minute stops at Three Forks, Bozeman, and Livingston, on the way to Billings. Here the President was entertained at dinner and made an address in a theatre. Leaving here at midnight, Mr. Taft will spend Friday in Wyoming, and Saturday, Sunday, and Monday in South Dakota.

In several of his speeches to-day the President referred feelingly to the recent death of former Senator Thomas H. Carter of this State.

"One of the troubles about getting beyond fifty," he said, "is that so many men begin to fall about you. You think one year is an exception, but it is the same the next and then you begin to realize that you are among the eligibles yourself."

"I am a moderate protectionist," he declared, "elected on a protectionist platform, and in order to maintain my pledge I was obliged to veto the bill. But there is coming on the first of December a report on the whole subject of the wool and woolen industry, with a statement as to the difference in the cost of production in this country and abroad, and when that report comes in it will be my duty to make a recommendation to Congress as to the needed changes in Schedule K.

"I understand that the question is, up here, whether we should tax wool in the grease or the scoured wool. I understand that the Montana woolgrowers favor the latter. That question was before the Tariff Board and we shall hear from that which is the more practical and the more just. When we get that information and make the recommendations I sincerely hope that Congress will act both in justice to the consumer and in justice to those who are raising wool and those who are manufacturing woolens."

FEARED ATTACK ON RECALL.

Gov. Johnson Said That's Why He Did Not Attend Taft Dinner.

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 19.—Gov. Hiram W. Johnson of California, said he did not attend the dinner to President Taft, given last Friday night by the Directors of the Panama-Pacific International Exposition, because he did not wish to embarrass the President through a possible attack on the recall of the judiciary and direct nomination, which were made a part of the California Constitution by the recent election.

"Our only thought," said Gov. Johnson, "was to extend to the Chief Executive of the Nation fitting greetings and to render his stay all that he could wish. Wherever there was a possibility of any untoward event we sought to avoid it, as at the San Francisco banquet.

"It required no inscrutable power to divine that somebody at the dinner might attack the action of our people upon direct nomination, and that the dignity of the occasion might not be marred we absented ourselves."

WILSON TO RETIRE?

Secretary of Agriculture and President Deny Washington Rumor.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 19.—It is again reported in this city, though Secretary of Agriculture James Wilson and President Taft both deny it, that Secretary Wilson will retire on Nov. 15. It was reported to-day that he had sent his letter of resignation to the President, and that it had been accepted.

A few days ago it became known that Jasper Wilson, the Secretary's son, and for a number of years Chief Clerk of the department, had gone into private business, and that was taken to mean that his father would also retire.

Mr. Wilson has been in the Cabinet since 1897, his service of fifteen years being longer than that of any other Cabinet officer in the history of the country. When Mr. Taft was inaugurated it was pretty generally believed that the Secretary would remain only a few months, just long enough to allow him to break the record. But when that period elapsed he showed no desire to retire, and reports of new dates for his resignation have been started at intervals ever since. Mr. Wilson is now 76 years old.

Since the President's support of Dr. Wiley became known Mr. Wilson's retirement has been regarded as only a matter of time.

Secretary Wilson reached here to-night from Chicago, and denied the rumor that he had handed his resignation to President Taft.

"There is absolutely no justification for the rumor," he declared emphatically. "I have no thought of handing in my resignation any time soon."

LIVINGSTON, Mont., Oct. 19.—When told on his arrival here of the rumors that Secretary of Agriculture Wilson had tendered his resignation President Taft said the reports were without foundation.

The Moral Side of a Safe Deposit Box

It isn't the habit of hoarding, but the habit of MULTIPLYING that is promoted by a safe deposit box.

There is an atmosphere of coupons and interest—of investment and reinvestment—a tightening up of the loose screws of your business affairs, the moment you become a box holder.

To be neighbors with the thrifty means infection with the spirit of accumulation.

The man of moderate affairs needs the TONIC as much as the security—and he needs the security as much as the man of millions.

His bonds, his mortgages, his policies and his private documents—the visible representatives of his fortune—should not be exposed to the dangers of the office safe or the strong box made of tin.

Among our 16,000 boxes and private vaults all classes are represented. One man began ten years ago with a $5 box. He has increased the size of the box year by year until now he requires a $50 box.

The chrome steel doors to our vaults—the largest and strongest safe deposit vaults in the world—guard the securities of many of the great fortunes and trust funds of America.

They likewise furnish protection and encouragement to thousands of men and women whose valuables represent DAILY PERSONAL EFFORT.

CHOICE OF WINGDALE DEFENDED BY BOARD

ADVANTAGE OVER SING SING

Healthy Locality, Water Supply Ample, and Situation Convenient for New York City.

ALBANY, Oct. 19.—The former members of the State Commission on New Prisons—Messrs. Johnson, West, Skiff, and Collins—to-day issued a statement in relation to the Harlem Prison at Wingdale. They say in part:

"Previous to 1905 the insanitary condition of Sing Sing Prison was a matter of common knowledge and had received unfavorable comment from the public press and prison officials for many years. A commission reported on Jan. 24, 1906, that it had carefully inspected the institution at Sing Sing, and that the site at Sing Sing is too low to afford facilities for proper drainage and is otherwise insanitary. The commission therefore recommended the ultimate abandonment of this site and the construction of a new prison upon a new site..

"The commission, as finally made up by Gov. Hughes, after a full examination of many sites presented, selected the one at Wingdale. This was approved by Gov. Hughes and the State Commission of Prisons, and purchased. This consists of four improved farms containing 615 acres, with buildings valued at not less than $20,000, all of which can be utilized by the State. The cost of this site was $60,171.50. As these lands lie in one of the best farming sections in Dutchess County, adjacent to the Harlem Railroad, and contain within themselves an abundant water supply for the proposed prison, the commission deemed the cost reasonable. So directed by the Legislature, the commission at once proceeded with the necessary preliminary work of letting the contract for the construction of this plant on this site, and in December last this contract was let to the P. J. Carlin Construction Company of New York. It thus appears that it has been the settled policy of the State for the last five years to construct a new prison plant to take the place of Sing Sing.

"It has been particularly urged that a new prison plant should be made entirely fireproof. Such is the proposed plant at Wingdale.

"The statement that the death rate is small in Sing Sing Prison proves nothing. It is well recognized that this prison is an incubator for the breeding of tuberculosis, a disease which is not immediately fatal. Practically all prisoners who develop tuberculosis at Sing Sing are transferred to Clinton Prison, and whatever becomes of them there, the death rate is not charged up to Sing Sing.

"The cost of maintaining a prison at Wingdale over that of one at Sing Sing would be inconsiderable. Every year about 1,000 prisoners are committed to Sing Sing, most of them from New York. Later, about 600 of these are transferred to other prisons further north. As to these 600, when they are brought to Wingdale they are simply so much further on their final journey to Dannemora and Auburn than if they had stopped at Sing Sing, so the actual extra cost would be limited to the cost of transporting about 400 prisoners forty miles further.

"At Sing Sing the State has to purchase its entire water supply from New York City. At Wingdale there is an inexhaustible water supply of pure potable water right on the site, which will be delivered to the prison by gravity.

"To stop the work at Wingdale now and throw away the cost of preparing the plans for this plant, the cost of the work already done, and pay the contractor a large sum for quitting, would not only involve the State in serious loss, but would necessarily cause another long delay in bringing relief to the deplorable conditions at Sing Sing. The Legislature would have to approve, and make an appropriation, new plans made, and a new contract let. It would probably take two or three years to advance this work to its present status, even if the Legislature approved.

"The Commission on New Prisons never received any request from the present Governor not to let the contract for the construction of this plan on the Wingdale site or to suspend work under the Carlin contract. It has endeavored to diligently execute the mandate of the Legislature directing it to construct this new prison plant on this site. The law charged it with this responsibility and duty, and it has endeavored to carry into effect the requirements of the law, knowing the urgent need of such new prison. This law is still in force, and the Legislature at its very latest session refused to change it or authorize the suspension of this work or the cancellation of the Carlin contract. This commission had no option under the law but to proceed with this work, and believes it would be a serious blunder to release the contractor and his bondsmen from their obligation in the premises."

The statement is signed by Elisha M. Johnson, John C. West, George S. Skiff, and C. V. Collins.

DIX HAS FOUR BILLS LEFT.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, N. Y., Oct. 19.—Only four of the acts of the last Legislature remain to be passed upon by the Governor. He went to Lake George this afternoon, taking three of these with him. The most important one appropriates $1,450,000—$50,000 to be available immediately for the rehabilitation of the State Library. Senator Grady's equal pay for teachers bill has not been returned by Mayor Gaynor.

During the day the Governor signed eleven and vetoed nine bills. Out of the Supplemental Supply bill he cut out only the $2,500 item for the Perry's Victory Centennial Commission, leaving intact the $50,000 item for the Bayne committee, which is inquiring into Albany's conditions. This Supplemental Supply bill, which was Senator Frawley's, appropriated $139,999 and reappropriated $130,914.

Other measures the Governor approved are A. E. Smith's, reapportioning the State into forty-three Congressional districts, and Senator Ferris's so-called "Direct Primary bill," Assemblyman Hoey's for a fire prevention bureau under the New York City Fire Commissioners, which is similar to the State law administered under Fire Marshal Thomas Ahearn, and W. R. Herrick's authorizing the State Armory Commission to sell the State Arsenal lands and buildings at Seventh Avenue and Thirty-fifth Street, in New York City, and authorizing the purchase of a new site for a new arsenal building.

The bills vetoed by the Governor include Senator Frawley's appropriating $35,938 to pay the counsel employed for the removal of ex-Senator Jotham P. Allds, holding that the State's liability is not legislative nor executive, but judicial, and relief must be sought through the Board of Claims; Senator Grady's to exempt from the collateral inheritance tax bonds and other obligations of New York State; the late Assemblyman Oliver's to incorporate the World Bible League, and Senator Frawley's for the payment to John R. Voorhis of compensation for services actually rendered New York City in the office of Borough President of Manhattan.

WRITES DIX OF FIRE PERILS.

A. I. Elkus Requests That Labor Bureau Take Action in New York.

ALBANY, N. Y., Oct. 19.—Complaint that a great many of the 2,000 or more violations of the law relating to precautions to be taken to prevent fire and to proper and adequate egress in case of fire had been reported to the State Department of Labor without action being taken on them "as far as the Fire Chief knows," was made to Gov. Dix to-day.

Abram I. Elkus of New York, counsel to the State Factory Commission, appointed to investigate conditions under which manufacturing is carried on in first and second class cities, makes the complaint.

In his reply Gov. Dix says he has sent a copy of Mr. Elkus's letter to the Commissioner of Labor, requesting him "to answer direct to you." The Governor also says that to-day he signed the Hoey bill, giving the Fire Inspector authority to compel the removal of combustible material and take such other precautions as should be taken to reduce fire risks.

"I regret that the bill does not extend far enough the scope of the Inspectors," says the Governor, "and I shall recommend at the next session of the Legislature that the law be amplified, for I am determined to have employes in factories surrounded by the best of safeguards and protected from the hazard of fire, as far as human agency can protect."

NELLIE BLY IN CONTEMPT.

Referee Says She Took Office Furniture That Didn't Belong to Her.

In a report filed in the United States District Court in Brooklyn by Referee Robert F. Tilney yesterday Mrs. Elizabeth C. Seaman (Nellie Bly) is found to be in contempt of court for placing in storage instead of turning over to the receiver of the Ironclad Manufacturing Company the furniture of several lounging and rest rooms which she formerly maintained for the employes of that factory and the American Steel Barrel Company in an office building occupied jointly by both companies at 206 Varet Street, Brooklyn. Title to it was recently transferred to ex-Controller Metz.

The office furniture was purchased by Mrs. Seaman in carrying out her idea of a recreation centre for her employes. She maintained that it was her personal property. Receiver Appleton L. Clark, who was placed in charge of Mrs. Seaman's Ironclad Company, held that there was an inventory in existence showing that the furniture was the Ironclad Company's property.

Mrs. Seaman was ordered in the referee's findings to turn the warehouse receipts for the furniture over to the receiver. Certain machinery which had been on the premises of the Ironclad Company up to the time Receiver Clark took possession at the instance of three of Mrs. Seaman's creditors was found by him to have been carried across the street to the Steel Barrel Company's plant.

These, according to Mrs. Seaman, were "dental machines," which had come from a business carried on for a time and then abandoned by the late Robert Seaman. The referee finds that they should be returned to the receiver, along with typewriters and office fixtures removed at the same time.

Mrs. Seaman has already returned part of the machinery, the referee finds, under a stipulated agreement that she would return them all. While she denied that she had personally ordered the machines to be moved from the Ironclad plant, the referee's report holds that there was conflicting testimony on this point, and that he chose to take the word of an employe engaged to make the removals. On the finding of contempt the referee recommends "such punishment as the court may see fit to direct."

PAID ALBANY PAPERS TWICE FOR PRINTING

State Settled First and County Duplicated for Same Work to Extent of $15,000.

BARNES'S JOURNAL INVOLVED

Argus Also Shared in Double Pay—No Restitution Made Up to the Present Time.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, N. Y., Oct. 19.—Thousands of dollars were spent in paying duplicate bills presented by the Journal Company for work only once done, according to evidence presented to-day before the Senatorial Committee, which is investigating the affairs of Albany County and city offices. The Albany Journal, practically owned by William Barnes, Jr., Republican State Chairman, was designated as the official State paper for several years. It was also designated as one of the Albany County papers. As the State paper, it published all the session laws. As the county paper, it published such laws as are applicable to Albany County.

For several years, under these designations, the paper published the laws once. The State paid for the printing, and the county also paid for such county laws as appeared. The accountants employed by James W. Osborne, counsel of the Investigating Committee, estimated that about $15,000 had been paid for duplications in this way. In 1907 Democratic State officials objected to the duplicated bills and withheld a portion of the funds. The Journal Company appealed to the Supreme Court, which decided against it. Since that time, according to the testimony, the Journal Company has made double insertions of the laws. M. V. Dolan, manager of The Argus, admitted that The Argus, as State paper, had made the same double charge.

"Has the Journal Company made restitution?" Mr. Osborne asked, while John H. Lindsay, manager of The Albany Journal, was on the stand.

"It has not," Mr. Lindsay replied.

In the case of the city printing, it was shown that the publishers of The Albany Argus, a Democratic paper, shared with the Journal Company.

One of the experts of the committee testified that on a portion of the city prining the city paid from 33 to 50 per cent. too much. The expert also declared that the provision requiring public bidding was deliberately evaded.

Mr. Osborne put in the record a list of the stockholders of the Argus Company, in which it was shown that out of 500 shares Anthony N. Brady of New York owned twenty-five, Edward Murphy, 2d, of Troy, fifty, and the Argus Company 190. He also read a list of the stockholders of the J. B. Lyon Company, which is the State printer. It was shown that Mr. Barnes owns a quarter of the stock of that company.

The Senae Chamber was crowded early to-day in anticipation of testimony by Mr. Barnes, the Republican leader of Albany County. Mr. Barnes was present in response to a subpoena, but he was excused until Tuesday morning, when Mr. Osborne expects that the inquiry so far as it relates to public printing will be completed.

When asked to-day if he knew why he had been excused, Mr. Barnes said he had no doubt that Patrick E. McCabe, Democratic State Committeeman, had told Mr. Osborne that he called him too soon before election.

SUES FOR ITS PLATINUM.

Government Extracted Large Quantity from Its Bullion, Says Copper Works.

The Raritan Copper Works, a New Jersey corporation, charges that the United States Assay Office here and at the Philadelphia Mint has retained from it a quantity of platinum, worth not less than $1,000 nor more than $10,000, in a suit filed yesterday in the United States Circuit Court.

Since 1906 the Government has used the Aachen electrolitic system, both at the Assay Office here and at the Philadelphia Mint, and by this means has extracted from the bullion of the plaintiff a good deal of platinum. The company has, it alleges, demanded that the platinum thus separated be returned to it with the gold and silver contained in the ores it handed in in the course of general business. It is now suing for the platinum, which, it alleges, has become very valuable, but declares that it cannot say exactly how much was refined without going through the books of the Government.

FOR NATIONAL RESERVE PLAN

William Sloane Speaks for Citizens' League in Support of It.

William Sloane, head of W. & J. Sloane and Chairman of the Finance Committee of the recently organized New York Branch of the National Citizens' League, issued a statement yesterday urging the establishment of a National Reserve Association which would hold the reserves of National, State, and savings banks and use them in cases of emergency along the lines which the National Monetary Commission and other banking reform bodies have recently advised.

The establishment of a National Reserve Association would have the effect, according to Mr. Sloane, of relieving business from dependence on Wall Street, would tend to stop panics, prevent the alienation of foreign capital, put an end to the dependence of banks on single powerful individuals during panic times, and make the issuance of Clearing House notes unnecessary during panics.

"The National Reserve Association, if established, would be managed by the Government and by business men, as well as by bankers," said Mr. Sloane. "I don't mean to disparage the bankers, but banks ought to exist for this country's business, and not the country's business for the banks. The stake that the business interests of the country have in the currency problem is much greater than most people realize. When the banks desert the merchants and manufacturers during panics the latter can't meet their payrolls. Unsatisfactory currency conditions keep capital from being invested, retard our industrial progress, stifle employment, and create economic waste all along the line. Foreign capital is also diverted. And it must not be forgotten that foreign capital is to be thanked for building our railroads and many other of our great industries. The farmer and the laborer owe much more to foreign capital than they realize. Foreign investors today, I can state sincerely, regard this country in much the same way as we regard the South American republics.

"We think of the panic of 1907 as a most unusual happening. But, in reality, it is only a fair example of what may happen at any time if we allow our currency system to remain in an unsatisfactory condition. When our banks broke down in 1907 we were compelled to go to powerful individuals for financial assistance. A number of banks leaned on a single individual for support. Such a procedure constitutes dangerous individualism. It is in direct opposition to our very theory of government.

"The establishment of a National Reserve Association would prevent our banks from being obliged to lean on any individual for support. The banks would get such support as they needed through their own co-operative organization. It would also make the issuing of Clearing House certificates—to which we had to resort in 1907—unnecessary, because it would be itself a development of the clearing-house idea. The success of the Clearing House in this city is an excellent answer to the argument that the National Reserve Association would be liable to political control. The New York Clearing House has never been touched by politics, and has stopped every panic since the civil war.

"The National Reserve Association would resemble the Clearing House in being a co-operative institution. But it would carry the co-operative principle in banking to a much higher degree. It would give our banks greater convenience of exchange in normal times and greater safety in panic times. It would do this by establishing closer relations between city banks and country banks. The country bank would feel that it was an intrinsic part of a great, sound National association. Because of this National backing the influence of the small country bank for good business in every community would be strengthened. The National Reserve Association, indeed, is a logical, inevitable step in American banking. The prevention of panics by the establishment of a National Reserve Association is the principal object of the National Citizens' League."

Business at present all over the country is from 15 to 35 per cent. off normal as a result of the 1907 panic, Mr. Sloane said.

MANY NATIONS ON BOARD.

Nearly Every Country Represented on the St. Paul's Passenger List.

The most remarkable collection of passengers ever arriving at this port on one steamship, according to the immigration men, came in yesterday morning on the American liner St. Paul. She was a ship of all nations, for, according to an official, who went over her lists, nearly every country in the world was represented. She brought 100 first, 400 second, and 492 steerage passengers.

The most picturesque passengers were fifty American Indians of the Sioux tribe, led by Chiefs Little Bull, a medicine man of note; Flat Iron, who says he is 105 years old; Spotted Weasel, and Good Horse. They are returning to the Pine Ridge Agency, South Dakota, after a not too successful tour as amusement providers abroad.

Besides the Americans and Englishmen, Japan, China, Portugal, Ceylon, Germany, France, Spain, Holland, Russia, Poland, Ireland, Italy, Sweden, Norway, Africa, the Balkan States, Persia, and Turkey were also represented.

The Indians gave an entertainment during the voyage, at which they chanted their songs and did their dances. A baby was born in the steerage. The child's father hails from Ireland and its mother from England. The passengers subscribed a purse for the child.

GAVE GIRL PASTORAL ADVICE IN A PARK

HIS WIFE STANDS BY HIM

He Was Doing Only His Christian Duty, She Says, and She Knew All About It.

Because he chose the wooded reaches of Prospect Park and the quiet hours of late evening as the time and place for the delivery of pastoral advice and consolation to a young woman member of his flock, the Rev. Dr. E. B. Shaw is preparing to abandon the pastorate of the Memorial Baptist Church, Eighth Avenue and Sixteenth Street, in the Park Slope section of Brooklyn, at the end of the year.

Dr. Shaw is leaving quite of his own accord, for a majority of the Deacons stood by him and refused to accept the resignation he offered. With thanks for this evidence of their belief in him, however, Dr. Shaw insisted that his friends allow him to surrender his pulpit to another man.

Dr. Shaw's wife, at his home, 427 Sixteenth Street, last night corroborated the report of his resignation and of the causes that had led up to it. She declared, however, that she had perfect faith in her husband and in his explanation that his meetings with the young woman had been in line with his duties as pastor.

They were held in the park, said Mrs. Shaw, because, in her absence from home on a vacation, the minister could scarcely invite a girl to his home. They were held late in the evening, she said, because they usually followed the Sunday evening service when it was most convenient for Dr. Shaw to spare his young parishioner a little of his time.

Dr. Shaw was unwilling to say much about the trouble which has come upon him except to defend himself, as Mrs. Shaw had done. Neither of them had a word of reproach for the action of the congregation. They seemed to look on that as an unfortunate result of perfectly innocent circumstances. Dr. Shaw was most interested in defending the young woman, Miss Clara King, of 297 Classon Avenue, who had sought his advice.

She is a self-supporting girl of admirable character, said the minister, but of high spirit also, and this, he explained, had caused her some weeks ago to leave her home, where she found herself unable to get along happily with her mother and brother, and to seek a boarding place in Classon Avenue. Though acting on her own initiative, the girl worried over her course and sought the advice of her pastor, said Dr. Shaw. It was something he could not refuse and the meetings with her resulted.

A written report handed to the Board of Deacons by a young man of the congregation seemed to indicate that the minister took an exceedingly great interest in the welfare of the young woman. It was prepared by Benjamin Miller and recounted the adventures of himself, Alfred Fluhr of 516 Eighteenth Street, and Al Robb, also members of Dr. Shaw's flock, while shadowing the minister on two occasions.

The first encounter with Dr. Shaw occurred according to this report, as quoted by Fluhr last night, on the night of Sept. 3. Fluhr and Miller about 10:30 o'clock were astonished to observe their pastor in Ninth Avenue, not far from his church, attired in a light topcoat and slouch hat. His unusual apparel interested them so much that they followed him, and say they were astonished anew to see him meet a young woman in Prospect Park. They followed the couple for half a mile to the band stand, where they say Dr. Shaw and the girl took seats on a bench.

The girl wore a large white hat, which loomed clear in the darkness, and the young men were much interested, they say, to observe it rest alternately on Dr. Shaw's right and then his left shoulder. The intervals of passage from shoulder to shoulder were long and marked, say the young men, by an exchange of kisses. After about an hour the young men say the minister and the girl arose, walked through the park, and took a De Kalb Avenue car to the girl's home, which the minister entered, remaining there half an hour.

Fluhr and Miller took counsel together, according to the report, and then invited Robb to join them the following Sunday in a further investigation. This time, so Fluhr recounted in the substance of the report, Miss King lingered near the church until Dr. Shaw joined her, and then they hastened to her Classon Avenue home. The three watchers cooled their heels on the sidewalk for an hour and a half, they say, before they saw Dr. Shaw leave the house and start for home.

It was then that the report was prepared, and when the deacons had read it the matter was referred to Dr. Shaw. The latter replied on Oct. 6 with this letter:

> To the Board of Deacons:
>
> I wish to thank you for your kind offer of a few evenings ago. Let me say, however, that while I believe your intentions are honorable, yet I feel you do not fully consider the seriousness of the situation you have placed me in. My character and reputation are worth something—indeed everything, to me. I have done no moral wrong, and feel that as a Christian man I should not be treated as a leper.
>
> I am willing to serve the church for three months ending Jan. 1. Of course, if you refuse my services I must abide by your decision, but in any event I shall expect my salary to that date. Knowing your financial condition, I regret very much that I am compelled to make this demand, but I feel that some of you, at least, have magnified my unintentional indiscretions which might make it difficult for me to regain my standing in the denomination which we mutually love.
>
> I am sincerely your brother in Christ.

According to some members of Dr. Shaw's church the situation is not the result solely of the two meetings in September, but dates its beginning from a Sunday-school and church excursion in June.

Dr. Shaw is a grayhaired man, apparently about 50 years old. He has a married son at Pawtucket, R. I., and a daughter lives with him and his wife.

The Man Grappling With the Clothes Question Will Find a Ready Answer in These GIMBEL SUITS and OVERCOATS

Usually, the trouble is that a "man doesn't know much about styles, but he knows what he likes." We DO know about styles—for that's our business, in planning clothes for men. We have had the best tailors in the country working them out with us; in the handsomest cloths, and with most thorough, painstaking workmanship, that experience and money—a good combination—make possible.

So we are in a fine position to help the man who knows he needs a new Fall or Winter Suit or Overcoat, but doesn't know just what he does want. Gimbel Clothing is so very good-looking, and the fabrics are so distinguished, that they make their own appeal. Besides, the man gets FITTED, without fuss or feathers—the soft tailoring, without padding in the shoulders, that we have achieved even more successfully this season than last year, when we introduced it, assures this.

Incidentally, the man who DOES know what he likes will recognize immediately the correctness of the Gimbel styles, and easily be able to choose, in one or another of the various models, the suit or overcoat that pleases him.

In either case, let us show YOU this Gimbel Clothing—today or tomorrow.

Men's Fall and Winter Suits, $15 to $48
Men's Fall and Winter Overcoats, $15 to $65
Fourth floor

Also, for today and tomorrow, an unusual gathering of Men's Suits Specially Priced at $15, $17.50 and $20
Styles for men and young men. Soft-finished worsteds, and cassimeres, in blues, grays, browns and black—well tailored, and up to GIMBEL standards in every way.

Men's Trousers, $3 to $7.50
An unusual collection of separate Trousers to fit men of all builds. Made from reliable materials, in handsome patterns; specially fine groups at $3, $3.95 and $5 a pair.

New Suits for Youths
This being Gimbels, it seems hardly necessary to explain that these Youths' Suits are made for youths—in appropriate styles by specialists in Youths' Clothing. A fine showing at $10 to $25, with a specially interesting group at $12.

Splendid GIMBEL CLOTHING for BOYS
Our main idea in preparing this collection is, of course, to please the boys themselves with the good looks and comfort of the clothing—but with an eye out for the approval of their parents, especially from the financial point of view. Thus far this season both seem to be equally pleased.

Boys' Suits of handsome pure wool fabrics, all with two pairs of trousers, at $5, $7.50 and $10 a suit. In Norfolk jacket styles, sizes 8 to 15 years; double-breasted styles, sizes to 18 years.

Boys' Winter Overcoats—Single- or double-breasted, with convertible collars, in browns and grays, sizes 8 to 18 years, at $8.50. Finer grades at $10, $12 and $15.

Boys' Chinchilla Reefers—In navy blue, grays, and browns; warm flannel lining, velvet collar. Sizes 2 to 10 years, $7.50. Others, $10 and $12.

Boys' $12 to $18 Custom Tailored Suits, $9.75

A Special Sale of about 300 Suits from the makers of the highest grades of Boys' Clothing in New York City.

The suits are made of fine imported soft-finished fabrics, including worsteds, cassimeres, and cheviots, in desirable medium and dark shades.

In double-breasted coat styles, ages 10 to 18, and Norfolk jacket styles, ages 8 to 15.

Each suit has an extra pair of trousers, which, as parents know, practically doubles the service of the suit.

ordinarily, we should sell these suits at $12, $15, $16.50 and $18—today, $9.75 each. Fourth floor

TWO SEASIDE PARKS TO BE BOUGHT BY CITY

OTHER CONEY STRIPS LATER

Protest from Real Estate Owners' Association Ignored—City Not Near Bankruptcy, Says Controller.

The Board of Estimate, after a short debate, voted yesterday to acquire two seaside parks, the Dreamland site at Coney Island and 250 acres of land at Rockaway Beach. Both proposals have been before the board for months. The Rockaway Beach property will cost $1,225,000 and the seven acres of Dreamland beach front will cost another $1,000,000. The Rockaway Beach property is to be bought by private sale and the other by condemnation proceedings.

It was set forth at the meeting that these sums are only a portion of about $5,000,000 which is to be spent in the near future for seaside parks. There are seven and a half acres more adjoining the Dreamland site, and all the Brighton Beach property adjoining that, which the city is anxious to acquire.

Mayor Gaynor was not present when the board met, and John Purroy Mitchel, President of the Aldermen, acted in his place. President Miller of the Bronx was the only member to vote against the proposition. Dr. Abraham Korn, representing the United Real Estate Owners' Association, bitterly opposed the expenditure.

"I vote for it," said Borough President McAneny, "as one of the wisest things the city has done. I would also request that the committee having the matter in charge take up the question of an ocean boulevard and the general betterment of Coney Island, and I think we ought also to go into the question of obtaining a site at the West End of Coney Island."

Borough President Steers of Brooklyn said he would like to see the entire ocean front at Coney Island turned into a city park.

Dr. Korn also objected to the city acquiring the property at Rockaway Beach.

"The city to-day is on the edge of bankruptcy," he said. "The administration has watered the stock of the city already by inflating assessments. If the land in the city were sold at this time its real value would be found to be far less than that at which it is assessed. So far as the park sites suggested are concerned, they are impractical on account of lack of railroad facilities. The odors from Barren Island will drive every one away from the Rockaway Beach Park."

"The city is not on the verge of bankruptcy," replied Controller Prendergast. "Such a statement should not be made. The city is in an excellent condition. It has serious burdens, but it is carrying them gracefully. To-day there are $60,000,000 ready for rapid transit, and $20,000,000 more could be added to that sum without impairing the city's credit or solvency in the least. If you members of the United Real Estate Owners' Association would assist us with constructive suggestions, instead of heaping indiscriminate criticisms on us, you would be doing far better."

The Dreamland property proper includes 8.72 acres, but only 7 acres of this will be taken, and a strip of 1.72 acres about 200 feet wide extending along Surf Avenue will be left untouched. The committee thought that it would be more valuable for building purposes. The remaining property immediately adjoining contains 5.51 acres belonging to the Prospect Park & Coney Island Railroad and 1.91 acres belonging to Catherine Balmer. This will probably be taken by condemnation proceedings in a short time.

SUFFRAGETTES IN WISCONSIN

New Organization Will Fight to "Burst the Trust," Its President Says.

MILWAUKEE, Oct. 19.—The American Suffragettes, a new organization, was launched to-day as the first step in Wisconsin to "burst the trust," as it was put by Mary Swain Wagner, an Eastern woman, who has been working here in the interest of votes for women. Miss Wagner was elected President of the new organization.

"The American Suffragettes," said Miss Wagner, "will adopt all progressive and aggressive methods. We shall have charge of the lectures of Mrs. Pankhurst in Milwaukee and other cities in Wisconsin, and hope to set the pace for a live campaign."

Calls Legislature to Pay Troops.

JACKSON, Miss., Oct. 19.—Gov. Noel issued a proclamation to-day calling the Mississippi Legislature to convene in special session Nov. 1, "to adequately meet Mississippi's moral obligations, to comply with the terms of the bond issue of 1910, and to defray expenses of State troops now on duty at McComb City in connection with the strike of Illinois Central shopmen and clerks."

Beggar Dies Worth $50,000.

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 19.—Michael Sullivan, who has begged on the streets of San Francisco for thirty-five years, was found dead in his hovel here to-day. Bank books found in a mattress showed deposits of more than $50,000. Sullivan's death was apparently due to natural causes. He left a will in which he bequeathed $50,000 to his sister, Mary A. Sullivan of Utica, N. Y.

FILIPINO HEALTH PROGRESS.

MOHONK LAKE, N. Y., Oct. 20.—In addressing the Lake Mohonk Conference of Friends of the Indian and Other Dependent Peoples to-day Dr. Victor G. Heiser, Director of Health in the Philippine Islands, said that as the result of American sanitary measures in the islands the death rate had been reduced by ten or more per thousand.

"It is estimated," he declared, "that at the time of the American occupation the death rate in the Philippines was so high that the population had been practically at a standstill for many years. At least 40,000 persons per annum died of smallpox. There was no sewer system in Manila, a city of over 200,000 population. There was practically no provision for the care of the insane, a common custom being to tie them to a stake with a dog chain. About 200 lepers were taken care of at San Lazaro and the Palestine Leper Colony; 4,000 or more roamed about the islands at will. Cases of and death from beriberi in penal institutions were very numerous. Diseases like plague, cholera, leprosy, and smallpox were frequently introduced from the great infected centres of the Orient."

He went on to recite that in the provinces near Manila, with a million population, of whom 6,000 used to die annually of smallpox, there was last year not a single death from that disease, a systematic plan of vaccination having been completed. He told of the new water-supply system for Manila and the $2,000,000 sewer system, of instruction in hygiene in 3,500 public schools, of the leper colony on the island of Cuhon, into which 3,000 of the 4,000 lepers in the archipelago have been already collected, and of the almost entire elimination of diseases like beriberi.

Edward S. Bruce of Manila, after stating that only 10 per cent. of the Filipinos are capable of self-government, declared the great need of the islands to be commercial exploitation.

LAWSON RAN NO LOTTERY.

His Conviction for Giving a Prize at a Fair Is Reversed.

PLYMOUTH, Mass., Oct. 19.—A verdict of acquittal for Thomas W. Lawson, the Boston financier, on a charge of disposing of property by a lottery was ordered to-day by Judge Joseph F. Quinn in the Superior Court. The court took the case from the jury at the conclusion of the testimony for the prosecution, without hearing any evidence for the defense. This reverses the verdict of the District Court, which found Lawson guilty and fined him $100.

The case was instituted on complaint of the Watch and Ward Society of Boston after Mr. Lawson had presented a horse and carriage to the holder of a numbered ticket, one of which was given to each patron of the annual fair of the Marshfield Fair Association, of which he is President. The court ruled there was no evidence to show Mr. Lawson had been connected with a lottery. The society contended that the prize to the lucky holder of the ticket was merely a pretext to increase the attendance.

The court said that the evidence showed that the tickets, instead of being sold by the Boston capitalist, were sold by the ticket seller at the fair grounds. Judge Quinn quoted the principle of law that in the sale of tickets to the fair no property was sold, inasmuch as a ticket, instead of being property, is merely a license to enter and may be revoked by the seller for cause.

After being discharged, Mr. Lawson said that he would offer next year a pair of horses and a carriage.

TO WARN SCHOOL CHILDREN.

Maxwell Orders Teachers to Instruct Classes About Traffic Dangers.

William H. Maxwell, City Superintendent of Schools, yesterday sent a circular letter addressed to all the school Principals in the city, calling their attention to the number of accidents to school children, and advising them to have the class teachers warn the children. The letter reads as follows:

> Many children have ben seriously injured while violating the laws regulating traffic. It may diminish the number of such accidents if, in connection with the lessons in ethics, the teachers call attention to the impropriety of jumping or "hitching" on cars, which is unlawful as well as dangerous. Pupils should be enlightened as to the safest way of boarding and alighting from a car, and as to care in crossing thoroughfares and refraining from play in the streets where car traffic is heavy.
>
> You might call the attention of your pupils to the following statistics for the twenty-one months ended Sept. 30, 1911: There were 46 children between the ages of 1 and 16 years killed by automobiles and 140 injured; there were 29 killed by trolley cars and 17 injured; there were 104 killed by wagons and 23 injured. One child was killed in a collision between two wagons and 12 were injured, making a total killed of 180 and a total injured of 192.

Supt. Maxwell says he is considering other means of lessening the number of child fatalities.

Boy Hit by W. P. Burden's Auto.

Carl Flood, 10 years old, of 993 Columbus Avenue was seriously injured last night while playing at Manhattan Avenue and 110th Street. While running for a ball he was struck by an automobile owned by W. P. Burden, 908 Fifth Avenue. James Coffey of 313 West 117th Street, the chauffeur and the only one in the machine, carried the boy to St. Luke's Hospital. He is suffering from a fractured rib and internal injuries.

Cut in Trolley Car Smash.

Two persons were cut by flying glass and about twenty-five others thrown into panic when two trolley cars met in collision last night at 111th Street and Manhattan Avenue. The shock of the collision broke the windows in both cars, and there was an instant stampede by the passengers. Mrs. L. D. French of 69 East Ninety-second Street and Thomas Healy, the conductor of the Columbus Avenue car, were cut by glass.

WAYS TO AVOID RISKS IN BUILDINGS

Corporation Counsel Points Out That Building Bureau Has Power to Enforce Code.

RELIEF ALSO IN HOEY BILL

But Fire Commissioner Complains That Authority It Creates Is Useless Unless the City Provides Funds.

Corporation Counsel Watson put the duty of safeguarding life in commercial buildings squarely up to Building Supt. Rudolph Miller yesterday. He pointed out that it is in his power to begin proceedings in the Magistrates' courts under the Sanitary Code for the enforcement of reasonable and proper precautions to prevent or remove danger to life and health.

"The Tenement House Commission," said Mr. Watson, "provides us with enough cases to keep an Assistant Corporation Counsel constantly in attendance at the Magistrates' courts, but the Manhattan Bureau of Buildings merely transmits violations with the request that a civil action be begun, and civil actions, however expeditiously prosecuted, are inadequate where human life is at stake."

Mr. Watson then dwelt on the difference of procedure followed in Manhattan and Brooklyn. In the latter borough the Superintendent of Buildings with a rubber stamp indicates which cases are emergency ones, and they are then pushed by the Corporation Counsel's office with the utmost vigor. In Manhattan nothing is done to show which are cases of importance demanding immediate attention.

"If the Superintendent of Buildings will report the flagrant violations of the code which jeopardize human life," he said, "I will have the criminals in the toils of the law within twenty-four hours."

Fire Commissioner Johnson received information yesterday by long-distance telephone that Gov. Dix had signed the Hoey bill, which gives the Fire Commissioner summary powers to enforce the laws governing unsafe buildings. It empowers him to remedy any inadequate exits and to cause to be vacated any building in which the danger is imminent.

Commissioner Johnson issued a statement on the receipt of the news, in which he called attention to the fact that the actual establishment of the new bureau depends on the Board of Estimate, and it exists only on paper till money for it is voted.

"In my estimate for 1912," he said, "I included a bureau with 535 places to cost $744,000. I asked for a Chief of Fire Prevention at $7,000, two deputies at $5,000, Chief Inspector at $5,000, a civil engineer at $6,000, and an inspection force of 300 to cost $585,000. The office force would take up the remainder of the money I asked for. The Budget Committee recommended only nine appointments, a Chief at $5,000, a Chief Inspector at $4,000, and an office force, costing in all $17,250.

"The whole crusade arising out of the Asch fire goes for nothing unless the Board of Estimate grants the men and money. The Budget Committee has not finally refused what I asked, and I believe some provision will be made for the start of the work. But till it is done I cannot accept responsibility for the administration of the law. It is just as if the uniformed force had neither apparatus nor water with which to fight fires."

College Women Meet Here Next Week

The National convention of the Association of Collegiate Alumnae will open in this city on Monday, with headquarters at the Hotel Martinique. The purpose of the organization is to raise the standard of women's colleges and co-educational institutions. An interesting programme for the entire week has been arranged in which many prominent educators will take part. Meetings will be held simultaneously throughout the city, and for the entertainment of the college women several social functions have been planned.

Family on a Tour of the World.

C. S. Woodhead of Los Angeles, Cal., his wife, and their four daughters arrived yesterday from Kingston on the United Fruit Company's steamer Santa Marta. Mr. Woodhead made a fortune in raising cattle in Southern California. The family is now on a year's tour of the world. From San Francisco they went to Panama, from there to Jamaica, and thence came to New York. They will sail in a few days to spend the Winter on the Continent.

BALDWIN ON STATUTE LAW.

Governor Criticises Sherman Act and Praises Steel Trust.

BRIDGEPORT, Conn., Oct. 19.—Gov. Simeon E. Baldwin addressed the State Business Men's Association at its annual meeting here to-day, and in part discussed the relations of the employer with the employe and the relation of both with the constituted authorities. He said that it was not difficult to observe the rules of fair dealing that the common law lays down.

Statute law, he said, does not work so smoothly. It brings results often that nobody anticipated. He said he presumed it has cost $2,000,000 to find out from the courts just what the Sherman act forbids, and the Supreme Court has said that it does not forbid a reasonable restriction of trade or production.

"The act gives the President of the United States tremendous power," said Gov. Baldwin. "He can direct a prosecution and he can prohibit a prosecution. He can do both, one after the other. A few years ago the President directed a prosecution against the New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad Company under the Sherman act. It shook public confidence in the management of the company. After a few months he had the suit withdrawn. What good did all this do? Or, rather, what harm did all this do the company that is the largest taxpayer in Connecticut, and does the largest business conducted in Connecticut, and has the most employes of any concern in Connecticut and has the most stockholders of any Connecticut corporation?

"I am told that there are thousands of men employed by the United States to collect evidence of violations of the Sherman act. They make their living by it, and they naturally sometimes report more than they can prove.

"I was glad to see that the biggest concern in the United States, the United States Steel Corporation, recently, when threatened with prosecution under the Sherman act, declared that they could and should plead not guilty, if they were sued and fight it out. If they are not guilty and fight it out and win it will be the turning point in twentieth century business conditions.

"They have never made a secret of having done one thing that might fairly be questioned in court—the purchase of the Tennessee Coal and Iron Company. But they did that above board. They went first to President Roosevelt and kneeled down and prayed him to say that, if they bought it, he would not have them prosecuted, and he said, in substance, that he would not.

"Now, if they have really walked straight ever since, I am glad of it. It would show that the greatest aggregation of capital ever gathered together for active use by any one hand in human history may be honestly and lawfully administered."

FREUNDSCHAFT CLUB SELLS ITS HOME

VALUED IT AT $600,000

Purchase Made by Edgar A. Levy, Who Is Expected to Put Up Apartment House on the Club Site.

The Freundschaft Club house, at Park Avenue and Seventy-second Street, has been sold. The organization, which was formed in 1879, is one of the largest German clubs in the city, and the present building, an attractive five-story structure, was built for the club when it was incorporated in 1886. It has been held at $600,000, and the purchaser is Edgar A. Levy, a lawyer and real estate operator. It was said yesterday that next year the building will be torn down and a high-class apartment house put up on the corner.

The governors of the club decided several months ago that they would sell, desiring a more central location, and it is probable that the new home will be south of Fifty-ninth Street. The club will remain in the present building until next Spring.

The corner is one of the most desirable for apartment houses on the avenue, occupying half the block frontage on the east side between Seventy-first and Seventy-second Streets, 102 feet, and 130 feet on Seventy-second Street. Park Avenue property in the immediate vicinity has advanced rapidly in the last few years, and several splendid apartments and private houses have recently been finished in the blocks to the south and north of the Freundschaft Club. Senator Elihu Root's former private house is one block to the south, at Seventy-first Street, which he sold last season, and Oakleigh Thorne is erecting a handsome residence on the northeast corner of Seventy-third Street. The former site of the Union Theological Seminary on the west side of the avenue, between Sixty-ninth and Seventieth Streets, is being improved with some of the finest private houses in the city. George Blumenthal has just filed plans for a house, occupying the entire Seventieth Street corner, and Arthur Curtiss James is planning to build on the Sixty-ninth Street half of the plot.

The sale of the Freundschaft Club has been ratified by the Board of Governors and the contracts have been signed, but before the transfer is made it will be necessary to get the formal sanction of the court. Adolph Wimpfheimer is President and the membership is about 600. A Site Committee has just been appointed to select new quarters. Its Chairman is Moses Weiman.

THE SUFFRAGIST CAMPAIGN.

Fight Opened on Assemblyman Cuvillier in the Thirtieth.

The Women's Political Union held a house warming last night at its Campaign Headquarters in the Thirtieth Assembly District, 1,935 Madison Avenue, near 125th Street with Miss Elizabeth Ellsworth Cook, Chairman in charge. The women are out against the reelection of Assemblyman Cuvillier, (Democrat.)

Miss Caroline Lexow visited Brooklyn yesterday in search of campaign headquarters in the Twentieth Assembly District, where the union will fight the Democratic nominee, George F. Carew.

Mrs. Pankhurst's meeting in Brooklyn last Tuesday brought the union $2,000. A contribution of $100 received by the union yesterday came from a prominent New York woman, who said it was "conscience money" because of her regret at not having marched in the big suffrage parade on July 6 last. She has now been placed on the Parade Committee for the grand march of the suffragists on May 4, 1912.

The
By Margaret Deland

When a book has been out a month or so it is customary to advertise it by printing the kind things that critics have said. But THE IRON WOMAN presents a new problem in publishing—and advertising.

The flood of praise is already beyond all usual bounds. In fact, it is difficult to quote what the great critics say of this wonderful novel and still keep within the bounds of self-restraint. The praise is so overwhelming, so spontaneous, so universal, so extravagant.

Mrs. Deland pictures youth—dewy, virginal youth—in all its tenderness and passion, its foolish obstinacy, and generous impulsiveness, with truthful idealism. She portrays the elders—people whom life has hardened—with just as deep understanding and sympathy. "Not only the novel of the year, but the book of many years."

Adrian Savage
By LUCAS MALET

Now comes a new masterpiece to place alongside "Sir Richard Calmady." As a literary structure it reaches even greater heights. The style is a model. . . . The story? Love is the theme and we find it here—in gentleness and in tyranny—a compelling transcript from life. Savage is a distinguished young man, the son of an English father and a French mother. He is ardently in love with a young and bewitching French woman. An English girl, lacking beauty and charm, awakens Adrian's innate chivalry, and he is placed in the awkward position of declining a lady's unspoken love.

Jennie Gerhardt
By THEODORE DREISER

This is the life story of a woman who craved affection. Unselfish, sweet, she is the daughter of working people. And to Jennie, trusting and innocent at heart through all, there comes the unfailing ending. There is separation from the man she loves. He marries in his own class, but towards the close of his life, it is to Jennie that he turns. Here is a broad picture of modern life which is full of contrasts—the life of rich and poor, the factory, and the social butterfly, and the fanatic, and the epicurean.

Jane Dawson
By WILL N. HARBEN

The story of Jane Dawson—injured in her youth by a rich man—who lives to match son versus son with him is something fine and big and new. The typical Georgia rural community is here in all its picturesqueness and charm. It will be remembered that William Dean Howells has called Mr. Harben "one of our few great American localists." This story of the heart is also one of that rare kind in which religious sentiment is a real human factor.

The Pretender Person
By MARGARET CAMERON
Author of
"The Involuntary Chaperon."

A new travel-novel, the fresh unhackneyed kind of story Margaret Cameron invented. In this new book there is brought together a jolly group of charming people—men and women, old and young. Their flirtations and serious love affairs, begun on board ship and continued in the tropics, result in delightfully humorous complications. The charm and spell of Mexico, seen through all sorts of American and native eyes, are almost as rich in interest as the story itself.

New Books of Serious Interest

Serving the Republic

By Gen. Nelson A. Miles, is both an addition to history and a colorful story of a man's struggles and responsibilities. The part of the story dealing with the Civil War is only second in importance to such memoirs as those of Grant and Sherman. General Miles took part in many of its bloodiest battles. He was four times wounded, twice almost fatally, and he tells "how it feels to be shot." The narrative continues with General Miles's Western experiences with the Indians, the rescue of the Germaine girl and Custer's massacre.

Some Chemical Problems of Today

By Robert Kennedy Duncan, tells the story of the wonderful magic that chemistry is doing in industry and commerce. It brings close home to us the great part that chemical invention plays in our lives. It is a book for all of us, for it is not technical. Mr. Duncan also explains what far-reaching results in this direction follow the dissemination of knowledge by university extension lectures and correspondence courses.

A Living Without a Boss

Here is recorded the personal experience of a man and woman—tired and worn out in the city—who found new life and independence in the country. It has nothing to do with chicken-raising or impossible dream-farming. The man found that the country needs business men, and he put his hands and his wits to work—for himself instead of a city taskmaster, and the man remains a gentleman.

The Power of Tolerance

By George Harvey. In this volume are collected numerous speeches and addresses delivered by the Editor of the North American Review and Harper's Weekly on various occasions during the past few years. They cover a wide diversity of subjects, from "A Plea for the Conservation of Common Sense" to "Have Women Souls?" Political and economical problems are discussed with sanity and with the precious salt of humor.

Where the Money Grows

By Garet Garrett is a series of vignettes of Wall Street and the financial district, in an easy conversational style, showing the human nature of high finance and low—without its technicalities.

Spiritism and Psychology

By Theodore Flournoy, Translated by Hereward Carrington. About once every ten years a really good book upon psychics is published—a book, that is, which is epoch-making. Professor Flournoy's previous book ("From India to the Planet Mars") was one, and the present volume is another. The book begins with a brief account of the results of an extensive inquiry conducted by the author, into alleged super-normal facts—this being a study, from the psychologist's point of view, not only of the facts, but of the subjects who experienced them. Mr. Carrington has contributed a number of valuable foot-notes.

The Van Dyke Book

The Mansion

Now comes a new book by Henry van Dyke. Whoever has read "The Story of the Other Wise Man" can guess some of the new beauty and spiritual charm here revealed. "The Mansion" tells the story of a prosperous man, who in the Heavenly City, seeks the mansion prepared for him. A story—yes, a good story and one in which the lamp of spiritual truth burns brightly, stirring the reader and his conscience at the same time.

The New Novels

Victor Ollnee's Discipline

Hamlin Garland in this new novel relates the romantic adventures of a robust young chap who is suddenly plunged into a new world—his conflict between love and disbelief in spiritualism. Victor discovers that his mother is a famous medium. The working out of the dissimilar elements makes the story a romance rather than a spiritualistic novel.

Under Western Eyes

This new novel by Joseph Conrad is like one of Tchaikowsky's symphonies, and is done with all Conrad's intense realism and breadth of imagination. It is called "Under Western Eyes" because its revelation of temperament must seem to the people of Western nations very strange. The central figure is Razumow, a student at the University, supposed to be of humble origin, but really the son of a powerful nobleman. The story continues to a striking end.

The Fair Irish Maid

By Justin Huntly McCarthy, is a romance of the eventful days when the name of Bonaparte was the bogey of Europe, when America and England were for the second time at odds. The heroine reigns as the queen of a London season and proves her fidelity to a lover of her humble days. Brave, witty, and high-spirited, she is characteristic of her race.

The Nine-Tenths

By James Oppenheim, is the story of a big human-humorous business man, who, as the result of a fire in his factory which causes the death of working girls, is swept into the underworld, where the woman he loves cannot follow him. How the undercurrents of the city form these two is unfolded in a drama of stirring episodes. The huge city which does this becomes almost a character in the book. Out of the struggle a new type emerges, a working girl, who leads strikers and helps the hero to find herself.

Heart and Chart

In which Margarita Spalding Gerry tells the story of the love and the life of a trained nurse is full of the sweetness of pity, sympathy, and humor, with far more of heart than chart in its pages. Not only the naval hero, who has saved a comrade with danger to his own life and mind, but the frail woman who struggles so courageously against habit, wins our ungrudging admiration.

Track's End

Hayden Carruth tells the story in the words of Judson Pitcher, the boy whose strange adventures are recounted. As a result of a blizzard the railroad will run no more trains to the village, and every one but Judson leaves the country. Judson is snowed in. He digs tunnels through the snow, is attacked by desperadoes, and goes from one house to the other, firing, keeping up the illusion of a large number of defenders. He has encounters with wolves, buffaloes, and Indians.

New Books for Younger Readers

Old Ben

By James Otis, author of "Toby Tyler." This book continues the adventures of Toby Tyler. The Fat Woman, the Skeleton, and Old Ben, who befriended Toby in his circus career, now come to stir up his native village, excite the envy and stimulate the ambitions of its youthful population. Old Ben settles down to live in Guilford, builds a barn, has a barn warming, and the boys of Guilford have the circus people for their companions—to their great joy.

Tom Brown's School Days

"It has been my interesting experience," says W. D. Howells in his introduction to this classic, "to find the story of 'Tom Brown's School Days' even better than I once thought it, say, fifty years ago." Louis Rhead made a special sojourn of months in Rugby itself. In the illustrations, of which thirty are full-page size, he has recreated in a wonderful way the surroundings which have changed but little since the days of Tom and his companions.

WHITE SLAVE'S STORY STIRS UP THE COURT

Jurors Murmur, Their Fists Clenched, and Cry Out in Protest Against Cross-Examination.

SOLD AND BEATEN, GIRL SAYS

Before Judge Foster, in General Sessions yesterday, Elois Wendt of Pittsburgh, Penn., a 17-year-old girl, small for her age, related in a clear, childish voice how Philip Solow, barely of age himself, had wrecked her life by selling her into "white slavery." The nervous strain grew so strong during her testimony that the jurors squirmed around in their seats and whispered excitedly together. Some of them even clenched their fists and glared at the defendant. He sat at the lawyers' table, grinning and shaking his head.

The dramatic interest aroused by the girl's direct examination was doubled when in cross-examining her Solow's counsel, Hugo Levy, repeatedly demanded whether she was telling the truth. His attitude caused Judge Foster to interrupt him several times. Once Assistant District Attorney Wasservogel, who is appearing for the prosecution, threw his pencil on the table in front of him in protest and the jurors murmured among themselves.

In telling her story the girl said she first met Solow in a private house in Pittsburgh at a rehearsal of a theatrical performance. He told her he was an actor and asked her to marry him. She agreed and in the latter part of March they eloped and came to this city. He took her to a furnished room house in Thirteenth Street, near Sixth Avenue, and, refusing to marry her, brought men into the place to see her. They then moved to a house in St. Mark's Place. From there he took her to a woman and left her.

"I didn't like the woman," said the girl. "She scolded me because I refused to do as she said, so I cried and she said to a man in the place. 'I don't dare keep her.' That night the defendant came and took me away. He made me write a letter to my parents in Pittsburgh saying that I was well and happy, but I wrote the letter in German. My father knew that language and the defendant did not. I did not dare tell much, but I let papa know that I was unhappy. I told the defendant that papa understood only German."

Lawyer Levy, for the defense, sprang to his feet, waving the letter over his head, and asked that it be put in evidence. Assistant District Attorney Wasservogel agreed at once and read the letter to the jury. It said:

> Dear Parents: You cannot imagine how sorry I am that I ever left you. Only to be with you again is my great joy. Oh, papa, I wish I had remained with you! How happy I would be! My husband is good to me. There is nothing he doesn't do for me. I get all I desire and am satisfied. If I only had seen you before I left, then it would have been easier for me. Philip's parents are good to me, but I want you. Can you forgive me? Should I return home would you love me as before?
>
> There is nothing without parents, and at night I cry until I fall asleep. Oh, my God! How could I have been so stupid as to leave you, my good parents! I must stop. It is too late to write more. We have just come from the theatre. Good bye, good parents. May God bless you with health and happiness. Your loving child,
>
> ELLOIS.

The letter was translated by Mr. Wasservogel. Once a juror shouted out the English translation of a German sentence when it puzzled him, and it developed that eight of the jurors knew German.

The girl, continuing her story, said that Solow took her to a place in West Fifty-sixth Street and left her there, but came and took all her money. He beat her when she didn't have enough. At this point the jurors and some of the spectators became so interested in the girl's story that they began to discuss it aloud. Judge Foster asked for order, and the girl went on.

She stayed in the place in Fifty-sixth Street for some time, but finally she escaped with the help of one of the inmates, who took her to another place in Fifty-sixth Street. For some time she was free of Solow and was trying to get back home without involving her parents. One night Solow discovered where she was and came to the Fifty-sixth Street place. When she refused to give him money, she said, he jumped at her, and knocking the teeth out of a man who endeavored to protect her, caught her by the throat and choked her. He released her in a short time and struck her a blow on the head knocking her unconscious.

Later she managed to get together enough money to take her to Pittsburgh to her parents. They still believed her to be married, and she was afraid to tell the truth because her father was not in the best of health, and she feared she might cause him to have a relapse. She told them finally, and returning to this city had Solow arrested. He was held for the Grand Jury by Magistrate Freschi.

At this point Lawyer Levy took up the cross-examination, asking the girl why she had testified in the police court that she was 20 years old.

"Because the woman of the Fifty-sixth Street place, who was a witness for me, told me to, saying that she would get arrested if I did not," she replied.

Mr. Levy asked her question after question in an effort to get her to contradict her testimony.

"Are you telling me the truth now or are you lying?" he asked repeatedly.

Once he asked her if she knew one Abraham Kantel. She said she had been introduced to him by Solow in the Thirteenth Street house. Mr. Levy asked her if she hadn't gone to Boston with Kantel. She denied that she had, and Levy called Kantel into the courtroom. As he entered several of the spectators began to laugh hysterically. The jurors looked first at Kantel and then at the girl, and began to talk together, while the defendant whispered to his counsel. Kantel was told to leave the room, and Mr. Levy began to ask the girl the same questions. One of the jurors became so exasperated that he said:

"You don't know what you are talking about."

Judge Foster rapped for order, and told Levy to confine himself to questions he had not asked before. The lawyer asked only a few more questions and Judge Foster then adjourned the case until this morning. Several more witnesses will then be put on the stand by Assistant District Attorney Wasservogel to corroborate the girl's testimony. Mr. Wasservogel refused to tell anything about the girl's parents, except that they were wealthy and respected. Judge Foster says that this is the first white slave case ever tried in which so many of the points which the Rockefeller Grand Jury hoped to bring out in its investigation of the illegal traffic of women have been in question. After court adjourned a crowd gathered about the entrance to the courtroom discussing the case, while Assistant District Attorney Wasservogel examined several witness for the prosecution in his office.

While the Solow case was in progress Samuel Fried, 19 years old, of 286 East Houston Street, was convicted in Special Sessions of a crime somewhat similar to that charged against Solow. Solow can be sentenced to twenty years in Sing Sing if convicted. Fried was convicted of taking the money earned by Gussie Hagler, but Solow is indicted for selling the Wendt girl into white slavery.

Justices Zeller, Mayo, and Ryan of Special Sessions sentenced Nat Shirley to three months in the penitentiary yesterday after he had been convicted of running the Crystal Hotel at Twenty-sixth Street and Lexington Avenue, which was found to be a disorderly hotel. Shirley was the hotel clerk. The complaint against the place was made by the Gramercy Park Neighborhood Association. After Shirley had been sentenced his counsel, Morris Meyer, approached Assistant District Attorney Smith in the corridor of the Criminal Courts Building and said:

"You have managed to create such an atmosphere in this courtroom by bringing ministers in here that no one can get a fair trial. I don't think it is fair."

"Well," retorted Mr. Smith, "I don't think you have any kick coming in regard to the atmosphere in this courtroom. You brought about forty bartenders, porters, and others into this courtroom during the Union Hotel case, and got your client off by the atmosphere they created. My atmosphere is good atmosphere, I think."

Mr. Meyer began to say something more, but Assistant District Attorney Smith moved away.

Princeton Trustees Postpone Action.

Special to The New York Times.

PRINCETON, N. J., Oct. 19.—The Trustees of Princeton University did not meet to-day as expected, and it was announced that the meeting had been postponed until Thursday of next week. The impression in university circles to-night is that this means that the committee appointed to nominate a President to succeed Gov. Wilson is near agreement.

SAYS CAPE COD CANAL WILL BE OPEN IN 1913

Commodore Miller Declares Short Cut to Boston Is Nearing Completion.

WILL BE LIGHTED AT NIGHT

Channel Deeper Than at Kiel or Manchester, and Without Locks, He Tells Waterways Convention.

RICHMOND, Oct. 19.—The completion in 1913 of the Cape Cod Canal was confidently predicted to-day by Commodore J. W. Miller, in a speech before the Atlantic Deep Waterways Convention, in this city. Commodore Miller said that more than 25,000,000 tons of shipping are at the mercy of the elements each year off the cape, and that this canal, built by private enterprise, would end this condition, besides shortening the trip from Boston to all points south.

After emphasizing the necessity for the canal, and saying that it had been felt as far back as the Revolution, Commodore Miller answered thus the self propounded question, "What is the Cape Cod Canal?"

"As a matter of fact, it is not a canal at all, but a short connection of eight miles through a sandy isthmus with an elevation of only 29 feet above sea level; a connection joining two portions of a much traveled ocean route through which a known traffic to-day exists. No locks and little current will hamper its passage. It's channel will be 30 feet at high water—deeper and broader than the Manchester Kiel, and the original Suez Canal.

"From deep water in Buzzards Bay to the end of the breakwater at the eastern end will be a distance of only thirteen miles. It will be lighted electrically as a street for quick transit during the night. At its eastern end there is already built a breakwater containing over 400,000 tons of granite as a protection against any northeast gales.

"One-half of the work has been completed, through the agency of eight large dredges and various steam shovels and other appliances. Over 1,000 acres of land have been purchased along the banks for the purpose of establishing manufactures already demanding factory sites, for the canal runs through a narrow wooded valley where streams of the best water abound; while a railroad has been constructed along the whole length of the line, thus giving land as well as water transportation at a point where ships from the Chesapeake, the Delaware, and New York will meet those running from eastern ports."

A committee of ten was appointed to urge legislation carrying out the recommendations of the boards of army engineers for the extension and improvement of intra-coastal water ways.

Addresses were made by M. K. King of Virginia, Congressman John H. Small of North Carolina, Isham Randolph of the Chicago Sanitary Commission, Logan W. Page, Director of Public Roads, and E. Dana Durand, Director of the Census. Rear Admiral Robert E. Peary, U. S. N., gave an illustrated address on the "Water ways to the North Pole."

Congressman J. Hampton Moore of Philadelphia was re-elected President, and New London, Conn., chosen as the next meeting place in September, 1912.

SUGAR MEN GET A STAY.

Heike and Gerbracht Will Now Appeal to Supreme Court.

Sixty days' stay in the execution of their sentences was granted yesterday by the United States Circuit Court of Appeals to Charles R. Heike, former Secretary of the American Sugar Refining Company, and Ernest W. Gerbracht, former Superintendent of the Williamsburg refinery, who were convicted in connection with the sugar-weighing frauds.

Heike was sentenced to eight months in the Blackwell's Island Penitentiary, and Gerbracht to two years in the Federal Prison at Atlanta, Ga. They will now apply to the Supreme Court for writs of certiorari.

Boy Who Killed Fellow-Clerk Held.

George Gilhooley, 19 years old, of 447 Ninth Avenue, was held by a Coroner's jury before Coroner Holthauser yesterday for the death of Charles McGuire of 1,813 Park Avenue, who was killed in the office of the German-American Insurance Company at 104 Greenwich Street by a shot fired by Gilhooley's revolver last Friday. Coroner Holtzhauser held Gilhooley in $2,000 bail to await the action of the Grand Jury. It is said the shooting was accidental.

DENIES PULLMAN LOSSES.

President Says Company Has Merely Changed Purchasing System.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Ill., Oct. 19.—John S. Runnells, President of the Pullman Company, denied to-day that the company had been robbed of $35,000,000 by the car repair graft system, but admitted that changes had been made in the system of purchasing supplies. He ridiculed the suggestion that the resignation of President Robert T. Lincoln last May was in any way connected with the alleged investigation.

"It is ridiculous to say that the company has lost millions through favoritism in the purchase of supplies or in any other way," said Mr. Runnells. "The published statement that I declared that the charge of waste and graft were well founded is absolutely and unqualifiedly false. The intimation that former President Lincoln resigned because of those charges is absurd."

TIMES SQUARE RENTS DISCUSSED IN COURT

WEST SIDE COMES HIGHEST

A case in which the rental values of Times Square realty are an issue went to trial before Justice Giegerich and a jury yesterday in the Supreme Court. The suit is one for $20,000 damages for breach of contract brought by Samuel Jacobs, tailor, against David A. Schulte, a cigar dealer, and his wife, Rose Schulte.

Jacobs was a sub-lessee of the premises, 1,457 Broadway, which he leased from the Schultes for a term of seven years at $7,000 a year for the first four years and eight months from April 14, 1909, and $8,000 a year for the remaining period.

He was ousted by the Henry Phipps estate, which owns the premises, on June 7, 1910. The ejectment proceedings were begun against him on June 4, and he alleges that he called on the Schultes to defend the action, under a clause in the lease, which guaranteed to him the peaceful possession of the premises.

Beside entering a general denial of all Jacobs's allegations, including assertions that he bought expensive fixtures and lost profitable customers by his ejectment, the Schultes urge the special defense that they settled his claim for $440.

The principal interest in the case yesterday centred about the testimony of real estate experts as to rental values in Times Square. The experts called agreed that property on the west side of Broadway is more valuable for trade purposes than that on the east side. For purposes of comparison, the rental values of the block between Forty-first and Forty-second Streets on the west side of Broadway and that on the east side between Forty-second and Forty-third Streets were put into evidence. The west side of Broadway on the upper block is occupied by the Times Building, which was not considered because of its unique advantages of fronting on three streets, and because it included a Subway entrance in its basement. The east side of the lower block had to be excluded, the experts said, because two hotels, the Calvert and the Knickerbocker, took up most of the block front, and made it as bad for comparison with the street front opposite as the realty opposite the Times Building.

Moses Greenwood, the first of the experts called to testify, said that Jacobs had not paid the full value of the property he occupied. He said that it was worth $800 a front foot per year, and that Jacobs should have paid $8,400 a year instead of $7,000 for the first part of his lease period. For the second part of the lease period Greenwood declared that a rental of $13,000 a year instead of $8,000 would have been a reasonable figure for the store Jacobs had on the west side of Broadway, between Forty-first and Forty-second Streets.

Greenwood said that the rental value of a piece of city realty for commercial purposes depends on the number of persons who regularly pass before it daily. He said that in all large cities the rental value of stores on the west side of streets running north and south is greater than on the east side. He said that this is particularly the case with Broadway, where the pedestrian current in the vicinity of Times Square is largely northward in its direction. The large department stores below Times Square, he said, are on the west side of the street, and the northbound current of travel follows the same side of the street to the restaurants in Times Square and the theatres in the square and further north.

One of the examples qouted by Mr. Greenwood was from his own knowledge, he said, of a search for a location for a ticket store by the Lackawanna Railroad. It wanted a location in Times Square, and the best that could be found was a store on the east side of Broadway, between Forty-second and Forty-third Streets, for which a rental of $500 a year a front foot is now being paid. Mr. Greenwood said he was informed by officials of the company that they would gladly have paid $800 a front foot on the opposite side of the street in the block below.

Milton Natkins, another real estate expert, said he figured that Jacobs was paying $25.36 a year a square foot and that on the opposite side of the street he could get quarters between Fortieth and Forty-first Streets for $14 a year, while Shaw, the haberdasher, who had a store adjoining Jacobs's store, paid $37 a year a square foot.

The trial will continue to-day.

WANDERING SAILORS RETURN

Two Succeed in Reaching Here After Trips About the World.

Returning home after adventures afloat and a hard-luck story each, John Dillon of Portland, Ore.; George Bennett of South Boston, and James Bassele of New Orleans arrived yesterday in the American liner St. Paul.

Stranded in New Orleans Dillon shipped as fireman in the steamship Estonia for England. He tramped that country looking for work, and want drove him to ship out of Liverpool in the Norwegian bark Kaun, in which he made several journeys to Bordeaux and Lisbon.

When returning from a bull fight in Lisbon to his ship he was attacked by robbers, who beat him into unconsciousness. He woke up in the San José Hospital with his right arm gone, and learned that the thugs had placed him on the railroad tracks and his arm had been crushed by a switch engine. From Lisbon he was sent to Cardiff, and from there to Australia.

Bennett next went to England in the Norwegian bark Gangshee. Before shipping he had been second mate in the bark Lovisa, but left that vessel at Stamford, Conn., and went to Melbourne in the steamship Marian Sloane. At Melbourne he deserted steam for sail and signed on the Gangshee.

After voyaging for seven and a half months the Gangshee was sunk in a collision off the Scilly Island, and the crew was rescued. From England Bennett shipped home from Southampton.

Savannah was the starting point for Bassele. He went before the mast on the American bark Osperga to Buenos Aires and from there to Marseilles. There he became a member of the crew of the American yacht Nahma, cruising in the Mediterranean. He was taken with pneumonia and spent four months in a hospital in Cannes. He was sent home from Southampton by the American Consul.

HORSE'S DRIVER NOT LIABLE

When It Is Stolen In His Absence, Court Rules—Owner Must Bear Loss.

Municipal Court Justice Young decided yesterday that if a horse be stolen from the street in the absence of its driver, within premises where his business calls him, the owner of the animal, and not the man in charge of it at the time, must bear the loss. The decision was made in a suit brought by J. Kleiner, an east side livery stable proprietor, to recover $400 from Joseph Cohn & Son, paperbox makers at 179 Wooster Street.

A horse worth $400, and hired from Kleiner by the papermakers, was stolen from in front of their place of business on Sept. 13, and the liveryman contended that the manufacturers had been guilty of neglect to exercise reasonable care of the horse.

Abraham Oberstein, for Cohn & Son, argued that there was no lack of reasonable care in leaving a horse unwatched in streets of a city so thoroughly protected by police, since it was a just assumption that the police were able to protect property in the streets in broad daylight.

LATEST CUSTOMS RULINGS.

Silver Mesh Bags Are Held to be Dutiable at 85 Per Cent.

After a determined fight by importers to secure lower duty on women's mesh bags composed entirely of silver, the Board of United States General Appraisers, yesterday, upheld Collector Loeb's assessment of an 85 per cent. duty. R. H. Macy & Co. figure as the actual protestants in the test case, but the entire trade, both domestic and foreign, is deeply interested in the issue, as the difference in the duty assessed by the Government and that claimed by the importers is 40 per cent.

The merchandise in question consists of hang bags, finished and unfinished, made in chief value of metal mesh, composed of sterling silver and valued at over $2 per dozen pieces. The Collector assessed the goods at a rate equivalent to 85 per cent. ad valorem under Paragraph 448 for "finished or unfinished bags, purses, and other articles, or parts thereof made in chief value of metal mesh composed of silver, valued at $2 per dozen pieces." The importers asked for a rate of 45 per cent. as "articles or wares not specially provided for, composed wholly or in part of silver."

Churchill & Marlow, counsel for the importers, argued before the board that the merchandise is not covered by Paragraph 448 as assessed by the Collector because it is composed entirely of silver, and that the provisions for mesh bags and their parts in that paragraph include only such bags or parts as are in chief value of silver. The further contention was made that the intent of Congress is plainly indicated, including in that part of the paragraph in question only such bags, purses, and other articles or parts thereof which are made of metal mesh composed of two or more materials, of which silver represents the component of chief value.

In overruling the protests Judge Sharretts states that the attorneys are under a misapprehension regarding the scope of Paragraph 448. He says:

"The words 'made in chief value of metal mesh' apply to 'bags, purses, and other articles,' while the words 'composed of silver,' &c., apply to the mesh and not to the completed articles. Mesh bags and purses are made by attaching the mesh to a solid frame, and to bring these articles within the terms of the paragraph, the mesh must be of more value than the other parts of the articles. A mesh bag or purse composed of a gold frame or a silver frame set with precious stones, or any frame of more value than the mesh, would not fall for duty under Paragraph 448." The importers will carry the case up to the Court of Customs Appeals.

EQUAL PAY BILL SIGNED BY GAYNOR

A Just Measure, Says the Mayor, and Adds Only Four Cents a Hundred to the Tax Rate.

OTHER WAYS TO SAVE MONEY

Why Not on Subway Contracts, Asks the Mayor—Victory for Women Teachers After Six-Year Fight.

Mayor Gaynor signed yesterday the bill passed at the last session of the Legislature providing for the payment of equal salaries to men and women teachers doing the same grade of work in the schools of New York City. Before the bill becomes a law it has to be signed by Gov. Dix, but it was the general opinion about the City Hall yesterday that the Governor would sign it. The women teachers have been fighting for equal pay for six years.

In a memorandum which the Mayor returned with the bill to Albany, he pointed out that it will increase the annual budget about $3,500,000. The tax rate, because of it, he also points out, will be increased 4-10 of a mill. This is his statement:

> After careful consideration I see that I should accept this bill for the city. It gives the women teachers in our common schools equal pay with the men teachers in all the grades. They now have equal pay in only some of the grades. The Legislature has passed this bill several times in recent years. Its will should not be vetoed again. The rule of equal pay to men and women teachers is nothing new. It already prevails in over one-half of the large cities of this country. Instead of lessening the number of men teachers it will increase it. The economical reason for appointing women teachers because they are paid less is removed by it.
>
> The principal objection is that the annual budget will be increased about $3,500,000. It is said that the taxpayers object. On the contrary, I find they generally favor this bill as a measure of justice and good policy. Moreover, the will of the whole community must be consulted in matters of government, and not merely that of the corporations and persons who pay the taxes. The interests and wishes of the rentpayers are no less important than those of the taxpayers as every wise landowner knows. We should do better to always say rentpayers and taxpayers, instead of saying taxpayers only.
>
> And when we consider this addition of $3,500,000 to the next tax budget it is not so great after all. It is an increase of 4-10 of a mill in the rate. That means that one who pays on $100 would have to pay 4 cents more, by reason of this increase; that one who pays on $250 would have to pay 10 cents more; that one who pays on $1,000 would have to pay 40 cents more; that one who pays on $10,000 would have to pay $4 more; that one who pays on $100,000 would have to pay $40 more, and so on. I am perfectly content, as a taxpayer, to pay this increase, and I believe the vast majority of taxpayers feel the same way. They are not so niggardly as some would have us believe.
> We can save $3,500,000 in other ways. An offer of an operating company to put $100,000,000 into subway construction was recently rejected by the officials of the city. It is intended instead that the city shall put in all the money, notwithstanding that under the law the city has the very same ownership and control, and the operating company cannot get a longer lease even though the operating company put up part of the construction money, or all of it. The interest on the bonds to raise $100,000,000 at 4¼ per cent., which is the rate we now have to pay, will amount to $4,250,000 annually. Why not save that for teachers and schools?
>
> On the hearing before me on this bill one speaker pictured the property of this city as overwhelmed with taxation. I had to inform him that taxation in this city is relatively far lower than in the other cities of the State, and I might have added of the nation. Those who assert otherwise do so ignorantly, or else (which is the case of a few) from a settled purpose to decry and defame this city in every possible way. In the other cities of the State generally the bill for the city tax and that for the county tax are separate and have to be added to get the total tax.
>
> And we have good government here. I beg the people of this city to call off the list of heads of departments in our present city government and say if they find one among them who is otherwsie than absolutely honest and competent to fill his place. I felt proud as Mayor of this city to listen to the address of Dock Commissioner Tomkins at the Deeper Waterways Convention at Richmond yesterday. It was a credit to this city. And all the heads of departments are capable of taking the same part in similar National gatherings, and do so habitually. They are lifting this city up in the estimation of the nation, while others for personal, selfish, and political reasons are trying to pull it down and degrade it.

It is likely that the women teachers will hold a mass meeting to celebrate their victory.

ROBINSON DELEGATES WIN.

Republican Convention in Herkimer Must Reconvene and Seat Them.

LITTLE FALLS, N. Y., Oct. 19.—Judge Merrill ordered to-night the recent Republican convention for Herkimer County to reconvene and seat the Theodore Douglas Robinson delegates, who were thrown out.

The action of Judge Merrill is probably the first case on record in this State of a convention being ordered to be reassembled. It is expected that Robinson, who is the nephew of Col. Theodore Roosevelt, will be nominated for Assemblyman in place of C. L. Fellows.

SHOT WITH HIS OWN GUN.

Went Off as Deer Hunter Was Climbing Over a Stone Wall.

MONTICELLO, N. Y., Oct. 19.—While hunting deer with Dr. Massaker in Sullivan County this afternoon Charles Dedrick of New York City lost part of his right foot by the accidental discharge of his gun, while he was climbing over a stone wall.

This is the third accident since the opening of the deer hunting season in Sullivan County. Tom Kelly, a farmer, while plowing in his field this morning was hit in the head with a spent rifle bullet. His injury is not considered serious. The person who fired the shot is not known.

OPPOSE NEW CARS ON CROSSTOWN LINES

Argued Against Dry Dock Company That Its Old Horse-Car Franchises Are Forfeit.

STORAGE SYSTEM DOES WELL

But City and State Authorities Want to Give New Operators a Show on Possibly Better Terms.

Somewhat unexpected opposition from the State and the city to the new electric storage battery cars run over routes of the Dry Dock, East Broadway & Battery Railway Company appeared yesterday at the final hearing before the Public Service Commission on the application to authorize their use. Commissioner J. Sergeant Cram intimated that he would recommend their approval, but the State and city authorities objected to them on the ground that they would make possible the revival of a number of practically disused franchises.

Receiver Whitridge of the Third Avenue Railway system recently placed a number of storage cars on the Dry Dock roads to replace some of the old horse cars after their use had been proved to be a success on the Twenty-eighth Street crosstown line. Thereby he has made it possible to use many lines which have never been electrified and have been practically abandoned. The Commission called to the attention of the Attorney General in 1909 the fact that there are in Manhattan twenty-four and one-quarter miles of single track which are practically unused and requested him to begin proceedings to have the franchises for them forfeited.

No steps have been taken by the Attorney General against the Dry Dock Company, but he has moved against the Bleecker Street & Fulton Ferry Company and, after a number of preliminary motions, which were carried so far as the Court of Appeals, the trial of the case is about to begin on its merits. With the Broadway & Seventh Avenue Railroad Company, however, an agreement was reached by the Attorney General on Sept. 9 for the removal of its lines in Church Street.

It now appears that on the same day, Sept. 9, the Seventh Avenue road gave permission to the Dry Dock Company to use its tracks in Church Street, between Lispenard and Canal Streets, in place of the line along Broadway from Lispenard to Canal, which the original franchise of the Dry Dock authorized.

Deputy Attorney General Franklin Kennedy, who appeared for the State, in opposing the use of the storage cars, said:

"If the Commission recognizes the serviceability of the franchises for these abandoned tracks we should not have much chance in either the trial courts or the Appellate Courts. The Commission, it seems to me, should do one of two things: It should withdraw its request to the Attorney General in regard to the forfeiture of the franchises, or it should continue these proceedings till suit has been brought and a complete settlement reached."

"I am informed on good authority," said Commissioner Cram, "that New York is the only city in North America which still uses horse cars, and the Commission should not stand in the way of transportation improvements."

Henry A. Robinson, counsel for F. W. Whitridge, the receiver of the Dry Dock Company, pointed out that since Oct. 1, when the storage cars were placed in use on First Avenue and Avenue B, from Thirty-fourth Street to the City Hall, the average daily receipts have risen from $105 to more than $300.

"By what authority are they run?" asked Assistant Corporation Counsel William J. Clarke. Mr. Robinson said nothing, but Commissioner Cram remarked that perhaps the experiment had been tried because it was obvious no one would oppose it.

Mr. Clarke, however, argued that if the old perpetual franchises which had for years lain dormant were now declared forfeited, other franchises to new companies for limited periods could be granted, including perhaps stipulations with regard to transfers.

Commissioner Cram said that in his opinion on the case he had inserted a clause declaring that any action of the Commission on this matter should not be considered to have any effect on the question of the non-user of franchises. When Mr. Robinson was asked whether the Dry Dock Company would assent to such a stipulation, he replied:

"I will consult my client. Anyway, Judge Lacombe must approve it first."

DEFIES EXTRADITION RULE.

American Marshal Arrests Negro In Canada and Fetches Him Home.

DETROIT, Mich., Oct. 19.—Extradition laws were set at naught yesterday by the Marshal of Algonac, a village on the St. Clair River, 35 miles from Detroit, when he forced a prisoner captured in Canada into a boat and brought him to American soil.

After shooting and seriously wounding a patrolman in Detroit on Sunday night Joseph Moulton, a negro, made his escape and finally reached Port Lambton, Ontario, a hamlet opposite Algonac. There he was recognized by the local authorities, who were reluctant to attempt an arrest because of the reputation the negro had established as a "gun man." Marshal Gray was hurriedly summoned from Algonac. He found Moulton in a grocery store, where he was eating a luncheon.

"We want you," said Gray striding up to the negro.

"All right," replied the fugitive, "but I won't leave Canada."

"Oh, yes you will," declared the Marshal, and he hustled Moulton into a boat and took him to the American side.

The negro was brought to Detroit later in the day and lodged in jail. A large crowd surrounded the building, and although there were cries of "Lynch him!" as the officers rushed their prisoner through the doors, there was no attempt at violence.

The Forging of Passion into Power

MARY EVEREST BOOLE

¶ This is an important and valuable book.

¶ It is important because it deals with the training of the mind toward making good habits.

¶ It is valuable because it shows how and in what way good habits may be acquired.

¶ It is a practical book for parents and teachers.

¶ It explains how the child or man or woman can fertilize the soil of the mind so that good fruits may grow in it. And the fertilizer it employs is made up of the bad thoughts, the bad passions and the lower impulses of our nature. In this way, the whole of the forces of our nature are converted to the making of noble hearts and fine minds.

¶ It is a book for the home and the school.

¶ It is a book for every decent and thinking citizen; for it makes for decent living and high thinking.

WELLESLEY'S NEW PRESIDENT

Miss Ellen Fitz Pendleton Talks in Inaugural of Citizen Training.

WELLESLEY, Mass., Oct. 19.—Wellesley College inaugurated a new President, Miss Ellen Fitz Pendleton, to-day, in the presence of a notable throng of educators. The new President has spent the greater part of her life at Wellesley as student and teacher.

The inauguration exercises were held in the Memorial Chapel at 11 o'clock. In the academic procession were Samuel B. Capen, President of the Board of Trustees; Mrs. Pauline Durant, the surviving founder of the college; the Right Rev. William Lawrence, Episcopal Bishop of Massachusetts, Vice President of the Board of Trustees; Miss Ellen Fitz Pendleton, the President-elect; the Wellesley Representatives in the State Legislature and the Town Government, the college Trustees, the delegates from educational institutions, the Faculty, the Executive Board of the alumnae associations, the delegates from the alumnae associations, and the Executive Board of the Student Government Association. The invited guests included 119 representatives of 88 educational institutions.

Miss Pendleton's inaugural address dealt with training for citizenship and the preparations of the scholar as the two-fold function of the college:

"It goes without saying," she said, "that such preparation as I have had for a discussion of this subject has been obtained in a college exclusively for women. Happily for both, men and women must work together in the world, and I venture to say that the function of a college for men is not essentially different from that of the women's college.

"I ask you to consider this morning the two-fold function of the college, the training for citizenship and the preparation of the scholar. The exigencies of our mother tongue compel me to use the masculine pronoun, but it will be understood that reference is made to college students of both sexes."

Miss Pendleton then asked, what constitutes a training in citizenship? and proceed to discuss the curriculum for the ideal college, using the masculine pronoun throughout and avoiding any reference to what might be considered the special problems and aims of a college for women. Finally she said:

"College graduates ought to make, and I believe do make better teachers, more considerate husbands and wives, wiser fathers and mothers, but the chief function of the college is larger than this. The aim of the university and the great technical school is to furnish preparation for some specific profession."

Seven Craft Adrift in East River.

Six loaded coal scows and a pile driver broke adrift from the foot of East Fifty-sixth Street yesterday morning, and for ten minutes blocked the East River between Manhattan and Blackwell's Island. Capt. Peter Leonard of the Charities Department steamer Bronx saw them go and started after the drifting craft with his whistle going. He corralled the pile driver and one of the scows. The others grounded finally off Forty-ninth Street.

WOMAN AND WOMANHOOD

by C. W. Saleeby, M. D. 8vo, cloth, gilt top, $2.50 net

¶ An exhaustive and valuable discussion of Woman and all that intimately concerns Woman in the light of modern, social and scientific knowledge. The scope of the work is indicated by the introductory statement: "Woman is Nature's supreme organ of the future. The purpose of adding yet another to the many books on various aspects of womanhood is to propound, and, if possible, establish this conception of womanhood, and to find in it a never-failing guide to the right living of the individual life, an infallible criterion of right and wrong in all proposals for the future of womanhood, whether economic, political, educational, whether regarding marriage or divorce, or any other subject that concerns womanhood."

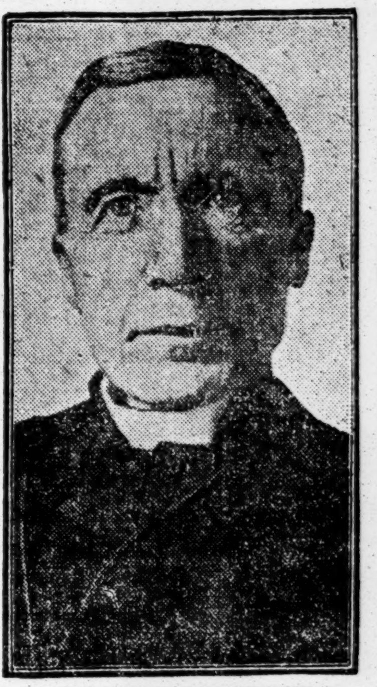
Cardinal Gibbons' ARTICLE ON The Beneficent Effects of the Catholic Church Upon Civilization



JAMES CARDINAL GIBBONS.

Is a remarkable presentation of the work of one of the oldest and most powerful institutions in the history of the world by one of the first citizens of America.

That the head of the Catholic Church in America has written on this highly important subject affords evidence that Frederick Converse Beach (Editor of the Scientific American and Editor-in-Chief of the Encyclopedia Americana) and his associate editors have provided with equal thoroughness for the treatment of all subjects in the Encyclopedia Americana.

20 Volume India Paper Edition New Encyclopedia Americana

THE publishers are justly proud of the convenient form of the new edition for purposes of quick and convenient reference. Instead of the usual cumbersome volumes, printed on ordinary paper and encased in stiff boards, the entire twenty-volume work is printed on India rice paper, which is thin and light, yet tough, opaque, and very durable, while the binding is in flexible leather. The result is that an 800-page volume is only about an inch thick; moreover, the flexible covers may be bent back and the book held in one hand, making it about as easy to handle as a current magazine.

RENTS AND TAXES.

The Mayor's signature yesterday of the "Equal Pay" bill promises—or threatens—to add $3,500,000 to the second largest item of the city's budget. The debt charge is portentous and everybody grudges it, but the educational item is freely paid, or has been so, even though the total runs to thirty millions, and exceeds the allowance for protection of life and property. Nevertheless the addition in a single item of as much as the aggregate increase in several single years is a challenge to the prudence of those who pay the bills. During the city's existence in its present corporate form there has been a decrease in the budget in only a single year. The customary increases have ranged up to sixteen millions, and have several times exceeded ten millions. It is flattering to the city to suggest that there is no limit to the tax burdens it can bear, but it is not the truth. The fact is that the limit is reached when the property is taxed more than it can bear. The statements made before the taxpayers' meetings indicate that that limit has been reached, and their words are proved by the condition of the market for real estate.

There are plenty of cases to show what happens when property is taxed for more than it is worth. The Parkman sale in Boston the other day is one of them. Many choice parcels of residential and business property were sold for less than the assessed values. They were worth less to the owner than the taxgatherer valued them at, and they were sold for whatever they could bring. On the lower range of value the new owner may be able to survive financially where the first owner was starved out, and perhaps on the proof of market value the taxes may be reduced. The point is that when the property owner is taxed out of his property the loss is the city's also. If the overvaluation is general enough it is possible to imagine embarrassment for the city as well as for the individual. The city's resources are merely the aggregate of all its citizens' resources, and the city cannot exceed certain limits. That limit is at hand when tax values exceed selling values. At that point or soon afterward retrenchment is no longer a matter of prudence. It is compulsory, the alternative being unnecessary to suggest.

The city has been traveling this road at a pace indicated by the fact that although the population has grown at a rate beyond reasonable expectation of continuance, the city's budget has grown twice or thrice as fast. We think the fact is worth the attention and action of every serious-minded citizen for the reason that rents do not rise with the taxes. If they did the owner would merely need to pass the taxes along to the renter, and be rid of the subject. Undoubtedly the landlord does so as far as he can, but the empty properties of all sorts, and the sacrifice sales, attest that the limit is at hand. When the landlord finds that his property yields an unsatisfactory income above interest and taxes he forsakes that route to a balance on the wrong side of the account, and the real estate market loses vitality. It is worth the while of all who dislike the addition of unnecessary millions to the budget to ask whether there is any connection between rents and taxes, or between excessive taxes and dwindling values. There is still a season within which we may choose how we shall reduce the enormous budget, and how we may provide ourselves with what we need in the way of city facilities outside the budget. But the opportunity is not a permanent one.

REYES MAKING MISCHIEF.

Last Autumn, while Gen. Madero, amid the palms and flowers of San Antonio, was busily engineering the beginnings of a revolution against a long-established governmental system in Mexico, the whole world smiled. Diaz seemed so strong, and Madero so weak, and we had become accustomed to look upon revolutions in Latin-American countries in the light of opera bouffe. But Madero's revolution triumphed by the will of a large majority of the Mexicans, Diaz and his foremost adherents are in exile, and, after a provisional Government conducted with tact and fidelity, Madero has been elected President by his people. The world no longer smiles at him.

Gen. Bernardo Reyes, who used to be considered Mexico's foremost soldier, is now the object of ridicule. He has behaved like a spoiled child. After pretending to accept the consequences of Madero's revolution, he has made a spectacle of himself by running away from the capital, when nobody was chasing him, and he is now in San Antonio, trying to foment a counter-revolution. San Antonio is a beautiful and prosperous city, but no good can come to it from harboring foreign mischief-makers. The Mexican people are satisfied with their change. They are setting to work manfully to repair the damages caused by a year of turmoil. Business is picking up, capital is seeking new investments, the outlook is most encouraging for a long term of peace and prosperity.

The little uprisings in remote parts of the country are feeble echoes of a great movement. Reyes has no following, or he would have found it before he left Mexico. The disturbances of the bandits in Morelos and Puebla have been effectively suppressed. Gen. Reyes is dreaming of power and trying to make trouble. San Antonio can get along without him and his junta.

GOV. DIX AND THE "EQUAL PAY" BILL.

Whether Gov. Dix vetoes or approves the women teachers' bill commanding this city to accept their doctrine of "equal pay," his arguments should be stronger than Mayor Gaynor's arguments in signing it. Every plea for extravagance in Governmental expenditure minimizes the cost in the aggregate and to the individual. The Mayor says it is only "an increase of four mills" in the tax rate; that we can save the $3,500,000 it entails "in other ways," and that this is not a tax-burdened city. The great principle once gained of equalizing their pay to that of a few male teachers in the school system, the mass of women teachers would take heart from Mr. Gaynor's arguments to demand still further increases. But one passage in the Mayor's comment should arrest Gov. Dix's attention. It reads:

> The Legislature has passed this bill several times in recent years. Its will should not be vetoed again.

The veto power is never exercised save as a check upon the Legislature. Why this succession of vetoes? If Gov. Dix will look them up, the Mayoral and Gubernatorial veto messages, he will find that reasons of home rule and of justice in all the State departments were urged against the bill's extravagant and fantastic policy. Mayor Gaynor foolishly committed himself to the "equal pay" principle before his election. Gov. Dix is uncommitted, he has able counsel, and he has written some excellent veto messages.

THE TROUBLE-MAKERS.

"We must put down the trouble-makers and the dissensionists," said Mr. Mack, the newly appointed Chairman of the Democratic State Committee, at the meeting of that body on Wednesday, "and strive with all our might in this preliminary skirmish of 1912 to keep New York in the Democratic column." The trouble-makers, who in the judgment of Mr. Mack and Mr. Murphy must be put down, are the Democrats who are just now exhibiting signs of dissatisfaction with the results of Murphy rule. The Democrats of Putnam County have declined to nominate a candidate for the Assembly. They were denounced in a resolution introduced by Mr. Murphy himself at the meeting of the committee, denounced because, as he declared it, they had made a deal with the Republicans in order to secure the election of members of the Board of Supervisors of that county. Therefore Mr. Murphy wants a committee of five appointed from the State Committee to "reorganize" the Democracy in Putnam County. Furthermore, resolutions offered by Mr. Van Kennan denounced those Democrats of this city who have associated themselves with the movement to promote the election of Republican candidates to the Assembly over Mr. Murphy's candidates. We suppose the Democrats nominated by Mr. Finucane for local offices in Rochester, who have all resigned because of their disgust at the arbitrary boss methods of Finucane, must also be classed among the trouble-makers falling under Chairman Mack's displeasure.

But who are the real trouble-makers? Who are the men who have made it necessary for Mr. Mack to exhort the Democracy to strive with all their might to keep New York in the Democratic column next year? The chief of all these trouble-makers is Charles F. Murphy. That is unquestionable. The behavior of the Legislature which he controlled has caused the disgust which makes New York an uncertain State, which may make it impossible for the Democrats, no matter how much they strive, to keep the State in the Democratic column in 1912. The Charter which that Legislature sought to force upon the city was bad enough. It was a dishonest and crooked Charter. But in our judgment the Legislature's tampering with the election laws was a worse offense, because much more dangerous. In the interest of Tammany control of this city and of Murphy's control of the State, the Legislature had the hardihood, by passing the Levy law, to attempt to disfranchise, so far as it lay in its power, the opponents of Tammany and of Murphy. This is a pretty serious statement. Attempts at disfranchisement, attempts to revoke by statute privileges granted by the Constitution, are rare. But the Court of Appeals found that this law would, in fact, work the disfranchisement of certain classes of voters, and the court declared the law unconstitutional. If this community were not a little slow in manifesting its indignation at a public wrong, or if it fully comprehended the dangerous nature of this Tammany assault upon the liberty of the voter, it would make sure of the defeat of the Tammany candidates for the Assembly in every district where it is humanly possible to elect their opponents.

The men who have made the trouble in the Democratic Party, the men who have brought it from the state of high fortune which attended it in the election of 1910 to a condition so low that even the always optimistic Chairman of the party's State Committee foresees and almost openly admits the danger that the Electoral vote of New York will be given to a Republican Presidential candidate next year, are perfectly well known. Chief of them is Mr. Murphy. Chairman Mack says the trouble-makers must be put down. The only effective way to put them down is to defeat as many as possible of Mr. Murphy's candidates for the Assembly and to break his controlling grip upon the Democracy of the State.

REGISTRATION DAYS.

To-day and to-morrow will be registration days in New York. The books will be open in every election district until 10 o'clock each evening, and after to-morrow they will be closed. If you have not then registered you will lose your opportunity to vote at the general election, Nov. 7, and you will not be privileged to take part in next year's primaries. There are two primary elections in the year of a Presidential election, in March for delegates to the nominating conventions, and in September. Only registered and enrolled voters will have the right, under the new election law, to sign petitions for the nominations of candidates. It is likely that there will be great interest in the primary elections of 1912. The citizen otherwise qualified to vote will fail in his duty if he neglects to register and enroll now.

Throughout the State there will be a general enrollment of voters, beginning Nov. 15, for next year's direct primaries. The enrollment lists now making up at the registration places in this city will be used for that purpose. There will be no further registration or enrollment of voters here. After 10 o'clock to-morrow evening the books will be closed.

Apart from all other considerations, it is the duty of every citizen to vote at all elections. Men who deliberately fail to vote are generally bad citizens. But the duty to register this year is paramount, and every man who registers should also enroll with the political party for whose candidates he habitually votes in order to insure for himself a voice in the primary elections of next year, under the new laws.

THE SOUTH FINDING ITSELF.

It is less than fifty years since Major Lyde Coker returned to his plantation at Hartsville, S. C., partly crippled by wounds and nearly penniless, and began tilling his land with an abandoned army mule and a borrowed pair of oxen. To-day he and his family are wealthy merchants, manufacturers, and agriculturists in a prosperous region, which their intelligence, scientific work, ingenuity, and energy have chiefly developed. The story of their achievement is told in the current number of The World's Work by Prof. Edward Mims of the University of North Carolina. It is a plain, straightforward story, with no rhetoric and no exaggerated emphasis, and it is as fascinating as the tale of Aladdin and his lamp.

The starting point was in the brain and temper of Major Coker, before the war. When in 1857, at the age of 21, he received from his father the plantation at Hartsville, he determined to fit himself for its development by study, and he spent a year at Harvard under Asa Gray and Agassiz mastering the conditions of plant life, working with the patient energy and resourcefulness not usually accepted as Southern traits, but of which the Union armies had abundant experience in the civil war. With pitifully meagre means, but in the same spirit and with increased determination, he attacked the problem that faced practically every man of his class in the South. The stages of his success are described by Prof. Mims. It must suffice here to note the chief features of the present attainment, due to Major Coker and his family. The wood pulp industry, using the "old-field pine," relatively worthless before, has been established. Following this has come the extensive manufacture of paper tubes and cones for cotton factories. From ordinary indifferent cotton of the region has been developed a superior variety with a staple one-third larger and from 70 per cent. to 140 per cent. more valuable in the market. These, it will be seen, are concrete and lasting additions to the resources of the region.

They are the fruit of a process that is going on all through the State of South Carolina and in other States. It seems to be a stable characteristic of the pioneers and conquerors in this manly struggle that they are not bent on their own gain only, but are ready to aid all who need aid and will take it. In an address before the South Carolina Cotton Manufacturers' Association last June Mr. Coker estimated "that during the present year 50,000 bales of good strong, even-running cotton of 1⅛-1⅜ staple would be raised in South Carolina from new and prolific varieties bred by citizens of the State." And this remarkable record is made possible by the generous mutual co-operation of those engaged in the improvement, seconded and guided by the agents of the State and Federal Government. One of the Coker family, for instance, has for some years maintained, with great care, an experiment station of his own. Two years ago he "planted 230 acres in seed descended from one stalk of cotton selected in 1906—a stalk bred to pedigree since 1902." How he accomplishes this and like results he is ready to tell to all who wish in good faith to know. Nor are his investigations and experiments confined to cotton, but embrace many plants likely to contribute to the prosperity of the farms and factories of the South.

There is another phase of evolution in the region of Hartsville described by Prof. Mims which is of even greater value. It is not necessarily the result of the material advance, but it comes from the application of the same high intelligence and public spirit to other than purely material aims. It seems that sanitation, education, and religion prosper there in the same way as cotton and pulp and paper. Malaria has been banished, schools, a woman's college, and churches have been established. Here surely are signs of great and solid progress, signs of finer and more enduring forces at work than are to be found in the average community in any section of the country. Prof. Mims is to make a series of like studies in the South. It would be interesting to compare them with the study of "The Cotton States" made about the time Major Coker settled at Hartsville by Frederick Law Olmsted for The New York Times. Every pessimist of the brand who now infest our land ought to be sentenced to solitary confinement until he had made that comparison.

SIEGFRIED ATTACKS STRAUSS.

There was a time, within the memory of living men, when Richard Wagner's music was thought fit only for "intellectual degenerates" and "full of poisonous miasma and unhealthy vapors." The people who could not comprehend a harmonic range greater than Rossini's condemned the great master of modern music on all grounds, moral as well as artistic. Forty years ago musicians and musical critics of eminence denounced Wagner bitterly.

To-day his son denounces Richard Strauss in the same terms. Strauss's polyphonic theories, his orchestra, his realism, his sensuousness, belong to a later epoch. His orchestra is the largest ever known. Siegfried Wagner feels that the last word worth saying was said at Baireuth. Strauss, from his point of view, is an error, a blot, a destroyer of music. Doubtless Strauss will be delighted with the implied compliment. Wagner's son honors him, as the dullwits of the past honored Wagner. Probably Strauss is no such reformer in the field of dramatic music as Wagner was, but posterity will decide that point. He is certainly an independent force in modern music, a man of genius, with large acquirements, and when Siegfried Wagner attacks him, he merely reveals the littleness of a great man's son.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

Why Did the Jury Hesitate?

Twice in the English courts, it seems, men have tried to get money damages from women for breaking an agreement to marry. Considering how long English courts have been in existence, the people of that country need not be very much ashamed that in all that time it has produced only two men so lost to the sense of decency and so lacking in the sense of humor as to institute litigation of this sort. Americans cannot with as near an approach to equanimity or resignation view the fact that in a period so much shorter as that which their history provides there has been found among them one such man. If this rate keeps up our record will become, in a few centuries, extremely bad.

It is, however, possible to hope that the Griswold, as he is our first offense, will so long remain without an imitator that our record may equal, or even surpass, that of the country which, judging from his name, is in reality responsible for his being, and, in part, for his peculiarities of character. But it is less a country, his own or that of his ancestors, that this amazing creature has disgraced by his demand and by his betrayals, than the portion of humanity—the sex, in other words—to which, much as they would like to do so, the other members of that sex cannot deny that he belongs or at least has some relation.

When a woman sues for breach of promise it is bad enough—indeed, it is dreadful enough—but in conceivable circumstances the jilted woman may suffer injuries measurable in and consolable by money, and in those circumstances, therefore, a woman without dignity, self-respect, or delicacy of feeling has a colorable excuse for trying to get damages. But for a man to do it! For him publicly to admit his inability to maintain affection or toleration which he had once won, and for him to attempt to capitalize his discomfiture!

The jury before whom Griswold's allegation of suffered wrong was laid decided that he had no case. That is consolatory, but the time it took the jurymen to reach their decision hints that, like many another jury, this one wavered for hours between applying the letter of the law and rendering a verdict in accordance with the eternal fitness of things. That is the only explanation of their delay which is either creditable or credible.

Why the News is Printed by Newspapers.

It is rather discouraging, or at any rate it is not encouraging, that though the reasons for the publication of all the news by newspapers have been so often and so carefully given, there should still persist in a small but well-intentioned and respectable fraction of the newspaper-reading public a belief that the papers should print little if anything except the news of noble deeds and pleasant happenings.

To entertain this belief one has to ignore so many things, among them the nature of news and the interests of humanity. The essential characteristic of news seems to be unusualness. At any rate that alone, in innumerable instances, gives to actions and events what everybody recognizes as importance—not necessarily intrinsic importance, of course, but an importance that demands, receives, and in one way or another rewards, attention.

A critical reader whose letter appeared on this page yesterday had taken a copy of The Times and written out a partial table of its contents. In our opinion, his table, though partial, proved that The Times that day was an unusually good newspaper. Even its critic had commendation for about half of what his list contained, because it was exactly what he thinks newspapers should print, but to the other half he objected because, forsooth, he objects to murders and attempted murders, to minor crimes, to suicides, to railway accidents, to divorces, to wars! Concerning these matters, apparently, he would have nothing said. Apparently, too, he thinks that if nothing were said about them they would cease to exist.

Among the few certainties in this uncertain world is the certainty that he is quite wrong. Publicity is the very best remedy—is the only remedy—for these evils. Of course there is a wrong as well as a right publicity, and the effects of publicity are not all or always good. It can hurt the hero or the philanthropist as well as produce imitators of the murderer or the suicide. But manner and motive can justify the giving of publicity to anything, just as they can condemn the giving of publicity to anything. This truth the wise critic of journalism keeps in mind, and he judges a newspaper less on what it prints than on how and why the printing is done.

There is nothing wrong in the fact that the horse trotting quietly along the street attracts few and careless glances, but draws a crowd if he falls down, and creates intense excitement if he runs away—and nothing wrong in the fact that in the one case he makes no news and in the other two "gets into the paper."

Turtles Have Feelings.

All of us who have had occasion to travel in the coastwise steamers have observed the turtle on his way to market and the subsequent soup plate. A good many of us, so observing, have been more or less pained by the probability that the turtles are pained when cords are run through slits in their fin-feet as a means of making them stay where they are put.

The observer's pain, however, is rarely acute or long-lasting, because he sees no indication that the turtle suffers any pain at all, and although the reptile's contentment may be only resignation or despair, its simulation of indifference is usually convincing.

The question has now been brought into court for settlement by the arrest of a Ward Line Captain because he brought to port as deck passengers turtles confined in the usual way. As no turtle can be called to the witness stand with any hope of eliciting definite first-hand information the question of cruelty at issue will not be settled beyond doubt, but of the doubt that remains the turtle will probably now or soon get the benefit.

NOT ALL IDIOT ASYLUMS.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Your issue of Saturday, Oct. 7, contained the report of a case of a mentally deficient child, Andrew Bianco, brought before the Children's Court, and headed "Test Case for Idiot Asylum," and an article headed "Backward Children," signed M. Hillel Feldman, also on the same subject, appeared in your paper yesterday, the 16th inst. Believing it is your desire to present only truth concerning conditions in the public institutions of the city and not misrepresentations, I, as the Superintendent of the Hospital School for Normal Children, as well as the School for Feeble Minded, on Randall's Island, must call your attention to the effect such articles are bound to produce in the public mind. They convey the impression that a child sent to Randall's Island must of necessity be compelled to associate with idiots. Needless to say, this is not the case, a fact readily demonstrated by a visit to this institution, but lest the impression go further I must ask you to print the following outline of what Randall's Island really does for the mentally deficient children of New York City.

While we have idiot asylums for the children of hopelessly deficient mentality we also have a totally distinct institution for brighter children of slight mental deficiency, the School for Feeble Minded, where these children are taught and developed to their highest expression of power. (according to the modern methods of training atypical children.)

No child who is merely mentally deficient or intellectually backward would be obliged for a moment to live with hopeless idiots on Randall's Island, for not alone are the School for Feeble Minded and the Idiot Asylum totally separate institutions, but the inmates of either division never come in contact with those of the other. All children sent to the island are kept isolated for a few weeks, and are carefully tested for their mental make-up by a committee of medical and lay experts before being assigned to a certain ward. They are then admitted to the School for Feeble Minded and still further observed by the teachers in charge until final decision is reached and they are definitely associated in the classes with children of the same type of mental ability as they themselves possess. Their progress is closely watched, their records carefully kept, and every effort made to suit the work required to their mental and physical status.

The statement, therefore, that "an intellectually backward child" would be compelled to consort with hopeless idiots is an unwarranted assumption which has no justification in fact, and which must be based on complete ignorance of the efforts of the Department of Public Charities and the medical and lay experts in its service to classify, train, and develop the mentally deficient.

The Wingdale Prison Site.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

The alarming news that the Wingdale Prison was to be built in a swamp need not scare us out of our boots, so to speak. Is there no such thing as draining a swamp? Considerable portions of every borough in New York were originally swamp or even under tide water and have been reclaimed, being now very valuable.

It seems that if the hill, whose existence seems to render the tract less useful than it seemed at first, should be carried to the swamp piecemeal it would afford precisely the work that the prisoners could best be employed at. At any rate it is what many good, honest men out of prison pass their lives at. Just why the swamp, if this be the only obstacle, should not be made good land is hard to see. Just such a site should have been picked out by forethought, and not abandoned for that reason only.

"Equal Work" in the Schools.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Recurring to the "equal" pay question, now that the women folk profess to think that they do exactly the same work as the men (in a city where the tax rate is to increase 23 per cent. next year) shall we see consistency carried to the limit and have but one eligible list for each grade of educator?

There seems to be no reason why women should not be made Principals over boys' schools in future, nor for that matter why the weaker vessels, the men, should not get the easy work in girls' schools. So the principle of merging, declared by a great educator to be a most valuable one, should be extended to men's and women's eligible lists for Principal, Assistant to Principal, promotion license, graduating license, &c. For be it known in these far from simple days, there are fifty-seven kinds of license. Let "equality" be carried out in dead earnest if any beginning is to be made in a city where 23 per cent. increase of taxes is scheduled.

A MUNICIPAL MUSEUM.

One That Would Make the Budget Exhibit Permanent Is Demanded.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

The vast attendance at the Budget Exhibit has conclusively proved not only the need of intelligent enlightenment on the problems of city government and of the relation of municipal departments to the life of the people, but it has demonstrated an unquestionable demand among the people for just such accurate and vital facts relating to the government of our city.

But why should this demand be met only spasmodically? Every one who has attended the Budget Exhibit has been deeply impressed with the richness of the material. It is fairly dizzying in its quantity. Even an intelligent specialist in municipal affairs feels that he has been whirled around in a maelstrom of facts, and he leaves the hall with a jumble of impressions.

This arrangement may be inevitable because of the temporary character of the exhibit. If a Budget Exhibit were included as one of the annual features in a more permanent institution it would be possible to devote more attention to the arrangement and classification of material. For this reason the suggestion made by the leading social workers of the city, that the City Government establish a municipal museum, is a very important one. Such a museum would very soon endear itself to the public and become as popular an institution as the Museums of Art and Natural History. The advantages of permanence are many, even on financial grounds. But there are deeper reasons for the establishment of such an institution. One of the most neglected studies of the high schools and public schools of this city is civics. Such an institution could easily co-operate with the public schools. Teachers and pupils could go there at their leisure, and in an atmosphere of quiet, and with the co-operation of sympathetic civic "curators" learn an object lesson in city government. At the present time thousands of children elbow themselves through the crowd, glance at the models, enjoy the excitement, and get a whirl of fleeting impressions which cannot stick.

A municipal museum should contain a municipal reference library; it should be the depository of the rich experience of past administrations; it should contain specimens of pavements, sewer pipes, charts, &c., and conserve whatever wisdom has been contributed by past administrations in the solving of definite municipal questions, so that any members of future administrations can turn to this museum as the scholar does to the wisdom of the sages for the light of experience.

There are many other reasons for the establishment of this museum which the limit of space and a regard for your newspaper hospitality will not permit me to dilate upon.

Nathan Ottinger's Candidacy.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

I have for the last fourteen years known intimately Mr. Nathan Ottinger, a Supreme Court candidate on the Fusion ticket, during six of which he was associated with me as a member of my firm in the practice of the law.

Mr. Ottinger is a lawyer of wide experience and unusual ability. Few lawyers can point to a record as brilliant as his before the Appellate tribunals of this State. His name is a synonym for integrity, and he is known for his honorable and courteous bearing not only toward the court but also to the members of the bar. He possesses the equable temperament, the patience, dignity and courtesy which are essential qualifications for judicial office.

For the last five years Mr. Ottinger has been an active and conscientious member of the Grievance Committee of the Bar Association and has given unstintingly of his time and labor to the important work of this committee in purging the profession of its unworthy members. He has been instrumental, through his work on this committee, in raising the ethical standards of the legal profession in the city and in bringing to book lawyers of high and low degree who have been unfaithful to these standards. In short, he is a learned, honorable lawyer of signal ability and absolute integrity who, if elected, would be an ornament to the bench.

City Club's President Protests.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Will you permit me through your columns to enter my protest against the action of the Republican Fusionists in combining to displace Judge Pendleton and Surrogate Fowler, both of whom were appointed by Gov. Dix? To be sure they are Democrats, but they are men of the highest standing, personally and professionally, and there can be no good reason for not nominating them. I believe I am voicing the sentiment of many Republicans, who firmly believe in the principles of the Republican Party as applied to National and State administrative and legislative action, but are not bound by party ties, when capable Judges now serving are sought to be displaced for no reason except that they are not Republicans.

BUSINESS SUSPENDED.

I called to-day on Mr. Jones.
That fellow owes me seven bones.
I'd barely said "Good day to you,"
And told him that the bill was due,
When Jones commenced. "What do you think?
That upstart Ath-a-letic gink
Hit Matty for a clean home run!"
—And I went out without my mon.

I stepped at my attorney's place
For papers on an urgent case.
I'd hardly taken off my hat
When he broke loose. "Just look at that!
Three errors in a single game!
Say, isn't that a beastly shame?
That umpire's nothing but a thief!"
—And I went out without my brief.

I said, "I'll get a manicure."
But say! She jabbed her orange stick
Beneath my nail up to the quick,
And stormed, "Those beastly Giant scrubs
Are playin' like a bunch of dubs!"
Her actions could not be endured.
—I left, my nails unmanicured.

I sought the laundry of Sam Lee
To get my collars. Even he Let loose at once in accents sad:
"The Giants playing velly bad!
Me tink him gotta jinx all lite!"
I stooped to slang and said "Good night!
I've heard enough of baseball bosh."
—And I went home without my wash.

Say, friends, until we reach the end
Of this pow-wow, why not suspend
All business? Just pull down the blinds
Until our baseball-crowded minds
Are freed from this condition tense?
There's really not a bit of sense
In wasting time on any man
Right now, if he's a baseball fan.

MERCHANTS AROUSED OVER FIFTH AVENUE

Want to Know Why the Paving Has Been Torn Up and Repair Work Delayed So Long.

COMPLAINTS GO TO McANENY

Long Stretches of the Thoroughfare Almost Impassable and Traffic Badly Hampered.

Merchants along Fifth Avenue in the section between Forty-eighth and Fifty-ninth Street that is being widened, as well as automobilists and others who use the avenue are incensed over the condition of that thoroughfare and the apparent delay by the city authorities in laying of new pavement.

Complaints have been pouring into the Fifth Avenue Association, but despite correspondence between the President of the association, Robert Grier Monroe, and Borough President McAneny, nothing apparently has been done. In many instances property owners have carried out the demands of the city and torn away the fronts of their stores and residences, but the city, they say, has not been nearly so anxious to carry out its part of the bargain and widen the thoroughfare.

Mr. McAneny, replying last week to a letter from the Fifth Avenue Association, announced that the contractor who has charge of the work had begun to lay the new pavement last Friday. An investigation yesterday showed that only a few men were at work and that no apparent effort has been made to clear away the heaps of débris that line the avenue on either side. So many complaints were received by the Fifth Avenue Association that Mr. Monroe made a personal investigation and on Oct. 13 wrote to President McAneny saying:

> I was informed by your secretary not long ago that the work of widening Fifth Avenue would be under way about this time. I realize fully that a number of these property owners have got behind-hand in their share of the changes. But would it not be possible to have the sidewalk part undertaken at once on such blocks as have the other parts completed?
>
> There is, for instance, the block between Fiftieth and Fifty-first Streets. I looked at it this morning, and it seemed to me that they were entirely ready for the city workmen. There may be other parts that are in the same situation. I particularly investigated this section because the merchants there brought it to my attention. You will oblige me greatly if you will let me know just when a beginning is to be made as the Fall trade is becoming more and more brisk every day.

Contractor Ordered to Work.

Replying to this letter, Mr. McAneny's secretary, Julian B. Beaty, wrote on Oct. 14:

> The contractor on the work of widening Fifth Avenue above Forty-eighth Street was ordered to work yesterday. He was held up for some reason, but the work was started this morning, and it will be pushed to early completion.

There was no evidence yesterday that the contractor referred to had made even a start. At Mr. McAneny's office it was explained that the heavy rains of the last few days had held up the work. If the rain kept the contractor back it did not fail to make the conditions on the avenue much worse. The dirt was turned to mud, ankle deep, while deep pools of water made walking almost impossible.

In many cases where new buildings are going up, the conditions are especially hard for pedestrians. They are compelled to desert the makeshift sidewalks and take to the narrow strip of roadway, where they are in imminent danger of being run over, or, if women, are liable to have their gowns spoiled. In many cases there has been so much building material and rubbish heaped along both sides of the roadway that the strip for vehicles has been narrowed to about ten or twelve feet and traffic must creep at a snail's pace.

At Fifty-sixth Street, where new buildings are going up on both sides of the avenue, pedestrians are forced into the roadway, where they take their chances of being run down or of walking through a deep mud hole. Between Fifty-first and Fifty-second Streets the pavements are entirely torn up and pedestrians again have to take to the roadway. In front of St. Thomas's Church, at Fifty-third Street, the pavement is used as a dumping ground by the contractors who are at work rebuilding the church, and there is no other place to walk but the middle of the avenue, which, at that point, is about ten feet wide.

The roadway between Fifty-fourth and Fifty-fifth Streets is perhaps the worst of all. The property owners on both sides of the avenue have long ago compiled with the law and shorn off the fronts of the buildings that projected beyond the building line. The sidewalks, too, have been relaid, but the roadway is almost impassable. The asphalt pavement has been entirely ripped up, and huge piles of building material and refuse lie heaped in the gutters.

This block contains the St. Regis and Gotham Hotels and the University Club, but, despite the complaints of the owners, nothing has been done to remedy conditions. Opposite the Fifth Avenue Presbyterian Church there are other heaps of rubbish. The improvements have been completed in front of St. Patrick's Cathedral, but the roadway is almost impassable. The fine lawn in front of the church has been taken away to give place to marble steps, and the sidewalk widened to the full specifications.

Traffic Badly Hindered.

Heaps of loose building material and rubbish take up fiften to twenty feet of the road, however. The asphalt has been torn up in spots, and the mud yesterday was so deep that no one ventured to cross from one side of the avenue to the other. Automobiles and other vehicles plowed slowly through the sticky mud and horses floundered along in it.

Mr. McAneny was too busy attending a budget hearing to pay any attention to complaints about the avenue. Acting Chief Engineer Pollock of the Bureau of Highways, however, said that the city did not begin to repave the thoroughfare until last Friday. Work, he said, had been held up because the city had to turn over a lease which the Barber Asphalt Company held to the Sicilian Asphalt Paving Company.

The former company, it was explained, was under contract until 1913 to repave the avenue between Forty-eighth and Fifty-ninth Streets under its old width of forty feet. The new contract repaving the street to a width of sixty feet has been awarded to the Sicilian Company, and this changing of contracts, Mr. Pollock explained, took time.

When the actual work of repaving begins, three blocks of the avenue will be closed at a time. Asked when he thought the work would be completed, Mr. McAneny's secretary said:

"Oh, along about the time cold weather gets here."

The Borough President was greatly elated yesterday over the fact that Lewis Edwards, a Deputy Sheriff at White Plains, had found the pavements in Manhattan much to his liking. Mr. Edwards wrote that he ought to know something about the situation, as he was able to trace his ancestry back some 220 years. President McAneny sent the Deputy Sheriff this letter:

> Dear Mr. Edwards—I have read your letter with interest, and thank you for it very heartily. From your experience, you readily understand as anyone with a grain of horse sense ought to, that we have done the best that we could do with the rotten areas of pavement inherited in Manhattan. The only remedy is a substitution of modern pavement for the old and the obsolete.
>
> In pursuance of a policy of this sort, we have repaved forty-one miles in Manhattan during the current year, against twenty-four miles in 1910, and eighteen miles the year before. Constant attention had been given, too, to the question of up-to-date types of pavement, and before another year is past the results will speak for themselves.
>
> There is little use in talking about this sort of thing, however, to people who don't want to know, or whose purpose is to misrepresent everything that proceeds from the fusion government. I have thought that sometimes such people get the ear of the public much more readily than those who have a plain case of facts to state, but that just as certainly cannot be prevented. I shall keep in mind your kind offer to lend your advice; and, thanking you for your letter, I remain, Very truly yours,
>
> GEORGE McANENY,
> President of the Borough of Manhattan.

MUSIC THAT CHARMS BY VICTOR HERBERT

NEAT DANCING AND SOME FUN

A Very Agreeable Score, in Which the Orchestration Adds to the Pleasure of Good Voices and a Very Good Cast.

A community already under obligations to Victor Herbert will again find itself his debtor for some very delightful music contributed in his new opera comique, presented at the New York Theatre last night, and apparently destined to a considerable popularity.

In fact, if people in large numbers do not go to see "The Enchantress," it will be their loss. For this latest contribution to the lighter entertainments in this city has much to recommend it. To begin with, Mr. Herbert has written in his most charming vein—or veins, for he is a versatile musician—and he has scored some of his melodies so delightfully that no small amount of the pleasure is derived from the orchestra. And, happily, there are good voices, if not always of first quality, yet pleasing almost always, and well selected, whether for solos, duos, or ensembles.

The result, primarily, is an entertainment which will appeal to people who do not object to hearing music that is good even if it is light, and this, fortunately, without the intrusion of too much of that common horseplay which a misguided sense of humor persists in regarding as a necessary adjunct.

The two or three persons depended upon for the so-called comic relief are really amusing, and this, too, without too much insistence or persistence. And, wonder of wonders, the main story of a Prince who is enchanted by a commoner, (this one being a beautiful actress,) and who will lose his kingdom if he marries her, is well preserved in spite of the familiar and necessary interruptions of song and dance and serio-comic plotting on the part of spies, conspirators, ambitious Princesses, and other familiar characters of opera comique, operetta, comic opera, and more or less musical comedy.

To begin with, the entertainment is designed as a background for the somewhat regal and decidedly opulent charm of Miss Kitty Gordon, who is not too much on the stage, though she very properly focuses attention whenever she is there. For Miss Gordon, besides satisfying the eye, is able, for the most part, to satisfy the ear and the sense of taste, acting neatly, singing pleasantly, and generally conducting herself as should a well-bred prima donna in a piece where she is the star.

The audience, having been entertained previously by a succession of very good musical numbers, including "If You Can't Be as Happy as You'd Like to Be, Just Be as Happy as You Can," sung very effectively by Harrison Brockbank, and having shared in the enthusiasm of the Prince's testimonial in a song, "And That Little Girl is You," very charmingly given by Harold H. Forde—this audience, then, is ready and waiting for Miss Gordon's entrance immediately preceding Mr. Herbert's very soothing and lingering number, "Land of My Own Romance," very agreeably rendered by Miss Gordon, with good backing up by the chorus and Mr. Forde.

Miss Gordon's next number, "Come, Little Fishes," designed as a sort of lyric soliloquy about men who woo, is delivered very delightfully, the actress gowned meanwhile in a gorgeously effective affair of shimmering gold, with an artist touch of pink and green and just the right note of contrast in a little splash of scarlet flowers at the waist line.

Vocally, sartorially, and histrionically supplying all that may reasonably be required of her, Miss Gordon's stellar début may thus be accounted entirely successful.

But lest it be imagined that she is "the whole show" let it be mentioned that there are several other principals for whom opportunities to score are not wanting, and when there is not time for individual effort they are brought on in "bunches," as witness Mr. Herbert's exquisite madrigal engaging the six princesses, and the duo "When the Right Man Sings Tra-la," allowing one of them Venita Fitzhugh, to exhibit a considerable degree of sprightliness. Again, one of the princesses, Louise Bliss, is the very popular member in the song "She Wants to be a Prima Donna," capitally sung by her, subsequently taken by the chorus, and effective for as many encores as the conductor will allow.

Just what the American girl, played by Nellie McCoy, has to do with the case neither plot nor programme reveal, but Miss Nellie, own sister to Miss Bessie, and a dangerous rival to her in the art terpsichoric, is a grateful persence. To Miss McCoy falls one of Mr. Herbert's quaintest numbers, "That Naughty Little Song," relating the transformation of native melody that wanders away from home and is adopted—not to say adapted—in foreign lands. After the second verse Miss McCoy's nimble toes do the work that her voice has previously been called upon to do.

There is some capital dancing also by Ralph Riggs, who plays a comedy detective with a good deal of real and dry humor, and who subsequently has the agile assistance of Katherine Witchie.

In the leading romantic rôle Mr. Forde presents an agreeable change from the too, too sentimental type so often encountered, and for opponent finds metal worthy of his steel in the very handsome, very finished, and very authoritative Mr. Arthur Forrest, who, if we mistake not, is now making his first appearance in an entertainment wherein music is more than incidental. Hattie Arnold provides an amusing and ample figure. The book, by Fred de Gresac and Harry B. Smith, serves excellently.

Altogether, then, "The Enchantress" is a pleasing entertainment and it bids fair to prosper.

AMATEURS WIN DANCE PRIZE

James Morrison and Rose Lynch Outwaltz Shubert Actors.

In spite of the protestations of the press agent the waltzing contest held yesterday at 1 o'clock on the stage of the Casino Theatre to determine which one of the Shubert companies had the most enduring waltzers, was won by outsiders, amateurs at that. James Morrison of 289 Court Street, Brooklyn, and Rose Lynch walked away with the Marathon dancing honors as easily as possible, in spite of the fact that Flora Zabelle, Elsa Ryan, Martin Brown, Adele Rowland, May Boley, Jack Hazzard, Dorothy Brenner, and Fred Santley waltzed and waltzed and waltzed.

Frank Tours, the musical director of "The Kiss Waltz," sat down at the piano at exactly 1 o'clock and started to play the piece de resistance of that operetta. Soon he was relieved by Louis Hirsch, and between them they managed to keep up a continuous stream of waltzes, while on the lighted stage in front of the darkened auditorium the contestants whirled and whirled and whirled.

Martin Brown and Adele Rowland introduced as many fancy steps as possible into their waltzing, and thereby became tired out sooner. Miss Zabelle, who danced with Miss Ryan, took her waltzing more easily, but twenty minutes of it was enough for her, she said, considering she had an evening performance. Al Leech and Maud Grey, from "The Never Homes," did nobly, and May Boley danced with different men until she said she was sure she could dance no more. When half an hour had passed nobody was on the floor but the winners, who, it should be observed, are said to have danced ten hours without stopping on one occasion.

Mrs. Robert Mantell Suffers Relapse.

Mrs. Robert Mantell, (Marie Booth Russell,) who had an attack of heart failure late in the Summer, which prevented her from beginning the season on tour with her husband, has suffered a relapse and her condition is so serious that Mr. Mantell has cancelled his engagements for the next ten days and gone to Atlantic Highlands to be with her. He left his company n Buffalo.

SOCIAL NOTES.

Mr. and Mrs. Ogden L. Mills are occupying a house at Old Westbury, L. I., for the Autumn.

Mrs. Lewis Stuyvesant Chanler and Miss Alida Chanler returned yesterday from Europe, where they spent the Summer, on the St. Paul. Mrs. Brayton Ives and Miss Winifred Ives and Mr. and Mrs. James Brown Scott were also on board.

Dr. and Mrs. John Blake White, after a motor trip through the White Mountains, have returned to their residence, 1,013 Madison Avenue.

Mrs. Conde R. Thorn and Miss Thorn of 310 West Seventy-seventh Street sailed yesterday on the Cleveland on a cruise around the world.

Mr. and Mrs. Alexander D. B. Pratt (Miss Benjamin) came into town on Monday and are at 130 East Sixty-seventh Street for the Winter.

Mrs. Walter Cutting and Miss Juliana Cutting are coming from Southampton on Nov. 1, and will then be at the Buckingham.

Mr. and Mrs. Horace Russell are to keep their Southampton cottage open until the end of the month.

Mr. and Mrs. Daniel F. Downs have returned to town and are at 131 East Sixty-first Street.

Mr. and Mrs. Francis Burrall Hoffman, who returned some weeks since from Europe—they spent a year in going around the world—are at their cottage at Southampton, L. I., for a short time.

Miss Emily Sloane sails from Europe today for New York on the Kaiserin Auguste Victoria. She will go from here to the Virginia Hot Springs to join her father, Henry T. Sloane.

Mrs. Henry Siegel and her daughter, Miss Dorothy Wilde, who spent the early Autumn with the Prince and Princess Dentice di Frasso (Miss Georgine Wilde) at their Austrian estate, will arrive here in December.

JURY AGAINST 'RUZZIELAMB.'

Finds That Miss Smith Had Not Promised to Wed the Chorus Man.

The jury in the fifty-thousand-dollar breach of promise suit of Russell Gardner Griswold, the eighteen-dollar-a-week chorus man, against Helen Woodruff Smith, daughter of the late Commodore James D. Smith of Stamford, Conn., brought in a verdict yesterday against him.

The jurymen reached an agreement on Wednesday evening after the court had adjourned for the day. They took their seats in the jury box as usual when court reopened yesterday morning, and handed up to Justice Brown a sealed verdict which stated that "a verdict had been found for the defendant."

Justice Brown, in dictating the verdict to the court Clerk, instructed him to add "no cause for action" to the official record.

Justice Brown denied the usual motion for a new trial by Griswold's lawyer, who said later that he had not yet decided to make an appeal.

According to the jurors, as they left the court, eight ballots were taken before the verdict was reached. On the first seven of the jurymen were against Griswold and five thought that Miss Smith deserved some punishment for having encouraged the young man for nine years before dropping him.

"None of us had much sympathy for either Griswold or Miss Smith," said one of the five on leaving court. "I personally felt that this young man, like any other of 18 years, had been taken in tow by a wealthy and attractive woman, much older than he and certainly old enough to know what she was doing. It seemed to me that, although no formal engagement agreement was shown, it was very likely, in view of their relations, that Miss Smith had made one. When the others showed me that nowhere in the letters was marriage mentioned, however, I was won over."

Four of the five Griswold sympathizers were won over in this way, until the seventh ballot, when one man stood alone for giving Griswold something. On the eighth he joined the others.

All the jurors who were against Griswold from the start said that they had not been in any way influenced by the sentimental fact of the man having brought suit against the woman.

"We all felt that there was no difference between a woman's position and a man's in the breaking of an engagement," said one of them. "We would have given Griswold a verdict willingly had we been convinced that the woman ever really promised to marry him. But in all Miss Smith's letters there was not a single intimation that she meant to marry him, and we felt that if there had been a promise of marriage it would surely have crept into so voluminous a correspondence."

Griswold and Miss Smith were in court when the verdict was rendered.

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 19.—Russell Gardner Griswold, who until two days ago was a member of the chorus of "The Hen Pecks," playing at the Lyric Theatre, was missing from the production to-night. It had been intimated to him, in no uncertain terms, that by reason of his connection with the breach of promise suit in which he was more or less prominent, his presence in the company was no longer desired.

It must be confessed that the show went along quite as well without him. He was a chorus man, in the very last row, but in spite of this obscure position was somewhat conspicuous last week because he was the only member of the singing and dancing aggregation who wore glasses.

DROP SUIT AGAINST MAYOR.

United Booking Office's Action, Discontinued by Court, Is Approved.

Judge Lacombe assented yesterday to the discontinuance of the suit brought by the United Booking Office of America against Mayor Gaynor and the Bureau of Licenses without costs to either party. The palintiffs were asking for an injunction against the enforcement of State employment agency law passed in 1910, which requires all theatrical agencies to file statements of their contracts and fees.

Judge Lacombe in refusing last April the application for an injunction said that when the actors and vaudeville performers discovered that they could not secure the services of the complainant except by furnishing the information which the law not unreasonably asked they would be probably willing to do so, and he did not believe that there would be more than a temporary shrinkage in the business of the agency, and even that would be problematical.

The United Boooking Office has other troubles in that it is being sued as a trust in the State Supreme Court by Andy Amain and Francis Hartley, a vaudeville team, who allege that it blacklisted them. They are asking $30,000 damages on the ground that the Booking Office controls 90 per cent. of the vaudeville acts in this country and Canada and blacklists all performers who work for its competitors. Henry W. Taft represents the United Booking Office.

Barrymore and Wise in "Uncle Sam."

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., Oct. 19.—John Barrymore and Thomas A. Wise made their appearance here to-night as co-stars in "Uncle Sam," a new farcical comedy by Ann Caldwell and James O'Dea. As a whole, the play is funny, and was well received.

THEATRICAL NOTES.

Eva Tanguay, who has temporarily taken Norah Bayes's place in "Little Miss Fix It," has been added to Werba & Luescher's list of stars.

Charles Klein's newest play, "The Outsiders," will receive its initial production in Boston by the company now appearing in "The Gamblers," which includes Jane Cowl, Edith Jennings, Orme Caldara, Charles Stevenson, De Witt C. Jennings, George Backus, Geoffrey Stein, Frederick N. Strong and others. It will be given a trial performance of one week, and if this proves satisfactory, a company will be organized to bring it to New York.

The Four Mortons have been engaged to star by Frazee & Lederer. They are making their last vaudeville appearance for the time being at the Colonial this week.

Douglas Fairbanks will go into vaudeville for a time, and will make his first appearance at the Alhambra, Nov. 20. He will appear for five weeks in the Percy Williams Theatres in a playlet written for him.

MISS VERA ELIOTT TO BECOME A BRIDE

MISS CHAPIN TO MARRY

Sir Arthur and Lady Eliott announce the engagement of their daughter, Miss Vera Eliott, to Edward Boies Cowles, a son of Mr. and Mrs. David S. Cowles (Miss Matilda Parsons) of Long Meadow, Rye, N. Y.

Mr. Cowles was graduated from Yale in the class of 1910, and has a sister, Miss Elsie P Cowles, and two younger brothers, David S. Cowles, Jr., and William H. P. Cowles.

The Eliotts have a country estate, Poningoe, at Rye, and also have estates in England. Sir Arthur Eliott, who succeeded to the English title about two and a half years ago, has lived for many years in this country, and both he and his only son, Gilbert B. Eliott, have business interests here, the latter being a stock broker. Lady Eliott is a member of an old Boston family, and with her daughters has spent much time in England.

Lady Eliott and her two daughters, the Misses Vera and Beatrice Eliott, sailed in the late Spring for England, where Sir Arthur joined them later, and they are now occupying the Portman Square (London) residence, and will probably not come over for several months.

No date has been mentioned for the wedding.

ARNOLDS TO TOUR ABROAD.

L. H. Arnold, Jr., Who Wed Mrs. Moore, Was Divorced by First Wife.

Mr. and Mrs. Lemuel Hastings Arnold, Jr., who were married on Wednesday at the country home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. William C. Fargo, at Seabright, N. J., will sail for Europe next week to spend their honeymoon in the south of France. Later they will join Mr. Arnold's mother, who has lived in Rome, Italy, for many years.

Mrs. Arnold is the widow of the son of J. Hobart Moore of Chicago, President of the Rock Island Railroad. Her husband died two years ago, and since that time she has spent most of her time at Santa Barbara and at her father's country estate at Seabright. She is a noted equestrienne. The Fargo town home is at 56 Park Avenue.

The young couple have been engaged since last Summer without their friends knowing it and only a few of their intiamte friends knew that the marriage was to take place on Wednesday. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. H. Ridgly Robinson of Red Bank, N. J., in the presence of the bride's immediate family.

Mr. Arnold's first wife was Mrs. Marie Hoisington Holmes, a widow of Brooklyn. They were married about five years when Mrs. Arnold went to Reno, Nev. It was denied then that she was getting a divorce. Later Samuel Willetts of Roslyn, L. I., a bachelor, surprised his friends by announcing his marriage to the former Mrs. Arnold. Mr. Willetts's father died a short time ago, leaving a $1,000,000 estate.

Upon their return from Europe Mr. and Mrs. Arnold, Jr., will reside at Garden City, L. I.

MISS CHAPIN TO WED PRINCE.

The marriage of Miss Marguerite Gibert Chapin to Roffredo Caetani, Prince of Bassiana, the second son of the Duke of Sermoneta of Italy, will take place on Oct. 30 in London.

Miss Chapin, who made her début six years ago, is a daughter of the late Lindley Hoffman Chapin by his first wife, who was a Miss Gibert, a daughter of the late Frederick Gibert, from whom Miss Chapin inherited a fortune in her own right.

Shortly after becoming of age Miss Chapin, with a companion and chaperone, went abroad, making her headquarters in Paris, and, being musical and artistic in her tastes, she found that city especially desirable as a home. She came over here occasionally on visits, accompanied by her companion, but never spent more than two or three months in a year in this country.

Her stepmother, Mrs. Lindley Hoffman Chapin, was formerly Miss Cornelia Van Aucken, and Miss Chapin has two half-sisters, the Misses Katherine and Cornelia Van Aucken Chapin, the latter of whom is to make her début this Winter, and a half-brother, Lindley Hoffman Chapin, Jr.

Duxbury-Watson Wedding To-day.

The marriage of Frederick Husted Duxbury to Miss Jennie Virginia Watson, daughter of the Horse Show exhibition George Watson of this city, takes place this afternoon at Mr. Watson's country place at Gladstone, N. J.

The ceremony will be performed by the Rev. Dr. George Hugh Smyth of the Central Presbyterian Church of New York. Dr. Paul Coats Duxbury will be best man. Miss Rosie Watson, a sister of the bride, will be maid of honor. The bridesmaids are to be the Misses Frances Howley and Madeline Moore, and the ushers William Watson and Charles J. Barrie.

The Watsons are an old Scotch family from Inverness, while the Duxburys are of old New England stock, dating back to the days of Myles Standish.

After the bridal trip the couple will reside at West Nutley, N. J., in a house Mr. Duxbury has had built for his bride.

Miss Lucilla Wylie to Wed Eskil Berg.

The engagement is announced of Miss Lucilla Damon Wylie, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. W. Gill Wylie of 28 West Fortieth Street, to Eskil Berg of Schenectady, N. Y. The marriage will take place in this city at the end of next month.

ELKIN—DAVENPORT.

Announcement is made by Mr. and Mrs Charles Elkin of 315 West 106th Street of the engagement of their daughter, Miss Agnes Mary Elkin, to Allen Sturges Davenport of Yonkers, N. Y. Mr. Davenport is a graduate of Yale, class '09. No date has been set for the wedding.

Arthur J. O'Keeffe to Lecture.

Arthur J. O'Keeffe, Commissioner of Bridges, will give a lecture next Tuesday at the clubhouse of the Dramatic and Literary Society of the Church of the Holy Innocents, 1,710 Beverly Road, Flatbush. His subject will be "The Life of a Public Official."

Miss Cady's Recital at Fairholme.

Fairholme, the Morristown home of Mrs. Julius Catlin, will be opened Wednesday morning for a recital by Miss Harriette Cady, assisted by M. Georges Vigneti, violinist, a brother of the Marchioness Ito.

Harold Bauer, Pianist, Arrives To-day.

Harold Bauer, the pianist, will arrive to-day on the White Star liner Celtic. Mr. Bauer will make a tour of the country, going as far West as the Pacific Coast. He will be heard here with the New York Symphony Society on Oct. 27 and 29. He will appear also with the New York Philharmonic on Nov. 30 and Dec. 1.

COURT DECIDES FOR PROCTOR

Awards Manager Lease of Fifth Avenue Theatre in Keith Suit.

Justice George S. Bird of the Maine Supreme Court handed down in Portland yesterday his decision in the Keith-Proctor suit over the lease of the Fifth Avenue Theatre in New York City, awarding the property without qualification to F. F. Proctor for the balance of the term of five years, denying every contention made by the lawyers for Mr. Keith. Mr. Keith announced that he would immediately appeal the case to the full bench of the court.

The Fifth Avenue Theatre is the only playhouse concerned in the decision, as all other theatres owned or controlled by the company were disposed of under an agreement at the time of the final hearing. The amusement company was dissolved by agreement in July.

R. K. MUNKITTRICK DEAD.

Humorist and Author Was Editor of Judge for Five Years.

Richard Kendall Munkittrick, the writer of humorous verses and maker of jokes and one-time editor of Judge, died, at the age of 59 years, at his home, in Stamford, Conn., on Tuesday. He had done little writing in recent years.

Mr. Munkittrick was born in Manchester, England on March 5, 1853, the son of Richard and Agusta (Thornburg) Munkittrick. He lived in this country, however, practically all of his life. He married Jeannette Agnes Turneron on July 5, 1883. He was on the staff of Puck from 1881 to 1889, and later was the editor of Judge for five years. He was the author of many books, among them "Farming," 1891; "The Moon Prince and Other Nabobs," 1893; "New Jersey Arabian Night," 1893; "The Acrobatic Muse," 1896, and "The Slambangaree," 1898. He had a Summer home in Summit, N. J., and was a frequent contributor, after retiring from active life, in the leading periodicals, both in prose and verse.

Once, when asked for a short biography, Mr. Munkittrick said among other things: "Descended from a race of clergymen and drunkards, I am a natural born lotus eater. Would rather loaf a week than work an hour. Left school at 15 and went into the dry goods business. Remained five years, and knew less of the mysteries of business than when I started. Then a position was secured for me on an East River steamboat. I once received a load of bran in a thundershower, and I showed my sympathy for the family of Gen. Rawlins by shipping his body to Connecticut for 50 cents—putting him through at the rate charged for a barrel of apples. Then I quit. Have been hammering a living out of writing since '76."

Miss Jennie Olin, Missionary, Dead.

BOSTON, Oct. 19.—News of the death of Miss Jennie Olin of the missionaries to Micronesia of the American Board of Commissioners for Foreign Missions, was received to-day at the headquarters of the board in this city. Miss Olin died on Sept. 2 in a hospital in Sydney, N. S. W., after having undergone treatment there since July. Miss Olin, who was born in Sweden, came to the United States when she was 14 years of age, and was graduated from Mount Holyoke College. In July, 1897, she sailed from San Francisco for her life work among the islands of the mid-Pacific. With her associate, Miss Hoppin, she had since lived on the Island of Kusaie, in the Caroline group, and conducted a training school for girls.

Rahway's Old Chief of Police Dead.

RAHWAY, N. J., Oct. 19.—George Wright, who for the last thirty years had been Chief of Police of this city, died at his home here to-day at the age of 73 years. Although Mr. Wright had been ill for about a year, his death was entirely unexpected. Yesterday he seemed to be better and his family had hopes that he would recover. Mr. Wright suffered from kidney trouble and pneumonia.

Obituary Notes.

MARY A. CRANE, who a few years ago was a prominent Universalist in this city, died yesterday at the Chapin Home in Jamaica, L. I., at the age of 90 years. Mrs. Crane, who had been at the home for eight years, fell about a week ago and fractured her hip, and this is said to have hastened her death.

Mrs. ANNE GRACE WESTALL, who was 95 years old, died on Wednesday at her home, 55 Halsey Street, Brooklyn. She was the widow of Benjamin D. Westall, who was for many years in the trucking business in Brooklyn. Mrs. Westall was born in Dublin, Ireland, where her grandfather was the Danish Consul. She is survived by a son and three daughters.

Mrs. RALPH MEAD HYDE of 41 East Seventy-fourth Street died there on Wednesday night. She was 70 years old. Before her marriage she was Mary Seaman Truslow. She leaves her husband, one son, and three daughters.

MARSHALL NEY KING, one of the first and best known of professional baseball players, died at his home in Troy yesterday at the age of 63 years. He was long famous as a hitter and outfielder in the early days of baseball clubs, and star left fielder of the Haymakers of Lansingburg in 1871. He was known as "Marsh" King to baseball fans in the infancy of the National sport. He was with the Haymakers when the first professional organization was formed under the name of the National Association of Professional Baseball Players, on March 4, 1871.

MONROE H. KULP, familiarly known as "Farmer" Kulp, who served in the Fifty-fourth and Fifty-fifth Congresses, died in Shamokin, Penn., yesterday. He was one of the Republican leaders of the State at one time and a stanch follower of the late Senator Quay. Mr. Kulp was 53 years old.

JOHN BURRELL, eldest brother of the Rev. Dr. David J. Burrell, pastor of the Marble Collegiate Reformed Church, and of the Rev. Dr. Joseph D. Burrell, pastor of the Classon Avenue Presbyterian Church in Brooklyn, is dead at the age of 83 years at his home in Freeport, Ill. For the last fifty years Mr. Burrell had been active in the affairs of the Presbyterian Church.

BEN BENJAMIN, for twenty years sporting editor of The San Francisco Chronicle, is dead in Oakland, Cal., after a long illness. He was 50 years old. Mr. Benjamin was a native of Australia.

ALFRED GIRAUDET, well-known as a teacher of operatic singing and acting, died at his home in Claremont Avenue on Wednesday of dropsy of the heart. His death was quite sudden, he having conducted his classes as usual at the Institute of Musical Art on Monday. M. Giraudet was formerly one of the professors at the Paris Conservatoire, and was for the last two years a member of the Faculty of the Institute of Musical Art. For many years he was one of the principal bassos of the Paris Opera and also of the Opera Comique. He was one of the first singers to interpret Mephistopheles in Gounod's "Faust." He had taught most of the French operatic artists of the last fifteen years. M. Giraudet was 75 years old.

ALFRED BINET, Professor of Psychology in the University of Paris, died in Paris yesterday.

The Rev. JAMES M. MESSMORE, an aged Methodist missionary, died at Pauri, North India, on Monday. A few months ago Dr. and Mrs. Messmore completed fifty years of mission work in India, and missionaries and native Christians joined in presenting them a testimonial. Dr. Messmore's retirement was to take effect in a few weeks. Dr. Messmore, who first sailed from America for India in 1860, had not been here on furlough since 1881. He was born in Canada and studied at the Garrett Biblical Institute at Evanston, Ill., before going to the mission field.

ANDREW H. HOAG, manufacturer of gas and electric fixtures in New York, is dead at his home in South Orange, N. J. He was 59 years old and a native of Ireland.

Mrs. ANNA K. OESTERLE, who settled in Williamsburg seventy years ago, died yesterday in her ninety-second year at her home, 566 Metropolitan Avenue.

CHRISTIAN SCHWARZ, 65 years old, who had been a tailor in Orange, N. J., for the last twenty-five years, is dead there from heart disease.

YESTERDAY'S WILLS.

MARY WILKENS, also known as Gesche Marie Wilkens, died Sept. 11, at Spring Lake, N. J.; left more than $5,000 realty and more than $10,000 personalty; $500 to the Lutheran Cemetery, Middle Village, N. Y., and all the rest of her estate to her sister, Caroline A. Wilkens.

AUGUST KRITZLER, died Oct. 4; left realty of unknown value and about $1,600 personalty to his wife, Johanna Kritzler.

MARTHA KINSMAN, died March 30; left $1,500 realty equally to her brothers and sisters, Albert, Anabella, James E., Annie, and Richmond W. Kinsman.

WILLIAM E. BURTON, died in March at Bardonia, Rockland County; left less than $700 personalty, $500, and 249 shares of Burtapp Company stock to his wife, Marie A. Burton; $125 and sixty shares of the same stock to his mother, Lida E. Palmer, and small bequests of personal articles to H. D. Appleby, Russell Sturgis, Mrs. Appleby, and Edith McHenry.

LAWRENCE NEWPORT, died Aug. 10; left $2,500 personalty to his wife, Susan G. Newport.

CORNELIUS H. VAN NESS, died June 25; left $1,100 personalty to the children of Jerome Campbell. The petition accompanying the will indicates that there will be nothing for his wife, Alice Wood Van Ness, whom he named as his residuary legatee, after paying off the Campbell children, to whom the will gave $5,000, but which the estate is insufficient to pay.

HENRIETTA C. CLEARMAN left her whole estate to her daughter Isadora for life, to be divided on the daughter's death equally among two sons of the testatrix, George H. and Herbert D. Clearman, or their heirs.

WANTS PARK SITES FOR FIRE ALARMS

STOVER NOT IN FAVOR OF IT

Higgins in the Bronx Also Thinks the Plan to Invade the Parks a Doubtful Policy.

The proposal to erect a fire alarm station in Crotona Park, near the Southern Boulevard, against which residents of the Bronx are making a vigorous protest, is a part of a plan, fathered by Fire Commissioner Johnson, to obtain sites for the central stations of the electrical fire alarm system not only in Crotona, but in Central and Prospect Parks as well.

His reason for demanding tracts of the park land of the city is that he considers it imperative that the alarm stations should be so placed as to be in no danger themselves from fire, and that they should also be in central positions. To acquire in the thickly populated districts of each borough tracts large enough to eliminate the fire danger altogether would be costly.

When the matter was mentioned last night to Park Commissioner Stover he said that the proposal was Commissioner Johnson's, not his.

"I am not convinced," he said, "of the necessity of giving up any part of Central Park to such a purpose. It does not seem to me so essential to have a central position for the station, when the Western Union, the Postal Telegraph, and the telephone company have managed for so many years to get along with their head offices downtown.

"Then why must we go to Central Park to get away from the fire danger? Would not a location on the banks of one of the rivers be just as safe in this respect? What occurred to me to-day as I was passing the approach to the Queensboro Bridge was that in no other place on the island could one find a site less exposed to fire risks or less surrounded by inflammable material.

"At the same time I have never wished to look at park questions without proper consideration of the needs of other departments. Some months ago, while Mr. Parsons was still landscape architect, the proposal of the Fire Department was put up to us, and we discussed the question as to a site in Central Park.

It occurred to us that over the tranverse road at Seventy-ninth Street on the south side, opposite Belvidere Tower, it might be possible to blast out the solid rock and provide a foundation for an alarm station. The rock is very thick there, and the road has been tunnelled through it. Both Mr. Parsons and I believed that it would be possible to build there a low building for an alarm station, which would be hidden from anywhere but the transverse road.

"However, the engineers of the Fire Department did not like the idea. They wanted to place the station on the north side of the ball field at Sixty-fifth Street, where there are now some old buildings dating back to the beginning of the Park. To this, however, I would not consent."

It is certain that the opposition in the Bronx will be active, and every assault on Central Park has always met with a storm of protest. Commissioner Higgins of the Bronx said last night:

"Of course, I am always extremely loth to hear of any scheme for the taking of any portion of the park property. I should certainly never consent to anything of the sort if I found that the people of my borough were against it."

The Commissioner added that the in defunct Gaynor Charter there appeared a mandatory clause directing the Park Commissioners to give up such portions of the parks as the Fire Department might need. This, he said, he had stricken out. At the present time they have the power of assigning for temporary purposes portions of the Park to the Fire Department.

NOT SURE HE'S DIVORCED.

Wife Got Decree in Norway and Married Again—Now Badours Sues.

Acting in his private capacity as a practicing lawyer, Attorney General Carmody argued a motion before Supreme Court Justice Aspinall in Brooklyn yesterday in which he sought to have established the status of Mrs. Adele Badours Jensen, who was married in Connecticut to A. B. Jensen, a civil engineer, after she had been divorced in Norway from Thomas Badours, whom she married in 1902 in this city.

Badours is doubtful, it seems, whether the divorce granted to his wife in Norway frees him from obligations to her under the laws of New York State, and he brought suit to ascertain whether or not he was free to marry again.

Attorney General Carmody pointed out that Mrs. Badours had left her husband a year after marrying him in this State in 1902 and had sued for divorce in her native country, Norway, after residing there for three years, charging abandonment, and presenting a letter from her husband stating that he was agreeable to the proceeding. The divorce was granted under a Norwegian law which provides that in case the husband consents to an action, residence of three years in the country is sufficient to make a divorce for abandonment legal. After obtaining her divorce Mrs. Badours came to this country in July of this year. She married at Stamford, Conn., a man whom she met on the steamship coming over and whom she now regards as her husband, the ceremony having been performed after the Connecticut authorities had accepted the Norwegian divorce decree as valid. Mr. Carmody argued in the woman's behalf that for a New York court to proceed with the divorce action would be to jeapordize his client's status as a Connecticut wife. He urged that it was obviously improper for Badours to name Jensen, the woman's present husband, in his suit, as he had done, and held that unless each State fulfills its constitutional obligations to uphold and recognize the legal enactions of all other States the result will be general chaos. He held that the fact that the State of Connecticut had accepted the Norwegian divorce decree removed the case from the jurisdiction of any New York court whatever. Justice Aspinall reserved decision.

URGES RANK OF VICE ADMIRAL

Secretary Meyer Points Out Necessity in Chinese Waters.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 19.—The humiliating position in which an American naval commander can be placed in a case involving international joint action by lack of sufficient rank has been emphasized in the view of the Navy Department by the present situation of the American naval commander in China.

As a result it is confidently expected that Secretary Meyer will make a strong appeal to Congress to act upon the recommendation he has already made for the creation of the rank of Vice Admiral.

If Congress sees fit to approve this recommendation it may be that when Reginald F. Nicholson hoists his flag over the Asiatic fleet early next year he will do so with the rank of Vice Admiral, and thus be placed in a position of at least equality with the commanders of the Japanese, British, and German fleets in Chinese waters.

Mrs. Fiske in "The New Marriage."

FOOTBALL EYES ON YALE AND WEST POINT

Although the football season has about reached the half-way mark, the real tests for the big college elevens are yet to begin. To-morrow will mark the beginning of that one month of real football wherein the important battles of the year will be fought, the class of the various elevens fully established and finally the championship of 1911 decided. Up to the present time the games of the big college elevens have been nothing more than practice games, designed to show the weak spots of the larger teams, give the men experience which cannot be obtained in scrub games and to gradually mold the eleven to its highest possible development.

The game that stands out above all others on the football calendar to-morrow is the Yale-West Point battle at West Point, but there are a few other games which mean just as much to other prominent elevens. The Princeton team is scheduled to clash with the Navy eleven at Annapolis and the affair is causing far more worry in the Jungle than in the home of the middies. Another important game is scheduled for Franklin Field, Philadelphia, between those noted gridiron rivals of years—Pennsylvania and Brown. Harvard, although anticipating a victory, expects no easy time against Amherst, and Dartmouth views the coming of the Williams eleven with feelings that are anything but confident. Important games in this section are Swarthmore vs. Stevens at Hoboken; New York University vs. Rhode Island State, at Ohio Field; Rutgers vs. Union, at New Brunswick, and Lafayette vs. Syracuse, at Syracuse.

The elimination of Harvard from the Army schedule makes the Yale game stand far above any other contest played at West Point during the 1911 season. It ranks next in prominence to the annual battle with the Navy and so far ahead of all other games played on the reservation that the home season at West Point amounts to nothing more after to-morrow than a series of practice games before the contest with the Navy. The games against Lehigh, Georgetown, Bucknell, and Colgate, which follow the battle against the Bulldog to-morrow, excite little interest in the football world.

That this year's clash between the Army mule and the Bulldog has not lost any of the interest which usually attaches to a Yale-West Point struggle is evident from the early demand for tickets. Up to yesterday morning more than 6,000 tickets had been applied for by Yale men, more than twice the number applied for last year. Except for giving the usual two tickets to seniors, the undergraduates had to be cut down to one ticket apiece and under these conditions not one graduate in three can be supplied.

The present outlook justifies the prediction that the game will be one of the best fought of the many games played by Yale and West Point elevens. Last year the Army gave the Elis the surprise of their life by winning out, 9 to 3, and, with practically the same eleven on hand, they hope to repeat the performance to-morrow. It is not expected, however, that the Army can repeat on this year's Yale eleven. Capt. Howe's team has been making steady progress since the season opened and gives promise of being one of the strongest contenders for championship honors.

From tackle to tackle Yale has one of the best lines in the East, but the ends are not up to the Yale standard. Ketcham, who is expected to hold down the pivotal position to-morrow, looks like the most promising centre of any of the big teams. McDevitt, the veteran right guard, will be out of the line-up, but the Elis have a fine substitute in Parker, who will team up with Childs, the hammer thrower. Paul and Scully, the veteran tackles, are going as well as ever with the squad. Pete Francis, who has heretofore played at guard and tackle, has been shifted to end during the week and will be given a real test to-morrow. Avery may play the other end, but this is somewhat doubtful. Capt. Howe will probably play the full game at quarter back unless he is injured. Freeman and Spalding at the half back positions and Anderson at full back complete the back field.

West Point will produce a veteran line against the Elis—almost the same line that crushed the Yale eleven last Fall. Capt. Wier, the star centre, is the only cadet who has since been graduated, but Walmesley of last year's team and Siebert are strong successors. Arnold and Houston at the guard positions, Littlejohn and Devore at tackle and Cook, Hoge, and Gillespie on the ends are seasoned veterans. Man for man, the Army has as strong a line as Yale, but the Elis have the benefit of more thorough training under a larger and more competent staff. In the back field the comparison is just as strong in the Army's favor as regards natural material. There is no one of such all-around football ability and commanding personality as Howe, but Hyatt, Milburn, Browne, and Dean form a mighty, formidable combination. Keyes, the drop kicker, is a good reason why Yale will have to go strongly all the way to win.

Princeton will be put to a severe test in the game against the middies at Annapolis. In the games played to date the Navy line has shown everything that could be desired as regards strength and speed, and the Princeton line has been giving the coaches all kinds of trouble. The entire team has been the object of so many shifts that it is in a rather unsettled state and not likely to show up to the form expected at this time of the season. Capt. Dalton and Brown, two of the Navy stars, have been out of the game all week, but both are expected to take part in to-morrow's game.

Brown's speedy eleven, although decidedly shy on veteran material, looks like one of the best teams to be turned out at the Providence University in years. Coach Robinson and Capt. Sprackling have developed a team that ranks as the season's sensation to date, as all but two of the men now playing regular positions are sophomores and graduates of last year's freshmen team. This combination has been built around the brilliant Sprackling and is going along at a clip of which veterans might be proud. The teamwork of the Brown eleven has featured all its games, and it has shown up equally strong on both attack and defense. The Brunonians have scored 127 points this year in four games and have not yet been scored upon. Pennsylvania appears to be a one-man team, capable of doing wonders while Capt. Mercer is in the game, but decidedly weak when he is out of it. The Red and Blue eleven has also shown weakness against teams employing the forward pass, and Brown is likely to cause considerable trouble if this defect is not remedied. Pennsylvania has good reason to view the approach of the Brunonians with fear and trembling.

At Harvard no great concern is felt regarding the outcome of the game with Amherst. The coaches expect the Amherst team will afford enough opposition to make the Crimson eleven hustle, and that is all. Last year Harvard won, 17 to 0, and a larger score is expected this year. The trick plays now being taught by Coach Percy Haughton will not be tried out until the games with Brown and Princeton on the following Saturdays. These two games and the clashes with Carlisle, Dartmouth, and Yale, which follow in the order named, make the Amherst game appear as a preliminary work-out.

Dartmouth supporters hardly anticipate such a walk-over against Williams to-morrow as the big Green team had last year, the figures at the finish being 39 to 0. The New Hampshire eleven has not come along at the form expected and will have to show decided improvement to cut any large figure in the big game with Harvard a week before the Crimson clashes with the Blue.

At all these games coaches from other colleges will be on hand to pick up pointers for future use.

YALE DRILLS IN MUD.

Slashing Game with Freshmen Ends in 'Varsity Victory, 5 to 3.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Oct. 19.—Eagerness to take a final scrimmage practice before the West Point game on Saturday caused the Yale coaches to-day to order out the regulars in the rain and drill them over a field that was deep with mud.

A slashing game with the freshmen was played and the 'Varsity were scored upon with a pretty field goal by Don Markle, the former Hill School player. The regulars scored a single touchdown at the beginning of practice, taking the ball from the kick-off and rushing it back without losing the oval until Philbin, who was sent into the play for three minutes, went over the line for the score.

Two pretty end runs by Spalding featured the march down the field and the thirty minutes' grueling play closed with the 'Varsity winners, 5 to 3. After the regulars scored their touchdown the freshmen were given the ball in midfield and kept the play on the regulars' ground, three times reaching the twenty-yard line. In the first case a neat forward pass tossed by Castle to Loftus, brought the ball within striking distance, but Martin's drop kick went to one side.

In the next instance Church of the 'Varsity nabbed a freshman's forward pass. By the time the freshmen were finding the 'Varsity line easy most of the first string players had been retired.

Reinforcements in the shape of brand new braces arrived to-day and the coaches decided to try them by sending players wearing them into the game. It had not been planned to use them until next week. Philbin was fitted to braces by making a trip to Boston. He stood his few plunges without reopening his old injury and the coaches now talk of starting him, Ketchem and Spalding on Saturday. McDevitt did not play to-day, but Head Coach Field said to-night that he may be sent against the Army, as his knee was much improved to-day. He was in uniform and worked in the signal drill. Parker, who has been used in his stead has proved weak in defensive play and the freshmen made several gains through him. The Harvard line split in which Wendell has been starred, was the play which the fifteen players kept aiming at the 'Varsity to-day. Coaches to-day included Ray Townsend, George Adee, Paul Veeder, Ted Lilley, and Howard Jones.

The team will visit Yale Field for signal work to-morrow and leave early in the evening for New York City, going up the Hudson early Saturday morning.

Capt. Howe was again absent from Yale Field to-day. Coach Field said to-night that Howe would prove that he was in splendid condition and that he was simply being rested for the Army battle. Howe has not been in scrimmage since last Saturday.

WEST POINT AWAITS YALE.

Special to The New York Times.

WEST POINT, N. Y., Oct. 19.—The Army football team was driven through a hard scrimmage to-day, and though the condition of the infield invited sprains and twisted joints, the coaches took a chance and sent the team that in all probability will play Yale through a severe practice. Luckily, there were no injuries, and Trainer Tuthill can now be assured of having his men in shape for the contest Saturday.

Littlejohn still limps a little, but his leg does not bother him enough to prevent his playing the usual star game at tackle. Cook was out in uniform, but is still kept on the side lines, and Hoge went in at right end. Hoge is playing a great game at end and smashed through the scrubs' interference and got the runner several times to-day.

The 'Varsity players were unable to score, but they gained much more ground than the scrubs, who did not get near enough to even try for a goal from the field. During the game Dean made two fair catches and tried for goals from the forty-yard line. He failed in both instances, but, considering the condition of the ball, his attempts were excellent, both just missing by a narrow margin. He also tried twice with Hyatt holding the ball to kick a placement goal from scrimmage from the thirty-five-yard mark. Devore, the 200-pound tackle, made the star run of the day, when he carried the ball back for thirty-five yards. Millburn, MacDonald, and Barton were used as substitutes for Benedict, Brown, and Dean after the first string men were sent in. Milburn and MacDonald are light, but are fleet and quick to find an opening and get down through a broken field and keep their feet.

Among the many ways of transportation to the scene of the West Point-Yale football game to-morrow, one which will find many devotees will probably be that by automobile, and, as at this season the country through which the motorist must tour is at its best, it is conceded that those who make the trip by motor car will be amply rewarded.

Below is appended a route mapped out by the Bureau of Tours of the Automobile Club of America, through which the motorist is confronted with places of historic interest, with the roads in the main being particularly good. The distance is 54.4 miles, and the route as follows:

A feature of the big football games at West Point is the trip in going and returning on the Day Line steamer Hendrick Hudson. In the past four years she has carried thousands of enthusiasts, and she will run again to-morrow as a football special to the Yale-West Point game, leaving Desbrosses Street at 10:20 A. M., West Forty-second Street 10:40 A. M., and West 129th Street 11 A. M. She will arrive at West Point in time to see the full-dress inspection, and will leave on the return directly after the game, making an express run to New York. Last year she covered the return trip to 129th Street in two hours.

By way of the West Shore Railroad the last boat for the special train will leave Desbrosses Street at 12 M., and West Forty-second Street at 12:15 P. M., arriving at West Point at 1:50 P. M., and leaving immediately after the game.

Regular New York Central trains will carry football passengers to Garrison Station, where the ferryboat may be taken across the Hudson to West Point.

STIMSON FULL OF PROMISE.

Special to The New York Times.

ITHACA, N. Y., Oct. 19.—Although the Cornell coaches gave up their intention of holding a regular scrimmage this afternoon, because the men have been worked very hard all week, two 'Varsity teams ran through signal drills for an hour, while the scrubs had a long drawn out drill with the tackling dummy. Again to-day the first string backs were placed behind the scrubs, while the second string backs were with the blues. The difference in the speed of these two back fields is believed to be partly responsible for the showing of the blues this week.

Coach Van Orman spent the afternoon polishing up Stimson, who seems to have made good as an end. Stimson has 175 pounds of good muscle to use, being one of the hardest tacklers on the team. He rowed in the junior crew for a couple of years, and constant training has hardened him so that he makes a good man for right end, one of the weak points on the team so far. With Stimson as the heavy end and Fritz as his lighter alternate, Cornell will be well cared for in this position.

O'Rourke and Munns were back in the 'Varsity line-up at guard. Munns had been relegated to the blue team for several days, and Delano, one of last year's men, had been given what may be the last chance to make the place. Munns proved superior, however, and it now looks as if both Hale and Delano, regular guards last Fall, would only be substitutes this year.

Eddie Butler and Underhill have apparently come back into shape, and will probably be in the line-up on Saturday, but Capt. Bill Munk, who hobbled out on the field this afternoon, has no chance. Munk donned the togs, but found in a very short time that his leg would not stand the work, and by Coach Reed's orders he is to go easy until after the Pittsburgh game on Oct. 29. The general showing of the 'Varsity team to-day was better than yesterday, and it looks as if they may show steady improvement.

Dalton and Brown Back in Game.

Special to The New York Times.

ANNAPOLIS, Md., Oct. 19.—With Dalton and Brown back in the game after an absence since Saturday, the Navy football regulars did better work against the scrubs, though the latter were again reinforced by Wheaton and Ingram of the coaching staff. Except for a little while at the start the scrubs were given the ball, and the forward pass plays of Wheaton and Ingram were varied by the line shift which Princeton is expected to use on Saturday. Though substantial gains were made on both plays, the scrubs did not succeed in getting the ball across the regulars' goal line, and toward the end of the practice the big team men showed much more skill in diagnosing and meeting the plays. Davis and Elmore were the only regulars not in practice. Overesch, a husky plebe, took Hamilton's place at left end early in the practice, while Weems and Ingram alternated at centre.

Brown Team on Ohio Field.

The management of the New York University football team has tendered an invitation to the Brown University squad to use Ohio Field this afternoon for its final work-out before the Pennsylvania game at Philadelphia to-morrow. Capt. Sprackling's men have accepted and are very grateful for the opportunity to loosen up their muscles and prevent stiffness before the big game.

Long, hard practice, with a fifty-minute scrimmage, was the order of the day for the New York University squad yesterday, and darkness had settled over the field before a halt was called. All the regulars were in the line-up, except Henneberger, who watched the play from the side lines with a badly injured hand.

CAPT. HART JOINS PRINCETON TEAM

Passes Examinations, Gets Into Harness, and Plays Left Tackle.

Special to The New York Times.

PRINCETON, N. J., Oct. 19.—There was considerable satisfaction in the Princeton training camp this afternoon when Capt. Edward Hart donned his moleskins and appeared at Osborne Field for practice. His conditional examinations were over yesterday and the big Tiger Captain had little trouble with the test which had been unavoidably postponed last month. It was not necessary for Hart to pass through the "getting hard" process. He went right in at left tackle on the 'Varsity during a long drill in which the first and second string men practiced charging and blocking. On the offense Hart handled two men easily, breaking through the scrub line as though it was paper.

The 'Varsity backs did not report until late to-day, and their only work was a long signal drill on the driest end of a very muddy field. Capt. Hart is not yet on to all the signals, and McLean took his place on the 'Varsity during this part of the practice. The long scrimmage which was scheduled for to-day had to be canceled on account of the wretched condition of the field.

Pete Vaughan was at right end again to-day, with Sam White at the other wing, and they both worked hard on forward pass formations. Dutch Brown was given a lay off by Keene Fitzpatrick and Cy McCormick filled in at right guard. Parke H. Davis, a member of the Intercollegiate Rules Committee, and Bill Edwards looked on at the practice this afternoon, but took no active part in the coaching. Judging from the number of coaches who have worked here this week and the individual attention which has been given every man on the first three elevens who has any chance of getting a place in the game Saturday, Princeton anticipates a desperate struggle against the Middies.

The Tiger team leaves for Annapolis at 3:30 o'clock to-morrow afternoon, following a short signal drill at the field. They will spend Friday night in Baltimore, going to Annapolis the next morning.

Trying to Save Yale Freshmen.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Oct. 19.—Every effort is being made to save the Yale freshman football eleven, which has lost most of its players through the severe penalties inflicted on the Scientific School freshmen for rioting in the streets. The Student Council hopes to persuade the Faculty to withdraw its probation against about half the class who were not involved in last week's attempt to burn four highway bridges. Several of the leaders in the bridge burning affair have agreed to confess their part in the escapade and thus save those who were not concerned.

HARVARD RUSH LINE WEAK.

Withington Brothers Trying to Brace Up Crimson Defense.

Special to The New York Times.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Oct. 19.—Coach Haughton had his Harvard team in the stadium again to-day, although the conditions for playing football were far from good. The regulars scrimmaged against the scrubs for fifteen minutes, and then the substitutes went into the game for twice as long a period. The second team had some new plays, but the field was too slippery for them to get going. The first string men showed a lot of speed, and punched their way across the scrubs' goal line three times, Reynolds, Wendell, and Blackall working together in the backfield better than any combination Harvard has tried. Another touchdown would have been scored when Gardiner, the right tackle, intercepted a forward pass made by Blake, the scrubs' quarter back, having an open field when called back by the head coach.

Although the rush line, and particularly the left wing, has been unsatisfactory all Fall, it was was not until to-day that Percy Haughton called for outside help. The line has been in charge of the Withington brothers, both of whom have played since Haughton became head coach at Cambridge, in 1908. To-day Bertram G. Water, Captain at Cambridge eighteen years ago, and who until 1905 was the tackle coach, was on the field with Kersburg trying to decide what the forwards needed.

The impression of the old men seems to be that the forwards have been coached in less rudimentary football than they should have been, and although the season is half over, there will be a lot of work on first principles of rush line play between now and the game with Princeton on Nov. 4. Recently Leslie has been playing better at left guard than has Keays, but Kersburg has taken the latter in hand, and thinks he can make a good line man out of him. Keays is much more rangy than Leslie, but never has been aggressive. A lot of time also will be spent on Parmenter at tackle, while at centre, Storer's play, including his passing, was not good enough against Williams to keep him on the list as first string centre rush over Huntington, who will be back and in shape to play in a few days.

With so many in the field, a clothier these days must offer even more than "fit."

We do.

Fabrics—Many of our patterns are suggested by our own experts, and none of our fancy cloths are to be found elsewhere.

The 1912 COLE Toy Tonneau $1800

YOU have probably admired the 1911 Cole 4-passenger Toy Tonneau. It is admittedly one of the snappiest, sportiest, speediest looking cars of the year. The finest compliment that has been paid our 1912 Toy Tonneau is that it outlooks and outvalues its 1911 predecessor.

The 1912 Toy Tonneau is bigger than the 1911 car. It has 122-inch wheelbase and 36-inch wheels. Speed bristles from its every line. It is long, low, and rakish. The passengers sit low in the comfortable seats—the loaded car presenting minimum resistance to the wind. The Cole has great speed and hill climbing ability. In every respect he Cole Toy Tonneau is the ideal four-passenger speed car.

Cole cars have no price marks. If you didn't know the price you would stamp any one of the Cole series as a $3000 or $4000 car on sight. And after examining the mechanical construction of the Cole you will stick to your original judgment. The Toy Tonneau price is $1800.

SOUTH WELCOMES GLIDDEN TOURISTS

Good Roads in North Carolina Make Day's Ride One of Real Pleasure.

Special to The New York Times.

CHARLOTTE, N. C., Oct. 19.—The Glidden tourists put the sixth day of their run behind them when they checked in here to-night from Winston-Salem, last night's control, 135 miles north.

It was a perfect joy ride to-day compared with the last few days, and to make it more joyful the various towns along the route organized committees and stopped the run, much to the chagrin of the "tin can" drivers, who are trying to burn up the road from New York to Jacksonville.

They only thing they succeed in burning is tires. These wayside parties are in the nature of real receptions minus the clean clothes of the automobilists, who look more like hoboes than recipients of high honors. At a place named High Point in this State this morning the townspeople had a corps of waiters lined up in the main streets as the cars came through. The "darkies" were ladened with trays of sandwiches, coffee, cigars, and ice cream. One of the women drivers asked to be directed to a drug store where ice cream soda was sold. A member of the local Board of Trade overheard her request, and he dispatched one of the colored waiters with instructions to bring back as many ice cream sodas as he could carry. This is only an instance of the unusual desire to please visitors manifested all through this section.

The town-boosting idea has caught on with a vengeance. Every local committee tries to outdo the other with unique and generous stunts. A Winston-Salem tobacco firm this morning before the tour checked out presented every man in the run with a box neatly tied. In it was a meerschaum pipe, a package of tobacco, and matches, with a request to send for more when it was gone. Another firm gave the lady tourists little vanity mirrors. Another firm threw in each car cakes of soap—which commodity, by the way, is about the most used of anything on the run.

The cars are filled with souvenirs of all sorts—buttons, badges, flags, pennants, and any amount of printed matter. Committees from Elks' lodges, Y. M. C. A.'s, Chambers of Commerce meet the run at one of the other controls before theirs with invitations to visit their various headquarters while in their towns. These invitations are not mere formalities, as a visit at any of these headquarters prove. The rivalry of the towns along the route to obtain a control or place designated as an official stop is very keen. These places, which were found to be too small to provide hotel accommodations or were too near to one of the real stops, have adopted all sorts of means to have the automobiles in their midst as long as possible.

As a matter of fact, the schedule is no saunter, and when troubles occur like engine failures and punctured tires the cars have "to beat it" to catch up so as to be in the next control within the time limit of their classes. But the hospitable people around here do not think of all these things. A big automobile tour does not go through their town every day, and they want to see what's doing, the various makes of cars, how the new types differ from the old, what part of the country all these madly rushing folk come from, what they wear, and all that sort of thing, so they at least wish the cars to go by slowly if they cannot stop.

Some of the villages have banners stretched across the road, saying: "The speed limit is two miles an hour. We want to see you." These requests can't be complied with at all or every competitor would be penalized for being late at a control. But one place this morning put it more effectively. At the entrance to the town was a large banner bearing "This town has a speed ordinance, and for the Glidden tour the limit is slow." A couple of Constables were stationed in the road and very soberly pointed to the sign as the cars came along. Every tourist naturally thought it was a manifestation of hostility such as was exhibited at Harrisonburg, Va., the other day, so they slowed up. At the other end of the town was another banner: "Thank you for letting us see you. Come whenever you feel like it, and go as fast as you want."

Cars that had been stalled last night at various points along that terrible Virginia mountain highway limped into Winston-Salem just in time to check out with to-day's run. The tourists were a sorry-looking lot, for, besides the loss of sleep, there was the worry over the disabled car and no way to get help or satisfaction.

It would mean more than being a good sport to get this year's crops of Glidden tourists to go over that Virginia mountain road again, and touring automobilists from every section will avoid that section of the State. Reports of tours like the Glidden go far and wide.

The strain on the cars of the last few days began to show to-day. Those cars that have had no trouble heretofore experienced tire and engine troubles to-day. But the roads, with the exception of a few bad spots, were excellent. Coming into Charlotte from the North the roadway is a veritable speedway, and the way the machines brushed along was inspiring.

Participants in the tour have the advantage of the most graphic road directions with which an event of this sort was ever favored.

A. L. Westgard, the American Automobile Association's official pilot, is a civil engineer by profession, and a mapmaker by specialty. On the trip of the Flanders "20" pathfinder some time ago he divided the entire run into strips of about forty miles each, and made of each strip a road map showing every crossing, bridge, ford, or other landmark, including grades, road surface, and other information. The graphic nature of the strip map system makes the highway an open book, even to those who have never traveled it.

To those who accompanied Mr. Westgard on his pathfinding trip, his ability to chart the highway was a source of unending admiration. Up and down the mountains of Virginia, over rocks, and through deep, rough fords, Mr. Westgard's pencil was always busy. On the level, winding stretches which form so large a part of the highway he caught cross-roads and other landmarks often at a speed of from thirty-five to forty-five miles an hour.

But it was at Florida that Mr. Westgard's abilities were most sorely taxed. When his little car covered the stretch from Madison to Jacksonville, a large share of the highway was undergoing grading and this, combined with the fact that in many places the regular road was under water, required many detours.

From each of these Mr. Westgard would work out as nearly as possible the route which would be in the best shape by the time of the tour. Interviews were held regularly with prominent citizens interested in the improvement of the highways, and promises of a definite route were secured from each.

Florida's part of the highway is expected to be much better than at the time when the pathfinder made the trip to blaze the way. Enthusiasm over improved highways, so evident all over the South, has made its appearance along this portion of the route especially, and the large amount of road construction bears witness thereto. But the final day's run of the tour will, nevertheless, be the hardest of the entire Glidden run. When it is reached the tourists will find themselves lucky if their ability enables them to wind their way, in and out through the cypress swamps and across the sand plains, by means of a map which will show every crossing and foretell every bit of treacherous footing.

The task of the Glidden tourist thus simplified is nothing compared to that of the pathfinding car, in the judgment of Mr. Westgard.

The run to-morrow will be to Anderson, S. C., 160 miles, with the day control at Spartanburg, S. C.

Cortelyou Wins in Billiards.

A twenty-five point advantage over him proved to be too much for Sam Levy, who was handicapped at 125 points, to overcome, in the continuation of the amateur handicap 18.2 balkline billiard tournament in progress at John Doyle's Forty-second Street Billiard Academy, last night, and he lost to S. Cortelyou, who was handicapped at 100 points, by the score of 100 to 106. The contest required twenty innings to decide it in, and throughout the game the loser displayed remarkable form and put up a stiff, uphill fight for the leading position, and never could the winner be picked until within a couple of tallies of the final point. Although beaten in the scoring, Levy made a high run almost twice as large as his opponent's, the loser's high tally being twenty points.

MURPHY WINS AT NATIONAL.

Flatbush Boxer Outpoints Phil Brock in Ten-Round Bout.

Tommy Murphy of Flatbush outpointed Phil Brock, the Cleveland lightweight, in a ten-round bout at the National Sporting Club last night. For the greater part of nine rounds both boys showed a tendency to clinch, which materially slowed up the fighting, but in the tenth round they cut loose and exchanged punches from gong to gong. The tide changed continually in that closing chapter, Murphy leading at one time and then Brock showing the way. The round ended with honors even, but Murphy's advantage in the previous rounds gained him the verdict.

Murphy was far from the Tommy of former days, but he showed enough of his old-time cleverness to offset the harder hitting lightweight from Cleveland. Brock carries a heavy punch in his left hand, and in the clinches he can swing it upward and land on his opponent's head with terrific impact. Last night he made good use of this peculiar swing, and in the clinches he had Murphy plainly worried. Tommy's head got in the path of a few of these hard overhand swings early in the bout, and in the closing rounds Tommy hugged Brock's left arm until it was powerless. Several times these swings shook Murphy from head to feet, and they were easily the best blows that Brock delivered.

COHEN OUTPOINTS BROWN.

English Featherweight Too Clever for East Sider at Houston A. C.

Jack Cohen, the English featherweight, made good last night in the star bout of the Houston A. C. by decisively outpointing Young Brown, an east side favorite. Both boys fought a fast and clean contest from the start, but the Briton had the greater ring experience and outwitted his opponent with a constant volley of left jabs that the local boy could not stop, try as he would. With the exception of three rounds, two of which favored Brown and the other being even, the visitor had a clear advantage.

Cohen repeatedly got to his opponent at the opening of the session with the tantalizing jab and sent Brown's head back with a jolt each time and then showed him up with some good body punches. Brown, although outfought, showed unusual gameness and always came in for the attack of the Englishman, but at no time could he offset it. He bored in with the hope of landing a knockout punch.

The Englishman, when in tight places, managed to cover up with great accuracy and protect himself from many well-directed swings of Brown. At the start Cohen was a bit timid and allowed the local boy to do the leading and forcing in the initial round, but after the opening session he became used to the jeering of the crowd, which was all for Brown, and came into his own and showed to much better advantage than the east sider.

N. Y. A. C. BOXING BOUTS.

Many Clubs Fighting for Valuable Point Trophy.

Members of the New York Athletic Club enjoyed the first of a series of amateur boxing bouts last night in the gymnasium, in Central Park South. Three-round affairs in all classes were decided in the preliminaries, finals of which will be held to-morrow night. As a rule, good exhibitions were the outcome, with the various participants kept right up to the letter of the boxing rules by Prof. Mike Donovan, who was the third man in the ring and who officiated to the satisfaction of principals and spectators.

Aside from the individual prizes offered to first, second, and third, respectively, in each of the classes, the clubs in the district are striving for the hundred-dollar trophy to be awarded to the organization which sends out the greatest number of point winners of the three series to be decided. Any man winning in a class will not be eligible for further competition in that class for the trophy. It is believed that this style of contests will warrant an improvement in the class of amateur boxers in this vicinity.

Boxing Bouts at City A. C.

The City Athletic Club, in Fifty-fourth Street, between Fifth and Sixth Avenues, held its first set of boxing bouts under the Frawley bill last night, and some good bouts were witnessed by the spectators present. A wrestling bout, best two falls out of three, catch-as-catch-can style, in which Jack Niflot, the wrestling instructor of the club, easily defeated Mehling, a Swedish champion, in two straight falls, opened the programme. There were also three six-round boxing bouts. In the first contest of six rounds Knockout Sweeney opposed Jack Phillips. The second fight brought together Kid Cortez and Jack Fox, while in the last six-round bout the contestants were Eddie MacDonald and Tom McGirr. As a fitting wind-up for the above card Matt Wells, the English lightweight champion, boxed a four-round exhibition bout with one of his sparring partners. "Montana" Jack Sullivan was also introduced as one of the guests of the clubhouse.

NOTES OF THE BOXERS.

It was announced yesterday that the managers of Abe Attell and Johnny Kilbane have posted forfeits binding the two featherweights to box at 122 pounds before the club offering the largest purse.

Louis De Ponthieu, the lightweight champion of France, will clash with Battling Mantell of Brooklyn in the main bout at the New Polo A. A. to-night. De Ponthieu made a good record in his bouts in France, and is under the care of Frank Erne, the former lightweight champion. A six-round semi-final and four four-round bouts will precede the main event.

The Standard A. C. of Brooklyn will hold its first show of the season to-morrow night, and in the future will hold entertainments every Saturday evening. In the main bout to-morrow night Willie Howard of Brooklyn will mix with Jack Dorman of the Bronx. Eddie Conway of Greenpoint and Joe Farmer of New York will figure in the semi-final. Three four-round preliminaries will precede.

Patsy Klein of Newark and Joe Coster of Brooklyn have been matched for Monday night's show at the Fordon A. C., Grand and Orchard Streets. The two came together at the Whirlwind A. C. in Brooklyn last Winter, but the bout lasted only a few minutes, being ended by a blow which caused considerable discussion. Many declared it was foul and others said that it was not. The two were immediately signed up for another bout, but the match fell through.

Kid Herman, the newsboy featherweight champion, is out for the real championship. His fine showing in recent bouts entitles him to a bout with the topnotchers. To-morrow night at the Fairmont A. C. Herman is called upon to tackle the Kahoma Kid. The bout is scheduled for ten rounds. In two other ten-round bouts Art Edwards is to meet Banty Lewis and Eddie McDonald will oppose Young Kampe. Harry Jones and Joe Mooney will meet for six rounds.

Clarke Wins Roller Race.

F. J. Clarke of this city, holder of the four-mile professional roller skating championship title, sprang a big surprise in the two-mile amateur handicap roller-skating race decided at the Metropolitan Roller Skating Rink, Fifty-second Street and Broadway, last night when he defeated John Timney of Newark, the holder of the one-mile championship title, and Harry Wimmer, also of Newark. The winner led throughout the race and at the finish he had an advantage of about 40 yards over his nearest competitor, Timney. The latter and Harry Wimmer started from the scratch mark, and when it was easily seen that neither of them could overtake the flying Clarke they prepared for a nip-and-tuck struggle for the second position, in which the Newark skater was victorious, while the best that Wimmer could do was to finish third. The winner's time was 6:40. Some of the handicaps allotted were as high as 110 yards.

Engineers in Golf Sweepstakes.

Golfing members of the Engineers' Club who survived the rain on Wednesday, remained over at the Nassau Country Club yesterday and took part in a sweepstakes. S. C. Munoz of Montclair won with a card of 91—10—81. F. E. Donohoe, another Montclairite, had the best gross, an 89. Weather conditions were wretched, rain falling most of the time. The best scores were:

S. C. Munoz, 91—10—81; F. E. Donohoe, 89—5—84; H. T. Schreiber, 95—9—86; C. B. Burdick, 100—14—86; F. L. Du Bosque, 102—12—90; W. W. Ricker, 102—11—91; M. Garland, 102—7—93; H. D. Hibbard, 102—8—94; C. J. Earle, 116—20—96; W. S. Zimmerman, 115—17—98.

AUTO DRIVER PEARCE KILLED.

SIOUX CITY, Iowa, Oct. 19.—"Billy" Pearce, a well-known automobile driver, driving a Colby racing car at a mile a minute pace on the south turn of the Woodland Park track, was killed instantly this evening when his machine crashed into the fence. Pearce was on a practice spin in preparation for the race meet which opens to-morrow. An exploding tire is supposed to have been the cause.

The accident happened at the close of a practice spin when he had circled the track once and was starting on the second lap. The time caught for the first mile was slightly over one minute, and with the second time around he was seen to increase his speed.

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., Oct. 19.—Billy Pierce, who was killed to-day at Sioux City had won honors in bicycle and automobile racing. He was a native of Pittson, Penn. As a bicycle racer he ranked with Jimmy Michaels, and several of his records stand to-day.

He began automobile racing in 1908 in which year he established the Pocono Mountain Hill climb record at Bangor, Penn. In 1909 his F. A. L. car won the G. and J. Trophy at the Indianapolis Motor Speedway. During the Sioux City meet in 1910 he broke Barney Oldfields half mile track record.

LARNED ON TENNIS TEAM.

National Champion Arranges to Go to Australia to Play for Davis Cup.

William A. Larned, the seven-time National lawn tennis champion, it was announced last night, has arranged his business affairs so that he will head the American team which will go to Australia in an effort to regain custody of the Davis Cup. For some weeks past it had been feared that America would be represented in the matches at Christchurch, New Zealand, only by Maurice E. McLoughlin and Beals C. Wright, as Larned had made it known that business engagements which he had been obliged to enter upon would prevent his taking the trip. Within the past few days, however, the brilliant player has succeeded in making arrangements admitting of his absence from the country long enough to take part in the matches, and he will soon leave New York for the Pacific Coast to join Wright and McLoughlin.

The three men, it is announced, will sail from Vancouver on Nov. 1 on the steamer Zealandia for the twenty-two-day trip to New Zealand. Larned will Captain the team and play in singles. The selection of the other singles player will be made when the men arrive on Australian soil. The probability is, lawn tennis authorities said last night, that Wright and McLoughlin will play in the doubles match.

FOOTBALL PLAYER DIES.

W. E. Merriman Fatally Hurt, Davis-Elkins College Team Disbands.

ELKINS, West Va., Oct. 19.—The Davis Elkins College football team was disbanded to-day because of the death of Walter E. Merriman, one of the players who was injured in the game at Westminster, Md., last Saturday.

CARLISLE, Penn., Oct. 19.—What amounts to the same as secret practice is daily carried into effect on Indian Field during the practice of the Carlisle eleven, through the medium of a system of volunteer Indian guards, who protect the field and its approaches from the intrusion of any one except Carlisle students, officials, and those having special business near the gridiron. Coaches Warner and O'Brien this afternoon held a lengthy signal practice, during which special emphasis was laid on defense tactics and a few of Carlisle's new plays which may probably have their first showing in the University of Pittsburgh game at Pittsburgh on Saturday.

The Indians were given a hurried training along elementary lines, which seemed to be a part of the daily practice. Yesterday's practice scrimmage against Dickinson was so successful that both coaches think they may make it a weekly feature.

Dorothy Campbell Beats Mrs. Barlow.

PHILADELPHIA, Penn., Oct. 19.—Miss Dorothy Campbell of the Hamilton Golf Club, Ontario, defeated Mrs. Ronald H. Barlow of Merion, the Eastern champion, 3 up and 1 to play to-day in the semi-final round of the Berthellyn Cup golf tournament on the links of the Huntingdon Valley Country Club at Noble. She will play Mrs. Caleb Fox of the home club in the final match to-morrow. The latter won to-day's match from Mrs. C. H. Vanderbeck of the Philadelphia Cricket Club, 2 up and 1 to play. Both matches were played in the rain and were closely contested up to the seventeenth hole.

Players' Share of Chicago Games.

CHICAGO, Oct. 19.—When the players' pool, amounting to $37,918, in the city championship series is divided among the eligibles, each White Sox player will receive $875 and each Cub $631. In addition to the money from the city series the players of both teams will draw three days' extra salary, their contracts having expired last Sunday.

Mad Fan Assaults Evers.

CHICAGO, Oct. 19.—Johnny Evers, second baseman of the Cubs, was the victim of an attack at the final game of the city baseball series yesterday, being struck three times on the face by an enraged fan, who assaulted the player as he was walking toward the clubhouse. Before he could reach his assailant the man made his escape. Evers has a scratch over one of his eyes, while his lip is cut from the effects of the blow.

Old "Haymaker" King Dead.

TROY, N. Y., Oct. 19.—Marshall Ney King, famous hitter and centre fielder in the early days of the National League of Baseball Clubs, and one of the original "Haymakers" of Lansingburg, died to-day at his home in this city. He was 62 years old. His first professional engagement was in 1871 with the Chicago Nationals, and after the Haymakers had made a triumphal tour.

SUNDAY BASEBALL GAMES.

Ty Cobb's All Stars will play Sunday afternoon at Lenox Oval, 145th Street and Lenox Avenue. Larry Doyle's National Stars are to oppose the Cobb aggregation. If the Giants are counted out of the world's series before Sunday Doyle will be on hand with Herzog, Devlin, Murray, Merkle, Devore, and Ames. The latter will pitch. On Cobb's team will be Kritchell, catcher; Jack Quinn, pitcher; Joe Lake, and Cobb himself, who will play first base. Should the world's series continue into next week the crack Metropolitans, reinforced by several big league players, will oppose Cobb's stars.

On Sunday in Recreation Park, Jackson and Steinway Avenues, near the Queensboro Bridge Plaza, Long Island City, the Long Island Athletics will play the Jersey City Club of the Eastern League. Under the Captaincy of Del Mason the minor leaguers will present the following stars: Roach, shortstop; Abstein, first base; Fisher, second base; Fullerton, third base; Bailey, Doescher, and Dalton, outfielders, with Mason or Doescher pitching and Cady catching. Doc Scanlan of the Brooklyn will pitch for the Athletics. Play will be called at 3 o'clock sharp.

At Bronx Oval, 163d Street and Southern Boulevard, on Sunday the Royal Giants will make their final appearance for the season, when they clash with the crack Bronx Athletics. The Bronxonians will have out their regular team, with Christ, Paul Dietz, Wilson, Gordon, Mack, Wolf, and other stars, while the Royals will have Earl, Crawford, Wiley, Smith, Dunbar, Thomas, Handy, Kindle, and others. There will be no preliminary game, as the regular game will be called at 2:45 P. M. sharp.

MALTING PROFITS UP.

Gain Over the Previous Year Has Been About Double.

The annual report of the American Malting Company for the year ended Aug. 31, 1911, shows profit of $1,081,778 against $549,156 in the previous year and $319,999 in 1908. Charges increased from $306,705 in 1910 to $318,737, leaving a net profit of $763,040, which was equal to 5.28 per cent. on the $14,440,000 preferred stock, as against 1.74 per cent. earned in the previous year. The company paid two dividends on the preferred stock during the year, aggregating $1.24 per share, and thereby became indebted to the sinking fund for $89,528, which was settled by the delivery to the Trustees of the fund of $86,000 par value of its first mortgage bonds, amounting, with interest, to $88,150, and cash totaling $1,378. Through the operation of the sinking fund there have been canceled in the last four years $679,000 par value of the bonds, reducing the amount outstanding from $3,714,000 to $3,035,000.

The annual report of the American Malt Corporation shows that all but 3.08 per cent. of the entire capital stock of the American Malting Company has been deposited with it and its own securities exchanged therefor.

SMASH-UP ON A JOY RIDE.

Harry Gerdien, Chauffeur for Mrs. J. B. Coates, Disappears—One Man Hurt.

Harry Gerdien, a chauffeur employed by Mrs. J. B. Coates of 267 West Eighty-ninth Street, invited three friends, two young woman and a man, to go for an early morning ride yesterday, and while driving along Broadway, near 143d Street, at a fast clip ran the automobile into a pile of pipes in front of an apartment house. The front wheels of the auto were torn off, and the four occupants were thrown out.

Policemen Coogan and Gaudert heard the crash, and when they reached the disabled machine the chauffeur had disappeared. The others—Harold Clatworthy of 340 West Twenty-ninth Street, Blanche Belknap of 218 West Thirty-eighth Street, and Vera Ferguson of 446 West Twenty-ninth Street—were taken to the station house. The women were released. Clatworthy was held on a charge of intoxication. He was badly bruised and several of his teeth were knocked out in the smashup.

Mrs. Coates has been stopping for a few days at the Hotel Belmont. She did not give Gerdien permission to use the automobile, the police say.

George M. Wanamaker of 415 West Forty-seventh Street, chauffeur for Edmund M. Chattilon, proprietor of the Hotel Le Marquis, at 12 East Thirty-first Street, who, the police say, used the automobile of his employer Wednesday night without having obtained permission, was held on a charge of grand larceny yesterday for the Court of General Sessions by Magistrate O'Connor in the West Side Court.

CHATTED BEFORE SUICIDE.

Turned Into Her House from a Neighbor's Fence and Shot Herself.

Mrs. Sarah E. Mount and Mrs. George W. Marsac, neighbors in Merrill Avenue, Bloomfield, S. I., chatted over the fence between their places yesterday morning until Mrs. Mount called good-by to her friend and went into her house. Soon afterward Mrs. Marsac heard the report of a revolver shot and supposed that Mrs. Mount, who was expert in the use of a revolver, had shot at a rat. Rats frequently came into the yard and Mrs. Mount seldom missed one.

When several hours passed without a word from her neighbor, Mrs. Marsac ran to the home of Mrs. Mount's uncle, Vincent Braisted, nearby, telling him of the shot and of Mrs. Mount's failure to appear afterward. Braisted hurried to his niece's home and found her dead on a lounge in the living room. The revolver was clutched in her hand and there was a bullet wound in her right temple.

Harry Mount was prostrated when he reached home and learned of his wife's death. He said he knew of no reason that would impell her to kill herself, except that a girl friend of hers in Bergen, N. J., had killed herself recently and Mrs. Mount had appeared very much affected by her friend's death.

The couple have been married for twelve years and went to Staten Island seven years ago from Bergen, N. J., where Mrs. Mount was very well connected and where all her friends and relatives lived. They had been very happy, said Mr. Mount, and had no financial troubles, as they owned the house in which they lived and he held a good position with a steel construction company.

CLERK STRANGELY SHOT.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Ill., Oct. 19.—Edward Metzler, a clerk employed in the Continental and Commercial National Bank of Chicago, was found shot to death in a box car of the Lake Shore & Michigan Southern Railroad at East Seventy-fifth Street at 8 o'clock this morning. He had been shot in the head, and a revolver was found near the body. Metzler was unmarried and lived at 5,643 South Michigan Avenue.

A railway employe discovered Metzler's body when he was passing the open door of the box car and summoned the police. A purse containing $6.10 was in one of Metzler's pockets.

At the Continental and Commercial National Bank it was said that Metzler had been employed there as a clerk for about a year.

"Metzler was a stock and transfer clerk here," one of the officials said. "He had a good place in the bank and was highly thought of. His accounts are correct. He was in good health and good spirits, seemingly, when he left the bank last evening."

Mr. and Mrs. Alexander Stewart of 5,643 South Michigan Avenue, at whose home Metzler lived for a year, were unable to throw any light on the death of the bank clerk. They said he had not been ill or despondent.

GOLF WON HIS CONGREGATION

Autos and Theatres Also Helped Discourage Chicago Pastor.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Ill., Oct. 19.—Autos and golf made such inroads upon his congregation that the Rev. Luther Pardee, after five years of work, has resigned as pastor of St. Elizabeth's Episcopal Church, in Glencoe, a suburb of Chicago. Analyzing the falling off in church attendance, he concludes that the theatre also is an important cause of the slump.

In leaving St. Elizabeth's Mr. Pardee has abandoned a church which was built practically with his own money. He watched his congregation dwindle to a mere handful, preaching the gospel within earshot of the Skokie links, where most of his congregation were at play. It is said that on one occasion the rector entered his church to find a woman was his only auditor.

"I want to shake hands with my congregation," he said, smiling sorrowfully.

Mr. Pardee has given church attendance serious study, and has arrived at the conclusion that Sunday recreations are putting Chicago foremost in the ranks of non-churchgoing cities. In comparing Chicago and New York he declared in favor of the Eastern city.

De Rosier to Ride at Guttenberg.

FOR HIGHER COTTON PRICES.

Theodore H. Price Would Do as Was Done with Coffee.

NEW ORLEANS, Oct. 19.—The Southern States should issue bonds for the valorization of cotton in the same way the Brazilian Government has done with its coffee crop, is a suggestion Theodore H. Price will make at the conference of cotton States Governors called here on Oct. 30, to discuss plans to check the downward price of the staple.

Mr. Price points out that the Brazilian Committee, has advanced in two years the price of coffee several cents a pound and that the country, which was becoming impoverished, is now more prosperous than ever before.

"It is possible that it may be unconstitutional for some of the Southern States to issue the necessary bonds," writes Mr. Price, "but it would be easy to amend the constitution as it would be for the benefit of all the people. I will guarantee that the plan will be financed."

The Necessaries of Life

include the local transportation, the light, heat, and power supplied by Public Utility plants. For this reason the business of corporations operating such plants is slightly affected by the hard times. Hence their earnings are more sure and stable than those of many other enterprises.

These conditions alone give great value to the securities of Public Utility companies that are judiciously and honestly capitalized and intelligently, economically, and efficiently conducted. All these elements are to be found in the companies that we have developed, control, and operate. Therefore we do not hesitate to recommend the bonds issued by them as safe and as sound as they are profitable for investors to hold.

Conservative Investment

THERE is no greater incentive towards thrift and economy than that induced by conservative investment. It is a mistake to imagine, however, that conservative investment is to be determined by surface conditions alone. Margin of safety, stability of earnings, marketability, interest rates and other important factors all have a bearing upon safe and profitable investment.

FINANCIAL MARKETS

Stocks Close with Net Gains on a Sharp Rally in the Final Hour.

SHORT COVERING IN STEEL

Favorable Interpretation Put on Decision to Terminate Ore Lease—New York Lending More Money Abroad.

A vigorous advance in the final hour of trading yesterday, in which United States Steel took the lead, wiped out earlier losses in most stocks and resulted in substantial net gains for the day in a number of the leading issues. The upturn in Steel which carried that stock to 60 after it had sold as low as 57⅝ appeared to result, at least in part, from short covering by traders who on Wednesday had misjudged the market effect of the purpose of the Steel Corporation to terminate its lease of the Great Northern ore lands and who were impelled by the strength which the stock showed in the early trading to cover their commitments. The position of the Steel Corporation is unquestionably strengthened in respect to the current agitation against the corporations by the decision which it has reached in this matter. This was the verdict which the stock market pronounced yesterday, even before the heavy short covering, which was instrumental in bringing about the afternoon's sharp advance.

The firmness of steel in the early trading was emphasized by the contrast with the action of the Great Northern ore certificates, which opened at a loss of 2 points and continued to decline until they had sold an even 10 points under the high price of the previous day. They rallied enough to reduce the net loss to 4¼ points. One of the grounds on which the Steel Corporation's lease of the Great Northern's ore lands has been criticised is that the rate of royalty to be paid under the lease was excessive. This carries the inference that it would be difficult to find other customers who will pay as high a rate for this ore, and it was this consideration of the case which was responsible for the sharp decline which occurred in the certificates yesterday. On the other hand, those in a position to reflect the views of the trustees of these lands again expressed confidence in their ability to find customers for the ore at satisfactory prices. The purpose of the Steel Corporation to reduce the freight rate on iron ore, taken in conjunction with the efforts of independent steelmakers to bring about lower rates to and from the Pittsburgh district, opens up an interesting prospect of rate readjustments which may bring about some modifications in the cost of steel manufacturing.

In the money market the increased prospects of gold exports, due to the continued outflow of funds from this market to Europe, was the chief feature of interest. More light on the position of the French money market was supplied yesterday by the weekly statement of the Bank of France, which, instead of a decrease, showed an increase in loans and by the addition of another one-fourth of 1 per cent. to the discrimination between trade and finance bills in the Paris discount market. The former are still being discounted at 3½ per cent., while the rate on finance bills has now been advanced from 3¾ to 4 per cent. Our loans to Europe are still increasing, as is evidenced by the continued rise in foreign exchange rates in the face of very large exports. The record for the month of September shows exports of record proportions for that month, and the same is true of the excess of exports over imports. This is a condition which should be finding reflection in lower exchange rates, but the contrary is true, and demand sterling yesterday sold at the highest figure of the year. It is because money is so easy here and is in so much better demand elsewhere that we are sending money out at the very time when in normal course Europe should be making payments to us in settlement of merchandise bought in this country. We are, in effect, lending to Europe much of the money with which payment is being made for the goods which we are sending abroad.

CIGAR MANUFACTURING UP

Rises from 46 to 49 and Closes 1¾ Above Opening—Many of the Mining Issues Close Below Day's Best.

Curb prices were reactionary yesterday, and closed in most instances below the high levels of the day. United Cigar Manufacturing was one of the exceptions, selling up from 46 to 49, and closing at 47¾, after sales of 650. In the mining list Inspiration, which had been strong on Wednesday, sold off, to 7⅛, after opening ⅛ down, at 7⅜. The close was at 7¼, after sales of 3,100. Greene-Cananea sold off from 6 to 5¾, and Ray Central closed 1-16 below the opening. Kerr Lake, which opened at 2⅞, rose to 3, and sold off, to 2¾, which was the closing price, after sales of 1,500. Trading in the bond list was limited to three issues. New York, Westchester & Boston 4½s sold $27,000, from 97⅝ down to 97⅜, and closed at 97½. Oregon-Washington Railroad & Navigation 4s rose from 92¼ to 92½ on sales of $32,000.

THE EUROPEAN MARKETS.

Prices Irregular in London and Paris, Depressed in Berlin.

LONDON, Oct. 19.—Money and discount rates were easy to-day.

The stock market was quietly irregular. Gilt-edged securities improved on the bank statement, which was better then had been expected, and Chinese bonds and home rails hardened, but foreign shares, Mexican rails, and Kaffirs yielded under profit-taking.

American securities were quiet and featureless during the first hour. Then prices improved on light covering and New York buying, but the market sagged again in the late trading and closed dull.

The rate of discount in the open market for short bills is 3⅜@3½ per cent.

The rate of discount in the open market for three months' bills is 3¾@3 13-16 per cent.

PARIS, Oct. 19.—Prices were irregular on the Bourse to-day.

Private rate of discount, 3½ per cent.

BERLIN, Oct. 19.—Reports from the American iron market had a depressing effect on the Börse to-day. Trading was quiet.

Cotton Shipments.

Exports of cotton for the three months ended Sept. 30 amounted to $79,579,000, as compared with a total of $82,805,000 in the corresponding period of last year. More cotton is going abroad this year, but it does not seem likely that the value of the exports for the last fiscal year will be equaled in 1911-12, owing to the big drop in the price. The value of the cotton shipped last year was $584,652,000, but the staple was then selling about 5 cents a pound higher than at present, so that a conservative estimate of the total of this year's shipments is $520,000,000.

Directors for Convenience.

A novel explanation has been offered for the election of three minor officials of the Denver & Rio Grande to the Board of Directors. There was one vacancy open and Edwin and Howard Gould are displaced by the new men. It is said that this does not mean the retirement of the two Goulds and the substitution of three Rockefeller representatives, and that the change is only a temporary expedient for making it possible to get a quorum of the board in Denver. President Jeffrey and Kingdon Gould are to be located in that city for some time, and it will be necessary to hold Directors' meetings there. When the President returns to the New York office the three men recently elected are expected to resign in order that the Goulds and F. T. Gates may take their places.

Prospects for Tobacco Plan.

In spite of the gathering clouds of opposition to the proposed dissolution plan of the American Tobacco Company, its sponsors are still full of confidence over the outlook for its acceptance by the courts. They hold that the breaking up of the combination into 17 companies will satisfy Attorney General Wickersham's stipulation that the plan must first of all restore conditions which will allow free competition in the trade. The Chairman of one of the securities committees said yesterday that he did not see what standing an organization of so-called independent tobacco dealers formed for the specific purpose of fighting the American combination would have before a court. "If that does not constitute a palpable violation of the restraint-of-trade idea, neither does the present tobacco organization," he said.

Our Loans to Europe.

Some of the loans which our bankers have made to the foreign money markets have been secured by deposits of American securities as collateral, but the extent to which our own securities have been pledged against these loans is said to be relatively small. This seems to dispose of the theory entertained in some quarters that much of the money which we are now lending to Europe is being really borrowed from us for the purpose of carrying our own securities. As a matter of fact, as was pointed out by some of the bankers who have taken a very large share in the lending of money abroad, Europe has been borrowing from this country to carry on its own business. This centre is now the cheapest money market in the world, and money is flowing from here in large quantities to Europe where higher rates are obtainable. Incidentally, a great credit balance is being built up abroad which in due course will find its way back to this country as soon as conditions again call for this money for use in our own trade and manufactures.

"Farrell, Penn.," a New Name.

One more steel man is to have his name immortalized in the gazetteers and the postal guides and possibly on the railroad timetables. Dispatches from Sharon, Penn., told of a vote by the city fathers of South Sharon, a city where some $15,000,000 of the capital of the United States Steel Corporation is invested, to change the name of the town to "Farrell," in honor of the new President of the United States Steel Corporation. The name was chosen, it is said, out of fifty-four offered in the voting. Pennsylvania is dotted with towns recalling the great past, both in the steel and the oil business, though there is no Rockefeller among them. Ohio, too, has a number of cities so named. Gary, Ind., is the biggest as well as the most rapidly developed of all. There is a Carnegie, Penn., and also a Frick.

STOCKS OUT OF TOWN

CLOSE GENERALLY HIGHER

Rally in the Last Hour in Philadelphia, Though Boston Market Finishes with Sluggish Trading.

Trading in the principal out-of-town markets yesterday was influenced by the course of prices in New York, in most centres the later prices being the best of the day.

Cotton duck 5s were strong in Baltimore, and advanced more than a point on reports of prospects of improved earnings because of the pronounced decline in the price of raw material.

The reported advance of a small fraction in the asking price of copper failed to stimulate any appreciable demand for copper shares in Boston, and the market remained dull and narrow, with irregularity of price movement. A considerable amount of business was done in Steel for New York accounts, the stock declining and rallying in sympathy with the larger market. Outside of scattered transactions in local industrial and railroad issues, in which trading was mostly of broken lots, the principal features were American T. & T. and Western Telephone. During the afternoon the market was dull and without feature.

Active trading in the Chicago Railways issues was the feature on the local Stock Exchange yesterday. The Series 2 certificates led in activity, and rose more than a point at the best, though easing off to a fractional gain by the close. The Series 1 added several points and the Series 3 a point. In common with these many of the other stocks traded in showed moderate gains for the day, among them Match and Chicago Elevated Railways preferred. Booth Fisheries preferred, Commonwealth, Edison, and Can preferred were down fractions. Earnings of Booth Fisheries Company, which now include operations of the Northwestern Fisheries Company, it is reported, are showing satisfactory increases over a year ago. It has been decided to end the fiscal year of the company on Dec. 31 instead of May 1.

Up to the last hour hesitation, weakness, and spotty liquidation had been in evidence in Philadelphia. The sudden running to cover of an overextended short interest in United States Steel and Lehigh Valley produced a rally in the last hour. Steel had been steadily sold throughout the day, and this had caused weakness to develop in several quarters locally, notably in Tonopah, United Gas Improvement, and Lake Superior Corporation. On the other hand Asphalt advanced to a new high record, while Philadelphia Rapid Transit and Cambria Steel also moved up.

Yesterday's transactions on the various out-of-town Exchanges, as reported to THE NEW YORK TIMES, were as follows:

CONSOLIDATED EXCHANGE.

Throughout the day the action of United States Steel common dominated the market on the Consolidated Stock Exchange. Traders sold on the announcement that the United States Steel Corporation proposed to cancel the lease of the Hill ore lands, and when the stock touched a low price on the New York Stock Exchange of 57⅝ toward the close of the first hour, transactions totaling 800 shares in 100 and 200 share lots were made as low as 57½ on the consolidated floor. The highest touched on the sharp recovery of the late afternoon was 59⅞, compared with a high on the other board of 60. Of the total sales of 96,120 shares Steel common alone accounted for 44,450 shares.

COMMODITY MARKETS.

WHEAT.—Trading in wheat was of smaller volume, with some evidence of profit taking, and a moderate reaction in values. Prices were firm early, with the market influenced by Winnipeg, which was up 1c a bushel on October. The advance in that market was due to reports of heavy export business the past two days both at the seaboard and from the interior, while the grading of the new wheat is still very inferior, and the weather conditions are materially influencing the movement. The receipts at American points showed further decrease. In four days the loss in receipts has been 1,000,000 bushels from last week, and the cash markets are showing a great deal of strength. There was further advance in cash prices both at the seaboard and at the interior. The Western reports were of fair milling demand, and Minneapolis advices claimed a strong cash market. The advance brought some little realizing in the afternoon, and a small reaction in values. Foreign markets were higher, and the European markets are slowly following the American advance, although European prices are still below any possible parity with American prices. Manitoba wheat is about 7c a bushel for No. 1 Northern under the price of American wheat. Most of the business in export is said to be for low-grade wheat. The reports on the condition of the new wheat state that it is making a fine start, and generally in excellent condition. Seeding is about complete, with the acreage possibly slightly increased over last year. Cash No. 2 red was quoted at $1.03, free on board; No. 1 Northern, $1.19⅞; No. 2 hard, Winter, $1.11⅝; No. 1 Manitoba, $1.13.

CORN was fairly active, with new high levels made for the advance, closing at a moderate reaction from the high prices, and at a small net decline for the day. Cash corn was strong, and higher prices were reported at the interior. The high price for cash corn is bringing some increase in the primary receipts, although the movement is still less than last year. The premiums of cash corn over the December delivery are about 5@8c a bushel for No. 3 and No. 2 at the West, and yellow corn shows even a greater premium. The advance on the premiums on cash corn have been very important since the end of August. A little new corn is moving at the interior, but the quality is still influenced by the prolonged wet weather. Exporters reported nine loads at the outports. No. 2 corn was quoted at 79½c, free on board.

OATS.—Trade in oats was quiet, with the market fractionally higher, sympathizing with the improvement in other grain. Offerings were rather moderate on the advance, and the feeling was one of fair confidence in the situation. The movement of oats continues liberal. Cash oats were steady, with standards and No. 3 white, 52½c; No. 2 white, 53c.

PROVISIONS.—The market was fairly active, showing a good advance early, with considerable covering on the reports of more hog cholera. Later there was a sharp reaction in values on the hog receipts, which were again liberal, amounting to 100,000 at all points. The packing the past week was 435,000, against 355,000 last year. The average weights of the hogs this year, however, are about 20 per cent. under a year ago.

COTTONSEED OIL.

Firmness was again displayed, but toward the close of the session offerings were in somewhat larger volume, which caused a partial recession. The buying was quite similar to that of Wednesday, and the larger inquiry for crude oil at the South from packing interests has stimulated prices. Sentiment is more bullish, but apparently there is indisposition to take actively to the buying side at this season of the year, with so much crude in first hands. Foreign inquiry is limited at present with home consuming demand about fair, but comparative firmness of the spot position is maintained. Crude quoted at 4.34 to 4.40.

COTTON.

Further evidence of the market being a two-sided affair at around current levels was furnished during yesterday's session. Sharp advances occurred at the outset, there being gains of 9 to 15 points, with a good inquiry from shorts and a little new buying. These advances, however, were not maintained; in fact, the South sold in good volume on the upturn, while bears, in line with their recent predictions, utilized the higher prices and some bad weather reports for replacing short lines.

A sagging tendency was displayed following the opening firmness, and at the close practically the entire advance had been eliminated.

Early reports were of frost in North Carolina, while the tenor of Liverpool advices was in favor of holders, foreigners also buying in good volume during the morning session. It developed, however, that the low temperatures in North Carolina were confined to the mountain regions, and, although with the issuance of the official forecasts for frost in the Western States there appeared to be some apprehension, this was gradually dispelled. The National Ginners' Association wired that frost was probable in Oklahoma and Arkansas for two days, but that little damage was likely, and, guided by the temperatures north of the cotton belt, this seemed to be the conviction of the trade at large.

Following the rather ridiculous assertions yesterday that the National Ginners' Association would place the amount ginned to Oct. 17 at about 8,500,000 bales came official information that no such figures have been promulgated, and that the ginners' estimate was for 7,750,000 bales. This is undoubtedly bearish, indicating ginning for the period of over 4,300,000 bales. In the large crop year of 1908 ginning for the interval was 3,700,000 bales, and from the beginning of the season that year to about this date was 6,300,000 bales. Weld & Co. had advices from their correspondents pointing to a total ginning of 7,393,000 bales. With these figures many operators were inclined to estimate the probable outturn this season, and in conformity with the general trend of sentiment 15,000,000 bale guesses were quite popular. It is generally recognized, however, that crop estimates, based on ginning figures alone at this time, are quite likely to prove fallacious.

With the renewal of Southern selling there were claims of free offerings of spot cotton again from the Southeast, but, on the whole, there is much contradiction in the spot dispatches. Advices are again disseminated to farmers for the purpose of inspiring cotton holding, but these are without appreciable effect, although it is well realized that a vast difference exists in holding cotton below 9c for higher prices than several weeks ago, when levels were decidedly above those prevailing. Southern spot markets were unchanged to ¼c advance, and the local market unchanged; middlings, 9.35c. Week-end figures are not expected to be so bearish to-day.

COFFEE.

Coffee met heavy selling and a sharp reaction, closing near the bottom at a net decline of 28 to 44 points, with sales aggregating 153,750 bags. The selling was largely for foreign account. Havre closed ¾f to 1f lower, Hamburg was ½ pfennig to ¾ pfennig lower, while Rio advanced 225 reis, and Santos was 100 reis higher. Spot coffee inactive, but firm; Rio No. 7, 15⅞@16c. $40,000 SEATTLE LIGHTING CO. Ref. 5s, Oct., 1949, at 96¼ & int., to net 5.20%.
This company OPERATES WITHOUT COMPETITION in the City of Seattle, Washington, under franchises which we are advised are held by UNITED STATES COURTS TO BE PERPETUAL, and supplies gas for light, heat and fuel, serving a population of about 250,000.
For the year ended Dec. 31st, 1910, the Company reported a SURPLUS above all fixed charges of $116,636.

1st. Secured by ABSOLUTE FIRST MTGE.
2nd. Satisfactory franchises.
3rd. Company earning THREE TIMES bond interest.
4th. Paying dividends on BOTH CLASSES of stock.

THE REAL ESTATE FIELD

Freundschaft Club on Park Avenue Sold to Builder for About $600,000—Factory Deal in Bronx—Lorillard Estate Auction Brings Less Than Assessments—George Gould Takes Title.

The sale of the Freundschaft Club building, at Park Avenue and Seventy-second Street, was easily the feature of the active realty market yesterday. The property, which has been in the market for some time, has been held at $600,000, and has been bought by Edgar A. Levy, a building operator, who has put up some fine apartments on the west side. Mr. Levy stated last night that he would eventually improve his new parcel with a high-class apartment house, but it will be about a year before the old clubhouse is torn down.

The property has a frontage of 102.2 feet on Park Avenue and 130 feet on Seventy-second Street, occupying the southeast corner. The club has been there since 1886. A new site is now being looked for, which will be below Fifty-ninth Street. The Governors have ratified the sale, the contracts have been signed, and only the formal consent of the court is necessary to effect the transfer of the property. It is the largest Park Avenue deal that has occurred since E. Clifford Potter over a year ago paid about $1,000,000 for the old Steinway piano factory block, on the east side of the avenue, between Fifty-second and Fifty-third Streets.

Big Factory Sale in Bronx.

One of the most important deals of an industrial nature in the Bronx which has been made in some time was closed yesterday by the M. Morgenthau, Jr., Company, which involves the immediate erection of a large factory in the Hunt's Point district. The M. Morgenthau, Jr., Company has just sold to the Royal Embroidery Works of 79 Fifth Avenue for the Henry Morgenthau Company a plot of eight lots on the southwest corner of Tiffany Street and the New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad. The property has a frontage of 100 feet on Tiffany Street and 200 feet along the line of the railroad, being a part of the block bounded by Tiffany and Barretto Streets, Whitlock Avenue, and the railroad.

The Henry Morgenthau Company has agreed to erect for the Royal Embroidery Works a two-story and basement factory. Plans are being prepared by the architects Buchman & Fox, and the building will be ready for occupancy early next year. The total investment will approximate $150,000. The selection of this site was largely due to the campaign recently initiated by the Bronx Industrial Bureau in showing the facilities offered in different parts of the borough for various business uses. The big factory of the American Bank Note Company in the immediate neighborhood is about ready for opening. The new building of the Royal Embroidery Works will employ over 300 persons.

Lorillard Estate Auction.

Nine parcels of downtown property belonging to the estate of Peter Lorillard, including parcels on the Bowery and South, Grand, Broome, and Spring Streets, were offered in the Vesey Street salesroom yesterday by Joseph P. Day, and brought a total of $253,925. The assessed valuation of the parcels is $319,000. The auction results, therefore, were $65,075 less than the assessments on the city tax books.

The sale attracted a fair representation of operators and brokers, and in some cases the bidding was quite brisk. Only in one instance, however, was the successful bid over the assessment. This was for the plot at 78 to 80 East Houston Street, occupied by two three-story buildings, which went for $37,100 to George Kinney. The assessment is $33,500. The next parcel which went nearest to the assessment was 10 Bowery, a two-story tenement, which was bought by the Rudolph Wallach Company for $12,500, or only $500 under the assessed valuation. The same company also bought the three two and three story buildings at 466 to 470 Grand Street for $34,500, the assessment being $51,000. The parcel had formerly been knocked down to a buyer for $37,400, who through some misunderstanding of the terms of the sale failed to comply with the rules, and it was put up again.

Charles F. Noyes bought for a client 166 and 168 South Street, running through to Front Street, for $25,000. The assessment is $45,000, the building being the property of the tenant. A Spring Street plot sold close to the assessment, being 34 and 36, including a two-story building, with a smaller building in the rear. It is assessed at $48,000 and was bought by Anna Nicolino for $46,500. The plot at 20 Prince Street, assessed at $22,000, was bought for $19,300. J. H. Schwartz paid $31,000 for 193 Bowery, being $14,000 less than the assessment. Complete results of the sale, with the assessed valuations on each, will be found in the auction results below.

Resale of 597 Broadway.

The Charles F. Noyes Company has resold for Douglas Robinson, Charles S. Brown Company, representing Lawrence Jacob, 597 Broadway, running through to 170 Mercer Street, a five-story basement and sub-cellar building covering a lot 25 by 200. The building is leased to three tenants for $11,500 per annum.

This property was offered at auction last week at a partition sale of the Lawrence estate, and was bought in by interested parties on a bid of $102,750.

Demand for High Class Dwellings.

The demand for high class private dwellings was very evident yesterday when three sales on the east side were reported. In the Fifth Avenue section Henry D. Winans & May sold for the estate of Frank S. Layng, 14 East Fifty-third Street, a modern six-story American basement residence. The structure occupies a lot 25 by 100.5, and was built by William E. Dillon in 1902. The buyer will occupy the house as a residence.

The same firm of brokers have also sold 102 East Seventy-third Street, adjoining the southeast corner of Park Avenue, a four-story brick and stone residence, for Robert I. Levy to a client, who will remodel the property for his own occupancy.

In the Murray Hill section Dr. Newton M. Shaffer has sold his residence at 28 East Thirty-eighth Street, a four-story and basement stone-front dwelling, on lot 18.9 by 98.9.

The house is located 43.9 feet east of the former edifice of Old South Church at the southeast corner of Madison Avenue and Thirty-eighth Street.

George Gould Takes Title.

George Gould yesterday took title to the residence at 1,082 Fifth Avenue, on plot 22.11 by 102.2. It was sold by Eleanora Phillips, and is the house reported a few days ago as having been purchased for Jay Gould. It adjoins Archer M. Huntington's residence at 1,083, and is separated by two houses from the north corner of Eighty-ninth Street.

Tenements Sold to Investors.

Heller & Sussman have sold for the Strayer Realty Company 17 West 118th Street, a five-story tenement, on a plot 25 by 100. In exchange the Strayer Realty Company took 1,998 Madison Avenue, a four-story twelve-room house on a lot 20 by 40.

Sol Stern has sold the five-story and basement triple tenement 239 West 143d Street, on plot 25 by 100, to Irene Mary Brobst, who buys for investment. The price was about $30,000.

Wilber C. Goodale has sold for William Teller 152 West Sixty-second Street, a five-story flat on lot 25 by 100. The purchaser is a client of William H. Archibald.

Sugarman & Kahn have purchased from Mrs. Hannah M. Nesenowitz 102 Goerck Street, between Rivington and Stanton Streets, a five-story tenement, on lot 25 by 100.

Bronx.

Shaw & Co. have sold for E. J. Casey the vacant plot, 50 by 100 feet, on the west side of Southern Boulevard, 122 feet south of Home Street, to a client for improvement.

Ernst & Cahn and J. J. Pittman have sold for the Loring Realty Company the plot, 79.8 by 99, on the west side of Kingsbridge Terrace, about 140 feet south of 230th Street.

Buys Old Astoria Homestead.

William H. McWhirter has purchased for $70,000 the old Benner homestead, known as The Roses, consisting of an old-time country mansion and about sixty lots at Hoyt Avenue and Wilson Street, Astoria. The property was owned by United States Senator W. Murray Crane of Massachusetts.

Long Island.

The Greater New York Home Company has sold to Thomas F. King of Manhattan a parcel having 50 feet front on the south side of Banks Avenue and 100 feet on the east side of Ford Avenue; also, 100 feet on the south side of Banks Avenue and 100 feet on the west side of Ford Avenue; also, 50 feet on the south side of Banks Avenue and 10 feet on the east side of Monticello Avenue; also, 50 feet on the south side of Banks Avenue, Jamaica.

The Term Realty Company has sold to Ferdinand Mackenroth of Manhattan four lots on Alabama Way, Jamaica South.

John Wilson Hart has sold to Elizabeth Lucas Breed of Douglaston four lots at Douglass Manor.

The Seidel Realty Company has sold for Henry Hansen a plot on Fourteenth Avenue, just north of Flushing Avenue, in Long Island City. The buyer will improve it with a two-family dwelling.

Recent Buyers.

W. B. Dutton is the buyer of the dwelling 116 East Seventy-third Street, the sale of which by Emil Frank was reported Wednesday. Mr. Dutton will ocupy the house.

Robert Goelet and the estate of Ogden Goelet are the buyers of the private stable 9 East Fifty-second Street, sold last week by Theodore H. Price, the cotton operator. The Goelets own the adjoining stables 5 and 7 East Fifty-second Street, giving them control of a plot 70 by 100.5.

Leases.

Frederick P. Clarke has closed a long-term lease with Richard Hudnut for 20,000 square feet of space in the Bush Terminal Building just completed at 327 to 333 East Twenty-ninth Street. Richard Hudnut was the first large manufacturer to locate on East Twenty-ninth Street, and has taken this additional space to accommodate rapidly increasing business.

Denzer Brothers have leased for a term of years for Joseph Libman & Co. the five-story and basement building, on plot 42 by 100, at 351 and 353 West Broadway, to M. Wellon & Co.

Hell & Stern have leased for the estate of J. H. Mahony the entire building 628 and 630 Broadway, to various tenants.

Folsom Brothers, Inc., have leased for John H. Henshaw, as trustee for the estate of Abbie L. Henshaw, the five-story private house on the southwest corner of Lexington Avenue and Thirty-eighth Street, for a term of years to Elizabeth T. Doyle.

New Institute for Blind.

Plans have been filed for a new educational institution for the New York Association for the Blind on the north side of Fifty-ninth Street, 105 feet east of Park Avenue. The association is now located at 118 East Fifty-ninth Street. The new structure will be just east of the Arion Society Clubhouse, at the corner. It will have a frontage of 40 feet and a depth of 75 feet. The main feature of the structure will be the roof, where will be located a roof garden, skating rink, running track, and a large sun room. The architect, W. W. Bosworth, estimates the cost at $75,000.

Seventh Regiment Armory Changes.

Plans have been filed for closing the windows in the side walls and replacing them with smaller ones in the Seventh Regiment Armory, at Lexington and Park Avenues, Sixty-sixth and Sixty-seventh Streets, and also extending the false towers on the Lexington Avenue side three feet higher, and building them square above the roof. A new alley will be added to the rifle range and a new gallery built around the drill hall. The architect, T. L. Robinson, has estimated the cost of these improvements at $125,000.

Notes.

The Lawyers' Realty Company has made a building loan of $170,000 to the Melvin Realty Company on the new apartment being erected on the northwest corner of St. Nicholas Avenue and 177th Street, 94.11 by 100 feet.

The aggregate of building permits in Queens for last week foots up to $209,496. Included in the permits are three proposed boarding houses to be erected in Far Rockaway by the S. & L. Construction Company at a total cost of $52,000. Plans for an office for the Commissioner of Parks, to be located in the northeast end of Forest Park, and easy of acess to the Forest Hills station of the Long Island Railroad, have been filed. The building will be of the Spanish mission type of architecture, and will cost $7,000.

AT THE LOWEST RENT IN MANHATTAN
LOWEST RENT IN MANHATTAN
are, (1) that the St. John's Park Realty Co. purchased the entire block, 200x200 ft., bounded by Greenwich, Washington, Morton and Barrow Sts., (opposite the U. S. Appraisers' Stores) at a price which was next door to a criminal offense. (2) The contract price for the eight-story buildings covering this block, obtained at the right time last Winter when New York's best builders were falling over each other to secure work, especially of a generous size, was also akin to an infraction of the laws of the land P[illegible]

"It's an ill wind blows nobody good."

The Washington St. half of the block, 200x100, we leased from the plans to the mail order firm of Bellas Hess & Co., who have migrated from Broadway and Prince St., by which move they save $45,000 per annum in rent. If it wasn't slang we would say that is "some saving." At any rate, there is a moral attached to it. On the Greenwich St. front we built two buildings, the northerly corner of which, (Barrow St.,) 101x100, we have just leased. We now offer the remaining corner, 100x95 ft., northwest corner Greenwich and Morton Sts., at the
LOWEST RENT IN MANHATTAN
The building is eight stories and high, dry basement; 100x95 ft., containing about 82,000 square feet; splendidly planned and built; excellent light; fireproof "az iz" fireproof; equipped with the fire-preventing, insurance-saving, business-protecting automatic sprinkler system; floors have the unusual carrying capacity of 200 and 300 pounds per square foot; three large Otis electric elevators of 4,000 pounds capacity each. Outside shipping platform 200 feet long; commodious interior and exterior stairways; underwriter doors and windows; steam heat, gas, electric light and power; ideal in every way. Convenient to all North River piers and ferries; the 9th Ave. "L" and Hudson Tunnel Stations at Christopher St.; 8th Ave., 9th Ave., Houston St. and 8th St. surface lines. Firms not needing all the 82,000 square feet in this building can readily sublet one or more floors, as did the General Electric Company, for whom we built and to whom we leased a similar building diagonally opposite. Tenants are numerous for these floors separately, but we will lease the building only as a whole. We will consider the assumption of unexpired leases elsewhere of prospective tenants. The rent of the building is $18,000 net per annum, and it is the

BANKRUPTCY NOTICES.

UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT, Southern District of New York.—In the matter of COLUMBIAN-STERLING PUBLISHING COMPANY, Alleged Bankrupt.

Upon the annexed petition of A. GORDON MURRAY, the Receiver herein, verified the 18th day of October, 1911, and upon all the papers and proceedings had herein, let the above-named COLUMBIAN-STERLING PUBLISHING COMPANY, the creditors herein, and all other persons in interest, show cause before me at a term of this court, to be held at the Court Room thereof, at the Post Office Building, in the Borough of Manhattan, City of New York, on the 23d day of October, 1911, at 10:30 o'clock in the forenoon of that day, or as soon thereafter as counsel can be heard, why the Receiver herein should not be authorized to issue Receiver's certificates in the sum of Fifty Thousand ($50,000) Dollars, or any part thereof, upon such terms as he may deem advisable and necessary, the said certificates after the payment of administration expenses to be a first lien upon the assets herein, said certificates or any part thereof to be disposed of at the highest prices obtainable therefor by the said Receiver, or to be used by him, in his discretion, as security for advances to be made to him, and why the Receiver should not continue the business of the COLUMBIAN-STERLING PUBLISHING COMPANY until the further order of the Court in the premises, and for such other and further relief as to the Court may seem just and proper.

Let service of a copy of this order be made upon the creditors of the alleged bankrupt by mailing to them, or to such of them whose names can be ascertained, a copy thereof on or before the 20th day of October, 1911, and

Let a notice be published in The New York Times, a newspaper published in the Southern District of New York, addressed to the creditors and stockholders of the COLUMBIAN-STERLING PUBLISHING COMPANY and stating the nature of the application herein made and the date for the hearing upon said application.

Let service of a copy of this order be made upon the alleged bankrupt on or before the 20th day of October, 1911.

Dated New York, October 18th, 1911.

GEO. C. HOLT, D. J.

TO THE CREDITORS AND STOCKHOLDERS OF THE COLUMBIAN-STERLING PUBLISHING CO.:

Pursuant to the above order, I shall apply to the United States District Court for the Southern District of New York for leave to issue Receiver's certificates herein in the sum of $50,000, or such part thereof as may be deemed advisable, and upon such terms as may be deemed advisable and necessary, as in the above order mentioned. The proceeds thereof I shall use to continue the business of the Columbian-Sterling Publishing Company, to wit, the publication and distribution of its various publications. Yours, etc.,

A. GORDON MURRAY, Receiver,
Columbian-Sterling Publishing Co.
HAYS, HERSHFIELD & WOLF, Solicitors for Receiver, 115 Broadway, New York City.

IN THE DISTRICT COURT OF THE UNITED States for the Southern District of New York. —In Bankruptcy.—In the matter of WILLIAM STRIANESE, alleged bankrupt.—No. 15,549.

It appearing to my satisfaction by the annexed affidavit of Herman M. Schaap, duly verified the 11th day of October, 1911, that a petition was duly filed herein on the 29th day of September, 1911, praying that the above-named William Strianese be adjudged bankrupt, and that a subpoena was duly issued out of this court to the Marshal of this district, and that said Marshal has been unable to serve same, and that said alleged bankrupt is not within the district so that personal service can be made on him, and that diligent efforts have been made to ascertain the whereabouts of the said bankrupt, but that he is not within the jurisdiction of this court, it is Ordered that the above-named alleged bankrupt plead, answer, or demur on or before the 6th day of November, 1911, to the petition herein filed in the office of the clerk of this court on the 29th day of September, 1911, and in case of his failure to plead, answer, or demur thereto adjudication shall be made according to the prayer of said petition. And it is further Ordered that this order be published in The New York Times, a newspaper published in the Borough of Manhattan, City of New York, County of New York, and State of New York, in said district, once a week for two successive weeks, said publication to commence not later than October 20th, 1911, and that a copy of this order be mailed to the said alleged bankrupt at his last-known place of business, No. 816 East 75th Street, in the Borough of Manhattan, City of New York, on or before the date of the first publication.

Dated New York, October 16th, 1911.

UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT FOR the Southern District of New York.—In Bankruptcy.—In the matter of JOSEPH J. THEIL and SAM THEIL, individually and composing the firm of THEIL BROS., Alleged Bankrupts. —No. 15,560.

To the creditors of Joseph J. Theil and Sam Theil, individually and composing the firm of Theil Bros., of the City and County of New York and district aforesaid, alleged bankrupts:

Notice is hereby given that by an order of Geo. C. Holt, one of the Judges of this court, dated the 11th day of October, 1911, the above-entitled proceeding has been referred to me as referee under Section 12A of the bankruptcy act, to call a meeting of creditors for the allowance of claims, the examination of the alleged bankrupts, and the preservation and conduct of the estate of the same; and that action upon the petition for adjudication has been stayed until it shall be determined whether a composition herein shall be confirmed.

Notice is further given that, pursuant to said order and in conformity with said Section 12A, a meeting of creditors will be held at the office of Macgrane Coxe, Referee in Bankruptcy, Room No. 1,375 Hudson Terminal Buildings, No. 50 Church Street, City and County of New York, on the 2nd day of November, 1911, at 12 o'clock noon, at which time the said creditors may attend, prove their claims, examine the alleged bankrupts, and transact such other business as may properly come before said meeting.

MACGRANE COXE,

REFEREES' NOTICES.

In pursuance of a judgment of foreclosure and sale, duly made and entered in the above entitled action and bearing date the 5th day of October, 1911, I, the undersigned, the Referee in said judgment named, will sell at public auction at the Exchange Salesroom, Nos. 14 and 16 Vesey St., in the Borough of Manhattan, City of New York, on the 31st day of October, 1911, at 12 o'clock noon on that day, by BRYAN L. KENNELLY, Auctioneer, the premises directed by said judgment to be sold, and therein described as follows:

"All that certain lot, piece, or parcel of land, with the buildings thereon, situate, lying and being in the Twelfth Ward of the City of New York, bounded and described as follows, viz.:

"Beginning at a point on the southwesterly line of One Hundred and Fifteenth Street, distant two hundred (200) feet northwesterly from the northwesterly line of First Avenue; running thence southwesterly, parallel with First Avenue, part of the distance through a party wall, one hundred (100) feet and ten (10) inches to the centre line of the block; thence northwesterly along said centre line, and parallel with One Hundred and Fifteenth Street, twenty-five (25) feet; thence northeasterly and parallel with First Avenue, part of the distance through a party wall, one hundred (100) feet and ten (10) inches to the southwesterly line of One Hundred and Fifteenth Street; and thence southeasterly along the southwesterly line of One Hundred and Fifteenth Street twenty-five (25) feet to the point or place of beginning.

"Said premises being now known as and by the street number Three Hundred and Thirty-six East One Hundred and Fifteenth Street."

WILLIAM H. HAMILTON, Referee.
ADOLPH & HENRY BLOCH, Attorneys for Plaintiff, 99 Nassau Street, Borough of Manhattan, City of New York.

The approximate amount of the lien or charge, to satisfy which the above-described property is to be sold, is Fifteen Hundred and Thirty-six ($1,536) Dollars, with interest thereon from the 25th day of September, 1911, together with costs and allowance amounting to Two Hundred and Forty-six and Ninety-two One Hundredths ($246.92) Dollars, with interest from October 6th, 1911, together with the expenses of the sale. The approximate amount of the taxes, assessments, and water rates, or other liens, which are to be allowed to the purchaser out of the purchase money or paid by the Referee, is Nine Hundred ($900) Dollars and interest.

The premises will also be sold subject to a first mortgage to secure payment of the sum of $14,000 and interest thereon at the rate of five per cent. per annum.

Dated New York, October 6th, 1911.

WILLIAM H. HAMILTON, Referee.

In pursuance of a judgment of foreclosure and sale, duly made and entered in the above-entitled action and bearing date the 2d day of October, 1911, I, the undersigned, the referee in said judgment named, will sell at public auction, at the Exchange Salesroom, Nos. 14-16 Vesey Street, in the Borough of Manhattan, City of New York, on the 2d day of November, 1911, at 12 o'clock noon on that day, by Herbert A. Sherman, Auctioneer, the premises directed by said judgment to be sold, and therein described as follows:

All that certain plot, piece, or parcel of land, with the buildings and improvements thereon erected, situate, lying, and being in the Borough of Manhattan, City, County and State of New York, bounded and described as follows:

Beginning at a point on the southerly side of Twenty-eighth Street distant ninety-five feet westerly from the southwesterly corner of Twenty-eighth Street and Madison Avenue; running thence westerly, along the said southerly side of Twenty-eighth Street, twenty-five feet; thence southerly, in a line at right angles with Twenty-eighth Street, and part of the distance through the centre of a party wall, ninety-eight feet and nine inches; thence easterly in a line parallel with Twenty-eighth Street, twenty-five feet, and thence northerly in a line parallel with Madison Avenue, ninety-eight feet and nine inches to Twenty-eighth Street aforesaid, the place of beginning; be the said several dimensions more or less. Said premises being now known as and by the street number Twenty, East Twenty-eighth Street.

THE WEATHER.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 19.—Although pressure has risen generally along the Atlantic Coast there still remain along the south coast some traces of the disturbance of the earlier days of the week, and these, with the strong high area to the northeastward, has caused a persistence of the rains in New England, New Jersey and the eastern portions of New York and Pennsylvania.

Over most of the remainder of the country the weather was fair. High pressure continues over the western half of the country, with cool weather, and the area of falling temperature has extended over the Mississippi Valley. Over the eastern portion of the country the temperatures were moderate.

Owing to the prevailing high pressure generally fair weather may be expected over all portions of the country during the next two days, preceded, however, by rain Friday in New England and probably along the New Jersey Coast.

The temperatures will continue rather low in the West and will fall somewhat in the East.

Winds along the New England Coast will be moderate northeast, except brisk over the extreme southeast portion; Middle Atlantic Coast, moderate northeast to north; South Atlantic Coast, light to moderate variable.

Steamships departing Friday for European ports will have moderate northeast to north winds with unsettled weather to the Grand Banks.

FORECAST FOR TO-DAY AND SATURDAY.

3 A. M.	57	62	4 P. M.	72	62
6 A. M.	56	62	6 P. M.	69	62
9 A. M.	58	62	9 P. M.	67	59
12 M.	70	63	12 P. M.	67	59

This thermometer is 414 feet above the street level. The average temperature yesterday was 64; for the corresponding date last year it was 64; average on the corresponding date for the last thirty-three years, 54.

The temperature at 8 A. M. yesterday was 61; at 8 P. M. it was 59. Maximum temperature, 69 degrees at 1:45 P. M.; minimum, 59 degrees at 10:45 P. M. Humidity, 95 per cent. at 8 A. M.; 95 per cent. at 8 P. M.

REFEREES' NOTICES.

SUPREME COURT, COUNTY OF NEW YORK. —SETH SPRAGUE TERRY, plaintiff, against SECOND MANHATTAN OFFICE BUILDING COMPANY et al., defendants.—In pursuance of a judgment of foreclosure and sale, duly made and entered in the above-entitled action and bearing date the 14th day of September, 1911, I the undersigned, the Referee in said judgment named, will sell at public auction, at the Exchange Salesroom, Nos. 14-16 Vesey Street, in the Borough of Manhattan, City of New York, on the 24th day of October, 1911, at 12 o'clock noon on that day, by Joseph P. Day, Auctioneer, the premises directed by said judgment to be sold, and therein described as follows:

All those certain lots, pieces, or parcels of land, with the buildings and improvements thereon erected, situate, lying, and being in the Borough of Manhattan of the City of New York, in the County and State of New York, bounded and described as follows: Beginning at a point on the southerly side of Sixteenth Street, distant two hundred and sixty-eight feet six inches southeasterly from the southeasterly corner of Fourth Avenue, commonly called Union Square East, and Sixteenth Street; running thence southwesterly, parallel with Fourth Avenue and part of the distance through the centre of a party wall one hundred and three feet three inches; thence southeasterly, parallel with Sixteenth Street, fifty-six feet six inches; thence northeasterly, again parallel with Fourth Avenue, one hundred and three feet three inches to Sixteenth Street; thence northwesterly along Sixteenth Street, fifty-six feet six inches to the point or place of beginning. Said premises being now known by the street numbers One hundred and fourteen and One hundred and sixteen East Sixteenth Street.

Dated New York, September 29, 1911.
THEODORE N. RIPSOM, Attorney for Plaintiff, P. O. & Office Address, 66 Broadway, Borough of Manhattan, New York City.

The approximate amount of the lien or charge to satisfy which the above-described property is to be sold is Thirty-nine thousand seven hundred eighty-five dollars and sixty-three cents, ($39,785.63,) with interest thereon from the 14th day of September, 1911, together with costs and allowance amounting to Four hundred twenty-four dollars and nineteen cents, ($424.19,) with interest from September 16, 1911, together with the expenses of the sale. The approximate amount of the taxes, assessments, and water rates, or other liens, which are to be allowed to the purchaser out of the purchase money, or paid by the Referee, is Four thousand six hundred fifty dollars and sixty-nine cents ($4,650.69) and interest.

The said premises will be sold subject to a first mortgage of Two hundred sixty-two thousand five hundred dollars ($262,500) upon which there is now due the sum of Two hundred sixty-three thousand four hundred twenty-six dollars, ($263,426,) with interest on Two hundred sixty-two thousand five hundred dollars, ($262,500,) at six per cent. from March 1, 1911, together with accrued interest to said date amounting to Seven thousand one hundred eighty-two dollars and ninety-six cents, ($7,182.96;) subject also to a second mortgage of Five thousand dollars ($5,000) with interest thereon from September 1, 1910 at six per cent.; subject also to leases of the present occupants; also subject to rights, if any, under a conditional bill of sale filed by A. B. See Electric Elevator Company in the New York County Register's Office November 15, 1910.

Dated New York, September 29, 1911.

ATTACK GOV. WILSON IN INSURANCE TALK

Fear His Workmen's Compensation Act May Put Casualty Men Out of Business in Jersey.

COMPANIES GET TOGETHER

One Speaker Suggests the Governor's Rich Friends Test His Theories Before They Are Made Law.

At the fifth annual meeting of the Liability Insurance Association in the Hotel Astor yesterday Gov. Woodrow Wilson and his proposed State Insurance Department for workingmen's compensation were attacked by prominent liability, accident, and casualty men. Before that the Liability Insurance Association, representing twenty-two firms, voted to consolidate with the International Association of Casualty and Surety Underwriters, organized last Tuesday night.

The Board of Casualty and Surety Underwriters, composed of thirty-nine members, all big casualty insurance firms, and the International Association of Accident Underwriters, composed of sixty-four big accident firms, were amalgamated on Tuesday night under one name. It was stated then that the consolidation was to reduce expenses, but not until yesterday when the third organization was admitted did the primary purpose of the union become clear.

By the consolidation the liability men are able to present a front of 125 rich and resourceful firms, it is pointed out, in opposition to State insurance and State compensation bills, which are appearing in increasing numbers on the calendars of State Legislatures. It was stated that while the Court of Appeals of this State had declared unconstitutional the recent Compensation Act, a similar law had been upheld by the Supreme Court of Washington, resulting in driving out of business every liability insurance company in that State. The liability men had therefore come to see, it was explained, that their whole business was at stake either from compensation acts similar to that of Washington or from State insurance measures such as Gov. Wilson proposes.

The chief assailant of Gov. Wilson's reform was Edson S. Lott, President of the United States Casualty Company, who said:

"A labor law which Gov. Wilson recommended met with opposition from some employers of his State because of the increased cost of insurance to employers under that law. The Governor meets such opposition by saying that those who make insurance rates are 'singularly unwise.' He goes further, making a declaration which sounds almost like a threat. He says it may be necessary for New Jersey to provide a system of State insurance."

Mr. Lott warmly defended the proposed increase, saying Gov. Wilson's criticism of the managers of insurance companies was plainly founded, contrary to the Governor's custom, on hearsay evidence. Mr. Lott argued that in saying the rates were too high he was evidently talking about a matter with which he was not fully acquainted, because he could not know what the companies had to pay out. The insurance experts themselves, he said, differed on the question of rates, and it was to be expected that they knew more about the subject than an outsider.

"If," he said, "Gov. Wilson were backing any insurance scheme with his own money, it is altogether probable that he would call in some expert help when he came to naming premiums for risks which might continue as a liability for twenty years or longer."

Mr. Lott did not think Gov. Wilson would urge his State to go into the insurance business, and added:

"If Gov. Wilson thinks that the rates liability companies are asking in his State are so high that the companies will make too large profits, he need not set the cumbersome State machinery in motion for the purpose of relieving his fellow-citizens from that evil. That will be a slow method at best. He can give relief more quickly by asking his moneyed friends to start a company of their own—they can get a new company under way within a few weeks.

"It requires neither experience nor good judgment to start a liability insurance company. All legal requirements are met by raising the necessary capital. But the Governor had better look before he leaps. He glories in the fact that he has been a teacher. Long ago the greatest of Teachers pointed out the folly of an intending builder who 'sitteth not down first and counteth the cost.'"

S. H. Wolfe, a consulting actuary, told the underwriters that State action of some kind was bound to come, and they need not be deceived about it. His address was in the nature of a warning.

"We should be fooling ourselves, I think," said he, "did we not come to the conclusion that before long we shall find upon the statute books of every State some law dealing with the question of workingmen's compensation, and that the treatment will be along the lines of the enactments to be found at the present time in European countries."

CITY BREVITIES.

Supreme Court Justice Greenbaum signed yesterday a final decree of divorce separating Mabel F. Manning from Robert F. Manning, a lawyer.

Ex-President Roosevelt will deliver an address on "The Conservation of Womanhood and Childhood" in Carnegie Hall this evening, under the auspices of the Child Welfare League and the Civic Forum.

After a jury had considered the case less than five minutes, Daniel J. McCarren of Marshall Corners, City Island, who shot and killed his father, William, last Sunday night, was found not guilty and discharged by Coroner Shongut yesterday. It was shown that in a quarrel son and father reached for a pistol on the table, and that this was exploded in the scuffle. Death was found to be due to accidental homicide.

CATCH THIEVES IN CAR RACE.

Motorman Speeds Up at Detectives' Order—Conductors to Carry Police Whistles.

Conductors of the Metropolitan Street Railway Company are soon to be equipped with regulation police whistles. Police Commissioner Waldo approved the idea yesterday when it was suggested to him by Supt. Palmer of the railway company's transportation department. Mr. Palmer got the idea from one of his conductors, who had a police whistle of his own, and who blew it when several men boarded his car in Broadway on Wednesday afternoon and began to jostle the other passengers. The men sprang off in a hurry, and they were not a moment too soon, for policemen, summoned by the whistle, began to arrive from all directions.

There was no need for a police whistle yesterday, however, when four pickpockets boarded a Thirty-fourth Street car and stole a wallet, containing $40 and some railroad tickets, from the pocket of Alvin G. Andrews, a railroad official of Altoona, Penn., here on his honeymoon. Detectives Cassassa, McKenna, and Wilbur boarded the car directly back of the pickpockets and saw the theft. The thieves jumped from the car, with Wilbur and McKenna close behind, while Cassassa remained to acquaint Mr. Andrews with his loss and to bring him along.

Three of the thieves boarded a southbound Fourth Avenue car, the fourth escaping in the crowd. The detectives, with Andrews, caught the next car and told the motorman to overtake the car ahead. Within a block or two Cassassa and McKenna were able to leap from their car and reach the platform of the car ahead. They caught the three thieves in the car.

In the Jefferson Market Court Magistrate Appleton sent them to the Workhouse for five months each. They said they were Harry Allen of 491 Second Avenue, whom the police say is also known as "The Boxer" and has been six times on Blackwell's Island and twice in Sing Sing; Benjamin Wolf of 244 East Thirteenth Street, said by the police to have served two terms in Sing Sing, and William Clobessy of 154 South Third Street, Williamsburg.

REFUSED ASTOR'S $20,000.

Synod Hears Newport Presbyterian Minister Declined to Marry Him.

AUBURN, N. Y., Oct. 19.—The Presbyterian Synod of New York closed to-day following a hot debate on the subject of divorce, during which the Moderator, Rev. Martin D. Kneeland, D. D., of Boston, made the interesting announcement that a Presbyterian minister had put the tempter behind him when an offer of $20,000 was made to perform the Astor-Force marriage.

"This divorce evil," he said, "is assuming alarming proportions in New England, where our laws are not so rigid as in New York State. But I am pleased to say that I know one New England Presbyterian pastor who was approached by Col. Astor and sked to perform the ceremony with Miss Force which created so much comment last Summer. He received an agent of Mr. Astor direct, who said to him, "It will be worth $20,000 to you to perform the ceremony." The clergyman replied, 'You have not money enough to get me to perform that marriage.' That clergyman is the Rev. N. J. Sproul of the Presbyterian Church at Newport, R. I. I mention this because I think it is something of which Presbyterians should be proud."

The debate continued with Gen. R. E. Prime of Yonkers opposing the adoption of a resolution favoring uniform divorce laws. He declared that New York State had now one scriptural ground for divorce, but under a National law would have to accept a lower standard with probably six unscriptural grounds for divorce. "My remedy is to have Congress make it a crime for men and women to violate the law of the State of their residence or who violate the decree of the court which forbids them to remarry."

The original resolutoin was lost and a substitute resolution adopted against uniform divorce laws. The New England States withdrew from the Synod of New York and will henceforth be known as the Synod of New England.

BLUECOAT DIED FOR ANOTHER

Damage Suit of Bridge Policeman's Widow Brings This Disclosure.

Mrs. Catherine V. Fitzgerald, widow of Policeman Robert J. Fitzgerald of the Brooklyn Bridge force, who was killed by a trolley car on that structure on Jan. 10, 1910, is suing the Brooklyn Heights Railroad Company in the Supreme Court, Brooklyn, to recover $25,000 for his death. It came out in the trial yesterday that Fitzgerald lost his life while trying to prevent a would-be suicide from jumping from the Bridge.

Fitzgerald was on duty on the Bridge when he saw a young man trying to climb up on the girders, apparently with the intention of leaping into the river. Running toward him, Fitzgerald was struck by a trolley car, which he did not see approaching, and received injuries from which he died. The would-be suicide was caught by Sergt. Farrell, who was near by. When a brother of Fitzgerald claimed the body he learned that the policeman had been married for more than a year. Mrs. Fitzgerald was later appointed administratrix of her husband's estate.

The young man who attempted suicide is said to be a member of a well-to-do Chicago family, who had fallen into bad habits. The fact that the policeman lost his life while trying to save him from suicide is said to have so affected the young man that he reformed.

MRS. HARVEY WEDS AGAIN.

Receives Reno Decree and Quickly Marries David Stevenson.

Mrs. Fernande Charlotte L. Harvey, daughter of the late Gen. Ferdinand C. Latrobe, who was Mayor of Baltimore, Md., for seven terms, and who recently obtained a divorce from Mr. Harvey at Reno, Nev., was married on Wednesday in this city to David Stevenson, son of the founder of the David Stevenson Brewing Company.

This is also Mr. Stevenson's second marriage. His first wife was Miss Mary Greenough, daughter of E. W. Greenough of Philadelphia, whom he married secretly in 1905. Three months afterward Mrs. Stevenson began proceedings for a separation in West Virginia, and her husband entered no defense. His father died in 1892, and left him a large share in a $3,000,000 estate. He has spent much of his time in Baltimore.

Mrs. Harvey's decree was signed last Friday in Reno. Mr. Stevenson has been staying at the Holland House, having come on from the West. The couple left the city after the wedding. They will live in Baltimore.

John M. Burke Left $2,212,000.

John M. Burke, who died Dec. 2, 1909, left $2,212,534.85, according to an appraisal filed yesterday in the transfer tax office by Deputy State Controller Julius Harburger. The bulk of the estate is exempt from taxation, since most of it is given to philanthropic purposes, $2,096,978.57 to the Winifred Masterson Burke Relief Foundation, established by Mr. Burke for the "relief of the worthy poor who have been ill"; $2,500 to the Servants of Relief for Incurable Cancer, and $2,500 to the Mariners' Family Asylum. Mr. Burke left only $11,938 to relatives and friends. He had no immediate relatives, his next of kin being nieces and cousins. He owned 3,000 shares of Union Pacific Railway stock, valued by the appraiser at $594,000, and $250,000 of equipment notes of the Southern Railroad.

HOLDS COURT IN MISS WAUGH'S ROOM

TOUCH OF HIS HANDS ENOUGH

Says the Lord Told Her That the Giant Brach Was the Man Who Attacked Her.

Propped up in her bed with pillows, Miss Agnes Waugh, who was attacked and beaten by a man on the evening of Oct. 11 within a few hundred feet of her home, 438 Eighty-third Street, Brooklyn, repeated yesterday afternoon her identification of Frank Brach, a giant of a youth, as her assailant.

Though given in her own bedroom, Miss Waugh's testimony had the same official weight as though it had been heard in the Fifth Avenue Court, for, finding that the girl might not be able to appear in court for ten days, Magistrate Hylan moved his court to the girl's room.

"The Lord told me that this was the man," said Miss Waugh, when Brach had been led to the foot of her bed and Magistrate Hylan asked how she made her identification. "That night, when he grabbed me, the touch of his hand gave me a hideous, shivery sensation. I felt it again when I touched his hand the other day. The Lord directed me."

The girl admitted that she had never seen the man to recognize him except on the former occasion when he had been brought before her. Martin P. Lynch, Brach's attorney, demanded to know when she had received a divine message. The girl said it was when she touched Brach's hand.

"I felt again," said she, "as though those big hands were choking me. When they brought other men before me and I touched their hands I felt no more emotion than if they had been the hands of my father."

It was in the Fifth Avenue Court, whither Magistrate Hylan, the detectives, and the prisoner adjourned after the hearing in Miss Waugh's home, that the detectives produced a new piece of evidence against Brach. It was in the shape of a bracelet which was identified by Alma Sapano as hers, and the detectives said they had found it near the spot where Miss Waugh was attacked. Miss Sapano, who is 18 years old and lives at 4,116 Eighth Avenue, was the victim of an attack by three men who dragged her into a lot at Eleventh Avenue and Thirty-eighth Street on Aug. 20. Brach already has been accused of being one of the three, and was out on bail when he was arrested in the Waugh case. The detectives consider the discovery of Miss Sapano's bracelet at the scene of the attack on Miss Waugh as a convincing proof of Brach's presence at both places.

Magistrate Hylan had explained, when offering to move his court to Miss Waugh's home, that the prisoner, if innocent, should be liberated promptly, and if guilty should be as promptly placed on trial. On his return to the courtroom he immediately held Brach without bail for the action of the Grand Jury.

LOST—A FINE, BUSHY TAIL.

A Fat Squirrel Meets a Yellow Auto When Both Are in a Hurry.

The people who were perched on the crowded top of a motor 'bus as it lumbered along Seventy-second Street toward Riverside Drive the other day were suddenly aware of a pursuing hubbub. Then they were overtaken and passed by a pack in full cry. The pack was a shrill company of small boys and girls. Ahead of them ran a man in uniform, who seemed to be a park attendant or something of that sort. Ahead of the man, who was panting and puffing for dear life, scurried a fat gray squirrel with a magnificent, bushy tail.

The 'bus was approaching West End Avenue as this wild chase went by. At that moment a big yellow motor car came humming down the avenue, and, as it whisked by just ahead, the young woman on the front seat of the 'bus—she is responsible for this narrative—was horrified to see the fat squirrel dart in between the wheels of the swift-moving car. Time to gasp or wink an eye, perhaps, and out popped the squirrel on the other side. He flew one way, his fine bushy tail flew another. He came down on his feet and, turning northward up the avenue, continued his flight—without his tail, but otherwise seemingly unhurt. The last seen of him from the 'bus he had cut into the grounds about Charles M. Schwab's big imitation French château, and the park guard and the children, still in full cry, were preparing to follow him inside—all, that is, except one enterprising small boy. He had stopped to pick up the fine bushy tail.

How the squirrel—a portly little beast, like most park squirrels—made that perilous passage among the whirling wheels of the yellow motor car and what part of the machinery clipped off the tail and left the rest of the squirrel to pursue its truant course is a question. It remains a question, and no more.

The thing happened. The squirrel went in, tail and all, in one piece. He came out in two pieces, one of which was tail and the other plain squirrel. The young woman on the front seat, who is a perfectly truthful person, vouches for that. And she says if she only knew who the other people on the 'bus were—only one never does—she could call them all as witnesses. Personally she is chiefly curious to know why the park guard was chasing a squirrel in such a place, and whether he ever caught it.

SEEK SENDER OF POISON.

BOSTON, Oct. 19.—Although convinced that Avis Linnell, the young music student, was murdered by some one sending her cyanide of potassium, which she took, believing it was a harmless drug, Chief Dugan of the Bureau of Criminal Investigation admits that the case is surrounded by many puzzling features.

Nearly a dozen detectives are working on the case, and to-day a reward was offered for information regarding the purchase of the poison. The police are investigating the movements of the young woman and her companions for some time before her death in the bath room of the Y. W. C. A. last Saturday night.

A letter from one of Miss Linnell's friends at the association states that she lunched that day with the Rev. Clarence V. T. Richeson, pastor of the Immanuel Baptist Church of Cambridge, at her home at Hyannis. Mr. Richeson is ill at the home of his fiancée, Violet Emmands, at Chestnut Hill and will not discuss the case.

The letter said that it was generally understood that the minister was engaged at one time to marry Miss Linnell, and so convinced were her friends of his interest in her that one of them notified him on Saturday night by telephone of Miss Linnell's death.

DALY'S—MME. SIMONE—"THE THIEF"

Broadway and 30th St. Evgs., 8:15. Matinee To-morrow, 2:15. (IN ENGLISH.)

(From yesterday's N. Y. Herald.)

CRITICS HERE STIR FRENCH DRAMATISTS BY COMMENTS ON MME. SIMONE'S ACTING.

Mons. Pierre Veber Expresses Astonishment That Actress Is Said to Lack Emotional Qualities—He Asserts That She Is Supreme in Portrayal of Passion.

Paris, Wednesday—When a French actress like Mme. Simone goes forth to spread abroad the spirit of France and French dramatic art the result of such an effort is of interest to all the writers of this country.

This explains why The Herald yesterday published a cable despatch of five hundred words on this subject. According to this despatch, which is a synopsis of the opinions of the most important dramatic critics of New York, Mme. Simone's début caused quite a sensation.

It is not often that a French actress speaks English well enough to be able to appear on the stage without exciting ridicule, and the task is still more difficult in serious drama.

The judgment of the New York critics, whose sincerity and independence are widely known, was therefore awaited with keen interest. To our intense astonishment what they find to blame in Mme. Simone is a "lack of emotion."

Mme. Simone's temperament is perhaps somewhat rebellious to tenderness and grace, but it seems to me that this actress is gifted in a very high degree with the qualities of strength, intensity and power.

ACTS WITH TRUTH AND CONVICTION.

She acts with absolute truth and conviction. Not alone does she put her soul into her work, but in a measure she dominates her part. She acts with abandon and I do not understand how The Herald critic can say of the woman who created "The Thief" that she is not "a great interpreter of passion."

The World refuses to place Mme. Simone by the side of Mme. Sarah Bernhardt. There is no need to do so. Mme. Sarah Bernhardt is an actress of the romantic, unreal school; Mme. Simone is a comedienne of life as we live it to-day, and no comparison is possible. The same critic denies emotion to our compatriot. That again depends on what we mean by emotion.

The Tribune critic is more severe. He says she lacks "supreme art." I hold that Mme. Simone's art, compounded of sincerity, exactness and intelligence, is an art altogether French and epitomizes the perfection of our teaching.

The Times critic says that "disappointment came in the second act—that of the confession." At Paris this was the act which won success.

The Morning Telegraph critic seems to me to be more just. He says Mme. Simone "must be seen in a variety of parts."

This is also the opinion of The Sun critic, who observes that Bernstein's heroines are remarkable for qualities other than those of tenderness and love for the ideal.

CRITICISES HER TASTE IN DRESS.

It is strange that the press of New York concedes to Mme. Simone "perfect taste in dress." Now, the only reproach that I should be tempted to make regarding Mme. Simone would have to deal with just that point. She displays less simplicity in her dress than in her acting.

What we may emphasize is the very profound impression which Mme. Simone's New York début has caused. A French woman has carried our national art to the New World and has won applause.

written by WINCHELL SMITH and now current at the GAIETY THEATRE
It is no time to be modest with the proclamation when real dramas are as poor and far between as they are these days—and ever have been, for that matter. It is time rather to take a chance with the vicarious tastes of a suspicious public and advise it to go see this sterling example of play-writing wrapped around a theme as timely as an aero meet and as vibrant as a wireless message."—BURNS MANTLE in Eve. The Man in the Tower Departs from Custom

HE is frequently asked how these ready-to-wear clothes differ from those of other good houses.

First, there is the house that sells good woolens, cut by a national concern to fit the tastes of the country at large.

Then there is the house of good old New York reputation, using staple woolens and cutting the garments the same, season after season.

Always good—and ALWAYS ALIKE.

The scale of prices is no higher—$20 to $40 for suits—$25 to $50 for overcoats.

* * *

There is the same difference between the hats of Weber and Heilbroner and those of other shops.

All the quality that anybody else has—but with unimpeachable New York and London styles.

Hundreds of Clothing Salesmen Wear Moe Levy Clothes

One of the highest tributes paid my clothing is the fact that hundreds of employes of other well known clothiers come to me for their clothes. These men with expert clothing knowledge, purchase my merchandise, because by comparison it is the best value they know—but it does not take an expert to detect the superiority of my values—not only does the merchandise look my claims, but my money-back guarantee eliminates any speculation on your part.

$25 Service Guaranteed Suit or Overcoat at $15

My $15.00 Suit and Overcoat is the value that has served to introduce my clothes to thousands of new patrons every year. I specialize on these garments—crowd them with value—and feature them to demonstrate my manufacturing ability to sell clothing at prices one-third less than the regular retailer. I give you the style, quality, and tailoring for $15.00 that is of the regular $25.00 standard. You can judge their smart style for yourself. My guarantee warrants them to give as long and as good service as the best clothes you can buy elsewhere for $25.00. Put me to the test of this value.

More of Those $35 to $50 Suit and Overcoats Fabrics at $20

It so happens that another five dollars will take you into the $35.00 and $50.00 class. That choice lot of fabrics I bought from a foreign mill who needed the money and made up into swell English and New York models at $20.00 are still coming through my workshops. If you want a Raglan Overcoat ask to see those I'm offering in this lot at $20. This value is the chance of a lifetime.
